

YALE MEETS HARVARD ON GRIDIRON

Great Contest of the Year for Football Honors to Take Place on Yale Field.

ENTHUSIASM INTENSE.

New Haven Filled With Excited Students—Both Elevens in Superb Form.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 23.—The Yale football eleven went through a twenty-minute half of only snail practice this evening with a quickness of movement and occasional flashes of formations that pleased the coaches.

Frank Hinckley, who came this morning, expressing himself as well pleased with the showing, Coy and Gould, the ends, who had worked for an hour in the morning under Hinckley's tutelage, did well.

After the signal practice the seniors of the squad danced about a bonfire in the traditional way. It is a sort of superstition with Yale football men that the bonfire is not laid except by the building of bonfires.

Portions of discarded uniforms are soaked in kerosene oil and the material applied. "All seniors in the squad come this way," said Captain Brown, when Trainer Murphy had set the fire.

Played Like Boys in Straw Stack. The whole squad then stopped with Captain Brown and listened to just a few words of thanks from him. When he finished with a command to take the car to the gymnasium, O'Leary and Stillman broke into a race down the field for the straw stack.

Harvard's first contingent of 200 men arrived in a special train from Cambridge. The students marched through the streets shouting. They had a little money permitted to spend and the early evening hours in the hotel corridors, or on the campus.

Carriage men to-day made contracts for the night. The local street railway company will start 30 cars, every one on wheels, to run on the Yale field at noon.

Harvard's unexpected work of the Meriden coach, Nov. 21.—The work of the Harvard team this evening was very satisfactory, indeed, to coaches Boal, Lewis, Forbes, Dibbler, Dean and Hardin.

At length the Meriden populace outside the gates became very demonstrative, and finally were admitted to see Burnett kick off a couple of times to give the men practice in forming a flying interference on kick-off.

Tater and Daly did splendid work in returning punts, and K. Kendall sent the other between the uprights from place-kicks on the thirty-five and forty yard lines.

The pretty feature of the day was the last thing of the practice. Daly walked his men slowly at entire length of the field, and then, at a signal, the whole bunch broke into a race for the gridiron, with such speed and force that they reeled the goal posts over.

WHAT THE COACHES AND CAPTAINS SAY.

BY F. GORDON BROWN, CAPTAIN OF YALE ELEVEN.

It has not been the custom for Yale football captains to discuss the team or its chances. Suffice it to say, we are all in good condition.

BY MALCOLM McPHERD, HEAD COACH OF YALE ELEVEN.

The men who have been in charge of the team are confident that the players will do their best. If they do, that will be sufficient. We are very hopeful, but do not wish to prophesy.

BY CHARLES DUDLEY DALY, CAPTAIN HARVARD ELEVEN.

I don't want to say anything. I don't know who will win. No one knows. We have an equal chance. I don't believe Yale is superior to Harvard.

BY "BEN" DIBBLER, HEAD COACH HARVARD ELEVEN.

I would prefer not to say anything about the game. I think, however, that the score will be small, which is a good thing. We have an equal chance with Yale, as our men are well prepared for the battle. We have had one or two who were a trifle under the weather after the game with Pennsylvania and because of hard practice. They are all right.

BY "JACK" McMASTERS, TRAINER OF THE TEAM.

McMasters, the trainer of the team, who has perfect confidence in the men and who says that the team floating the crimson can win. His reason for the position that he takes is that the Harvard men are faster than their opponents to-morrow.

JOCKEY TOD SLOAN Believes They Are at the Bottom of the Whole Trouble Over Americans.

Believes They Are at the Bottom of the Whole Trouble Over Americans.

HIS OPINION OF LORD DURHAM.

Says the Englishman Is Not Opposed to Americans as a Nation—Gardiner Story Is Branded as False.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Nov. 23.—Having enjoyed a day's rest after a very trying trip across the Atlantic in the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, Jockey Tod Sloan had almost recovered his equilibrium when seen at the Victoria Hotel to-night. He was not going to sit down to dinner in evening dress. His first question, when English racing news was touched on, was:

"Did you see Lord Durham's telegram to the stewards? I don't think Lord Durham is opposed to Americans as a nation, nor to any particular jockey or trainer. I agree entirely with what Mr. Gardiner said and think that he is the whole trouble. There is one fellow in particular that tried to pass himself as me, and another time called himself 'Sloot's' Martin, and when that was found out against him he palmed himself off as my brother. Of course, he deceived many persons, and that began to give me some idea of the fellow. I don't know how he got away from me, but I don't think I would have any more to do with him. I don't think I would have any more to do with him. I don't think I would have any more to do with him."

Wales's Contract. "What about your engagement to ride for the Prince of Wales?"

"I never was really retained. Had it not been for all this talk, though, there is no doubt I would have been. I do not anticipate the trouble in getting a license to ride in England or anywhere else. I have seen a lot of trouble. I don't let me do I manage any horse's stable. That report that I was Frank Gardner's agent is the biggest non-sense I have heard of."

"Frank Gardner is a very rich man, in poor health, and his friends advised him to go into racing as a recreation, and as a means of making his money. He is interested in our sport. Newhouse introduced me to him and Mr. Gardner asked me what I advised him to do. I told him racing was not a good business, and he did not want to make a failure. He went in for it, and wanted to know if I would help him. I said I would in any manner he required my assistance, and he told me to buy some horses for him, and find out the only way to succeed was to improve the stock from America."

"I told him I was a trainer and buy him some horses, but that it was not a good business. He said he would like to ride them, and I would myself. I bought him a few horses, and he came over to ride them, but I had only a few days with him, and he only knew me slightly. He has since advised him to bet. My opinion in the Cambridgehire was considered to have no value. He has since advised him to bet. My opinion in the Cambridgehire was considered to have no value. He has since advised him to bet.
