

NEELY WAS AIDED BY LAX METHODS.

Retention of Careless Customs Derived From the Spanish Occupation.

STAMP SALES NOT RECORDED.

Inspectors Could Not Ascertain the Amount Thereby Received From Postmasters—American Officials' Complaint.

Havana, May 27.—The Neely scandal is still the chief topic of conversation among Americans here. It is said that the embezzlements were made possible by the retention of lax methods by the United States authorities.

A postal official who has been in the island more than a year says that when the Americans first came there were no records and no furniture even; that Spanish Postmasters, the only ones who knew anything about the service, could not be employed because of the cry, "Cuba for the Cubans," and that consequently the service had to be built up upon practically no foundation at all. He also points out that Cuban Postmasters were found very difficult to teach. The loose methods of former times have been carried on at some points even to the present day.

One feature that enabled C. F. Neely to divert funds in a fashion exceedingly difficult to detect was the custom of many Postmasters to pay cash for all stamps.

A box of pistols generally known as "bean-shooters" was found in the place of the boys in their shooting small game which they picked up about the quarry.

They were shooting at the pigeon yesterday afternoon when young Borgarding fell to his death.
