According to the statement of the Director General of the Atlanta Exposition, Mr. Kimball, twenty-seven of those who were among the exhibitors of machinery and fabrics intend to establish factories in that city at once. With the start that she already has, this additional impetus will make Atlanta one of the greatest manufacturing centres in the Union.

Society Belles.

On account of its remarkably delicate and lasting fragrance society belles are loud in their praises of Floreston Cologne.

The Chicago News says: The last week has been an important one in the Guiteau case for two reasons. The prisoner was at length brought to a realization of the fact that in the eye of the law and the people he is nothing more or less than a common criminal, and as such deserves no better treatment than is generally accorded to prisoners of his class. And Judge Cox, who has been greatly misrepresented because of the supposed leniency with which he treated the prisoner, had an opportunity of vindicating his course, which opportunity he took advantage of in a pointed and dignified speech from the bench. He showed that it was entirely in accordance with the wishes of the prosecuting counsel that he had given so much rope to the prisoner, and that the purpose was to give experts summoned to Washington to give testimony in the case an opportunity of witnessing the daily antics of the prisoner, that they might come to intelligent conclusions regarding the condition of the assassin's mind.

Renew Your Lease.

There are times in every one's life when energy fails and a miserable feeling comes over them mistaken for laziness. Danger lurks in these symptoms, as they arise from diseased organs. Parker's Ginger Tonic will restore perfect activity to the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood, and renew your lease of health and comfort.—Advocate.

Bayard's Tardis Speech.

A Washington dispatch of the 10th says: Senator Bayard's speech to-day upon the tariff question is quite generally complimented as an able presentation of the subject from his standpoint. One comment, especially among the Democrats, is that this speech brings Bayard forward for the Presidential nomination in 1884. The idea is that Bayard has planted himself upon a middle or compromise ground with regard to the tariff, that, after its experience of last year, the Democratic party will not enter another national canvass upon the platform of "a tariff for revenue only," that the middle ground taken by Bayard in his speech offers a platform upon which all Democrats may stand together and if they accept it Bayard is the man for them to nominate for president. This is about the substance of comment among Democratic congressmen who agree with Bayard and are inclined to look favorably upon his promotion. There are, of course, others who are not willing to accord Bayard leadership and prominence. His strongest friends and supporters are from the East and South. His speech was candid and straightforward. He denounced the protective system now in force as unjust, oppressive and out of place. He did not indicate that he was willing to sacrifice principle to expediency. He said the protective system was born of war, perhaps good enough in time of war, but now, in time of peace, it is as much out of place as an arsenal would be where it was proposed to manufacture woollen goods. He severely denounced the doctrine of a tariff for protection, with incidental revenue, and declared that the tariff should be a just and equitable tax laid to meet the expenses of the government. The present tariff, he said, was simply prohibitive. In rearranging and readjusting it and its burdens he wanted to hear from all classes of people to have all interests consulted. He wanted the poor man's interests and needs consulted, and though the Morrill bill was not just what he believed to be necessary in the way of legislation, he was willing to give it a trial as making progress in the right direction. He wanted a commission that would listen to all classes and interests, and that would hear poor people and laboring people and heed their voices. Mr. Bayard was not hopeful, however, of the final passage of the Morrill bill. He apprehended that the House of Representatives would resent the Senate's action on this subject as an interference with its privileges, and that the bill would never see daylight in that end of the capitol.

A State Hospital for the Indigent Sick.

We respectfully submit that the Legislature should consider the claims of the indigent sick and afflicted of the State, for treatment and the alleviation of their condition. With but few exceptions, the several States of the Union, have already in a substantial manner recognized the claims upon their charity of those of their citizens who are the victims of the double misfortunes of poverty and disease.

While Mississippi has done nobly in caring for her insane, her deaf and dumb, and her blind, she has hitherto been oblivious of the claims of her indigent sick, notwithstanding there are within her borders to-day, hundreds of her people who are suffering from injuries or diseases by which they are rendered a burthen to their friends and families, she offers them no friendly aid in their misfortunes.

Hundreds of these unfortunates are to-day languishing in the various county jails and poor-houses, without medical or surgical treatment, hopeless in their misery, waiting for death to relieve them of their wretched existence.

A large portion of these cases could, under the care of skilled surgeons and physicians, be restored to health and happiness, and their lives made valuable to themselves, to their families and to the commonwealth.

To leave them unaided is (so far as this world is concerned) to shut out the light of hope from their hearts forever. What a sad commentary on our boasted humanity and our professed Christian charity!

We submit that not only does humanity demand at our hands relief for these unfortunates, but that it is also demanded by the strictest laws of economy.

The aggregate of the sums paid by the different counties of the State for the maintenance of such persons as are paupers, solely by reason of their being the subjects of diseases or injuries which are curable, would go far towards maintaining a general hospital where these patients could be cured and rendered self-supporting.

There are also many poor children in the State, the subjects of disease or injuries or deformities, by which they will (if left unaided) become helpless cripples. These little sufferers can be rescued from lives of misery and helplessness, and made useful men and women.

Gentlemen of the Legislature, in the name of justice and mercy, we appeal to you in behalf of these unfortunates. We submit that it is only just for the State to care for these helpless ones of her people. Take them out of jails and poor-houses. They are of the lowly ones of the earth, and have nothing to commend them to you save their helplessness and misery, and we beside a country where the hearts of its people have become so callous that they cannot be moved by the contemplation of human suffering.—Jackson Clarion.
