SORROWS OF ASTOR—His Daughter's Heart Involved in the Miine Affair—May Have to Fight a Duel.

SPECIAL BY CABLE. London, July 21.—Copyright, 1900, by W. R. Hearst.—An altogether new complexion has been put upon the Astor-Miine controversy by the discovery that the ex-American multi-millionaire compelled the Baronet to leave his home on the night of the memorable concert a fortnight or so ago because he objected to Sir Archibald's suit for the hand of his only daughter, Pauline.

It was Miss Astor who invited the Baronet to the entertainment, but without her father's knowledge or approval. It is wrong, therefore, to state that Sir Archibald was Carlton House Terrace without an invitation. Moreover, the encounter with Mr. Astor did not take place as was entering the salon. It was after a tete-a-tete between the Baronet and the heiress in a secluded corner of the winter garden—a tete-a-tete which was suddenly interrupted by the infuriated father.

According to the story obtained by The Republic correspondent from a lady of rank, who has been in many respects the confidante of the lovers, and who has furnished them with a number of opportunities for meeting one another, Miss Astor made the acquaintance of Sir Archibald Miine at a theater party at her Majesty's theater last winter. Sir Archibald is a very handsome, tall man, with most perfect manners, and of very old and aristocratic family, an old man of the Duke of York, with whom he served on several ships, and a particular favorite of the Prince and Princess of Wales.

It was a case of love at first sight between the Captain and Miss Astor. They became the most intimate of friends, and social functions, such as dinners, receptions, balls, etc., and more recently quite a number of dinners have been given by kindly interested friends of one and the other for the express purpose of enabling them to meet. At all such entertainments the two lovers were invariably placed side by side at the table.

GREAT SUCCESS OF AMERICANS IN THE INTERNATIONAL SPORTS.

BY ARCHBISHOP IRELAND. Paris, July 21.—The success of the Americans in the international sports has assumed European, as it is the most remarkable series of victories ever won by one nation. Furthermore, they have proved the superiority of the training methods used in universities and colleges of the United States.

BY JAMES E. SULLIVAN. (President Knickerbocker Athletic Club.) Paris, July 21.—Americans excel in athletics because they go heart and soul into the contests. They use in sports the same vim which characterizes the success of the American business man, and that explains our winning so many prizes at Paris, London, Athens and elsewhere.

BY SPALDING DE GARMENIA. (Assistant Director of Athletic Sports.) Paris, July 21.—Our various intercollegiate contests bring out our best men. Competition between them is keen, and we have so many colleges and universities that some of our contests are almost as important as the international events here.

MRS. PALMER ROBBED—Queen of American Colony at Paris Loses Diamonds Worth $17,000.

SPECIAL BY CABLE. Paris, July 21.—Copyright, 1900, by W. R. Hearst.—A thrill of surprise went through the American colony to-day. A great crime has been committed—a crime of larceny, which is bad enough—but worse than that, a crime of less magnitude.

The royal apartments of the Queen of the colony, Mrs. Potter Palmer, have been entered and robbed. A splendid diamond necklace which had often adorned her regal neck had been seized in sacrilegious hands and borne away.

It was a mere trifle of $17,000—does not figure at all in the calculations of the wife of the American millionaire who could draw a check for a dozen more $17,000 diamond necklaces, without making any appreciable diminution of her pin money account.

commanding them in time of crises like the present. Mrs. Palmer's Social Strength. Then followed a deep indignation. But it was to no purpose. Not a ray of light was shed upon the mystery. No one had seen a stranger in the house. No one dared breathe suspicion against the trusted retainers within it.

GOSSIP OF LONDON—Intense Heat Is Depopulating Theaters and Opera and Causing Styles to Change.

SPECIAL BY CABLE. London, July 21.—Copyright, 1900, by the New York Herald Company.—The heat and nothing else is talked about here. There is something curious in this London heat, which seems to have a most exaggerated effect upon Americans. Would you believe it? I have just met an American from South Texas, sailing from Galveston, and here he was found sitting in a condition of collapse.

It is the moisture in the atmosphere which makes the heat here felt with double force. Truly the heat is serious. It has, among other things, emptied the theaters, whose managers are making hasty preparations for closing. It is about time, if one can judge from the perspiring aspect of the poor actors as I saw them last night. At the Hippodrome, the director has introduced an innovation which seems to be popular. That is, the serving of iced lemonade to the entire audience from box to gallery. It makes rather a cool advertisement. Last night at the opera, which, on Monday, began its week, the sight of moving fans all around the theater was a peculiar effect, all one far from a restful kind.

fully dressed, has been a very constant occupant of a box on the pit tier. Next but one to Mrs. Mackay, on the pit tier, has been Mrs. Arthur Power, who organized the grand concert a while ago in this very house, with her daughter, just out. Mrs. Power, Lady Evers and Mr. Burns have also been prominent. There have been many more Americans, but these mentioned go to show that United States society has been right well represented.

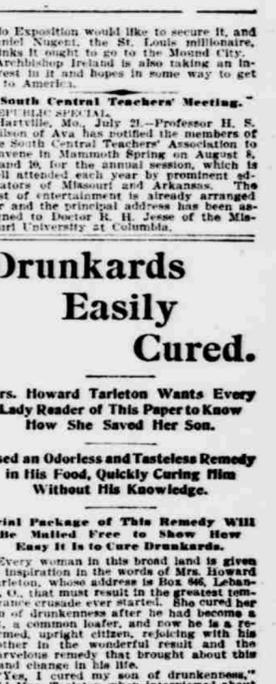

It was a head-killing style. The heat has brought about curious changes. Fashionable men, during the past few days, have thrown what is generally held to be the correct dress for the season to the winds. Yesterday was Eloppea Stakes Day, the smartest meeting of the year. With the exception of a few white ties, worn by some of the older aristocrats, there was not a high hat to be seen, whereas in former years no one would have been seen without one.

TROOPS FOR CHINA.

First Contingent of American Soldiers Starts West To-Day. REBELS' SPECIAL. New York, July 21.—The transport Morgan arrived in port to-day with the first contingent of troops from Cuba en route to China. There are 24 men and seven officers in the party. They will proceed west to-morrow, going by way of Port Snelling.

RUSSIA ACTS BOLDLY—Czar Hurrying Troops to Invade and Conquer North China.

Copyright, 1900, by the Associated Press. Berlin, July 21.—The Chinese situation takes on a radically different shape from the news which has reached here from Russia. What Europe hitherto knew about the troubles in Manchuria was what the Russian Government chose to pass. Now a number of reports, some of them official, but a majority private, have reached here from St. Petersburg, which tally in the main and paint the situation in Chinese Manchuria, and along the 1,500 kilometers of borderland on the Siberian side of which the Amur River forms a frontier, as much more dangerous for Russia than has hitherto been supposed.

needed addition by the establishment of a series of post-graduate technical courses for master bakers, leather manufacturers, brewers, millers, blacksmiths and cooper-smiths in various towns. The German newspapers this week contained much editorial comment and notes regarding the American political campaign and compared it with the Russian one. BIG PARIS TELESCOPE.

Rome Wants It, So Do Archbishop Ireland and Mr. Nugent. The Marquis of Lansdowne, Minister of War, referring in the House of Lords to Lord Roberts's telegram, announcing the death of the late young Canadian officers, Lieutenants Borden and Birch, in defiance of the British position in the engagement on July 16, paid a glowing tribute to the Canadian volunteers, saying: "It is a great honor to me to issue a biography of the great art-vertiser, considering that Mr. Ruskin's 'Fragments' and Colingwood's biography are sufficient. However, the executors of his estate representative selections from Mr. Ruskin's diaries and letters.

all the time and yet he was good to me. I managed to scrape along, but it was a dreadful struggle, and never a night did I sleep undisturbed by the thought of my son. I rarely came home till near daylight, and how he ever stood it all these years, I don't know. What cured him was a remedy called Golden Specific, a powder to be mixed with coffee or food, or anything you like to eat. I gave it to him, and he was cured. I gave it to my husband, son or brother, and thus save him from a life that must eventually prove his complete ruin. Do not fail to write at once for this free trial package.
