William Smith of Franklin County overheard Scott and Colson in front of the Capital Hotel just a few minutes before the trial began. This trial has been going long enough and has got us now, so much to do with it, whatever you do, to give him as much as he can get. After this Smith, the member of the Capital Hotel, Brook Charles of Franklin County was in the lobby when the fight opened. He said the defense was still with their attorneys, Max Harmsworth of Toledo, Ohio, and Max Rosenblatt of New York.

Charles Wilson, one of the defendants in Colson's defense, told all the three who had made against Colson at Amherst, Ohio, that he had not yet got into the November election. The defense closed their case at 5 o'clock. The Commonwealth showed up to introduce its witnesses. Two attorneys of Lexington, W. C. Holmes and W. P. Kimball—stated in Lexington that the trial would proceed to the end, so far as the defense was concerned. The defense will be ready to argue, and the case will be ready for argument.
