

BUSINESS COLLEGE ON THE SIDEWALK.

Elden Moran's Furniture, Desks, Typewriters and Books Carried Out.

HE WAS BEHIND ON RENT.

Eviction From His Printing Office Also Threatened—Moran Claims He Could Soon Have Paid Up.

While the snow and wind made things uncomfortable yesterday afternoon, the furniture in the apartments on the second, third and fourth floors of No. 119 Olive street, belonging to Elden Moran's Business College, was carried and left on the sidewalk. The faculty of teachers and students followed the furniture.

The ejection was the result of nonpayment of rent for two months' rent. At the same time, Moran's printing office, at No. 129 Pine street, owned by the principal of the college, was threatened with a similar fate because rent amounting to $28 was overdue. Wilcox & Gibbs Machine Company, occupying the first floor of No. 119 Olive street, as agents, caused the ejection in that building, and Mrs. J. C. Brooks, through her agents, threatened the dispossession on Pine street. Later, action was stayed on the latter suit, when the agents saw Moran's predicament on Olive street, and he was given until Monday to find new quarters.

The long row of furniture, piled high and covered with snow and sleet, stretching almost a half a block on Olive street, attracted a great deal of attention and pedestrians, puffing from their exertions in walking against the sharp, sleet-laden wind, often stopped to comment sympathetically about the man's misfortune. The sidewalk was almost blocked with the furniture. The Deputy Constable's force began to carry the contents of the rooms out at 2:45, and at 9 o'clock last night they completed their work. Everything in the apartments that was movable was carried out. The glass partitions were broken out and carried downstairs. Desks were promiscuously piled on each other. Some contained ink wells, and when the desks were placed wrong side up the ink trickled in little rivulets over all the furniture and on the white snow. Bookcases were placed in perilous positions on the heap, and the books were often exposed to the wind. Bedsteads, trunks, tables, stoves, stationery, lamps, typewriters, chairs and carpets were placed on the street, and gradually buried beneath the snow sheet. The staircase in the building is narrow and many things were broken in transport. Up to a late hour last night no effort had been made by Moran to remove his property.

The college had been in the building since September. Moran has conducted a number of business colleges in this city. On January he fell behind in his rent on Olive street, and failed to pay in February. He was warned by the landlords, Wilcox & Gibbs, to leave. Last week they obtained judgment against him to remove the property, and he was ordered to leave. On Monday Deputy Constable Frank Lingo warned him that the court's order would be executed, and he promised to make some arrangements. Yesterday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock Lingo went to him and told him that he was compelled to remove the property from the building. He said his men were waiting below.

Moran's school was still in session. The typewriters clicked and the students were all busy over their books. Moran pleaded with the deputy and with the agents, but in vain. Lingo called up his men and they began to haul the things away. The noise they made attracted the attention of some of the students, and they looked in to see what was the trouble. There were more than thirty pupils in the college, and presently they tramped down the stairs, followed by their teachers.

Moran soon followed after his faculty from the building to stop the proceedings in the Pine street building. He was seen conducting a printing establishment. He returned later in the evening and stood near as the men hauled the furniture out. He lived on the top floor of the building. He has been in the city for quite a long time. He said last night that financial difficulties had rendered it impossible for him to pay his rent, but that he would have been able to do so in a few days. He said he had made no provision for the trouble which had arisen, and that he thought that the agent would execute his threat. He had absolutely no plans for the future.

SECRETARY FLEER EXAMINED.

Mechanics' Clothing Company Inquiry Not Concluded.

The inquiry into the affairs of the Mechanics' Clothing Manufacturing Company was continued yesterday before Referee Colver Fritz Flier, the secretary and bookkeeper of the company was to stand all the afternoon, after a brief explanation of H. Marx, president of the Marx Manufacturing Company. Bruno Fritz, who was the treasurer and manager of the Mechanics' Clothing Company, is now employed in the establishment of which Mr. Marx is the head. The drift of the question was to show whether Fritz had transferred goods of his company to Mr. Marx just prior to his failure. Mr. Marx denied that he had done so. The examination of Mr. Flier was not completed yesterday. He was asked to explain a number of entries about which there was doubt. He testified that Adolph Lederer, who held ninety-eight shares of the company's stock, had been a partner in the company for the surplus goods which he claimed to have put into the hands of the company's stockholders. This amount, he admitted, was not counted in any of the statements of the company's affairs, and which were made to the Fourth National Bank and the Commercial Agency. There were several other accounts and notes, amounting to several thousand dollars, which were not included in the statements of the company's affairs. The examination of Mr. Flier is expected to continue for some time.

Curfew Will Ring to-Night.

Signal Will Be Sounded at Nine O'Clock Every Evening.

Factory whistles will be blown and the church and fire bells will ring for thirty seconds this evening, at 9 o'clock, to indicate the curfew hour. While it is not compulsory for children to vacate the streets, it is presumed that the signal of the curfew hour will be very potent in causing the youngsters to leave the streets at that time. The opinion throughout the city commending the movement is almost unanimous and the "Curfew Reform" Committee has requested the teachers of all public and parochial schools to announce to their pupils the purpose of the signals. The curfew whistles and bells and songs will be sounded every night hereafter.

DOLLAR TRIPS TO THE ISLANDS.

If a responsible firm should advertise to give tours to Cuba, Porto Rico, Isle of Pines, the Hawaiian and Samoan Islands and the Philippines for only $1.00 per month for a period of twelve months, the offer would be accepted by hundreds of thousands of people.

And that is precisely what The Republic is doing in its serial work, "Our Islands and Their People as Seen With Camera and Pencil." It is better than an actual tour because it saves the expense and weariness of traveling. Our representative visited every part and section of all the islands and photographed the scenery and the people in a series of nearly 1,300 of the finest and most attractive photographs ever printed. They constitute a living panorama of the Islands and their People, accompanied by printed descriptions and historical matter of inestimable value. The history of the islands and their boundless resources is made up from the official records of both the Spanish and American Governments and is absolutely reliable.

The high character of the work is guaranteed by General Wheeler's Introduction and the additional fact that the descriptive features were prepared by Jose de Olivares, one of the most polished and pleasing writers of the day, who is now in Paris as the literary representative of the leading newspaper syndicate of the United States at the World's Exposition.

There are also special articles by Senators Proctor, Money, Thurston and a numerous corps of brilliant writers and correspondents who have seen the islands and write from actual observation.

The extraordinary success of this splendid work of art, description, travel and adventure shows that the public appreciates its value. It has long since passed the record of any other similar work ever published in this country. The subscriptions in this city alone, during the past three weeks, have exceeded $60,000 in value.

We are now introducing the work in the country, and desire intelligent solicitors to represent the combination with The Republic in every county in the United States. Traveling solicitors also employed. Write for particulars, explaining your wishes, and you will receive a prompt reply. Address
