

CRUSTY OLD GUIDE SAYS MISS MORGAN CAN'T SHOOT.

MISS ANNA MORGAN.

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Aug. 24.—One of the guides who has been plotting the hunting party of which Miss Anna Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, is a member, in the White River country, has returned to Glenwood Springs for supplies.

"Only the other day," said he, "Miss Morgan failed to hit a deer at close range, although she shot at the animal three times. This was considerably exasperated, but she had buckled and was well, let it pass."

CANADA NAMED EDWARD'S NEW TITLE

Salisbury Largely Accepted Suggestions Made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Cabinet.

ALL COLONIES HEARD FROM.

Would Be Comprehensive Enough to Cover the Extent of the British Dominion.

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—If Edward VII is not titular "King of Canada" to-day it is chiefly due to the Canadian Cabinet, whose advice respecting the style and title of the sovereign was adopted by the British Prime Minister, recommended to his Majesty and accepted by him.

"I, therefore, venture to suggest 'King of Great Britain and Ireland and of Greater Britain Beyond the Seas.'"

"It is possible that some of the self-governing colonies might desire the following message to Lord Minto, in Canada, and Lord Hopetoun, in Australia:

"I request that you will consult your Ministers most confidentially and inquire whether such recognition by the King would be gratifying to them, and if so, whether they approve of the proposed style."

Canada in reply suggested two phrases, as follows: "King of Great Britain and Ireland, Emperor of India, King (or Sovereign) of Canada, Australia, South Africa and all the British Possessions Beyond the Seas."

Australia's suggested title was: "Of Great Britain and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India and Sovereign Lord of the British Realms Beyond the Seas."

These suggestions were communicated to the other self-governing colonies, which replied as follows:

Natal—"King of All the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, and Emperor of India."

New Zealand—"King of All the British Dominions Beyond the Seas."

All the colonial Governments expressed gratitude to the present title, if foregoing be thought unfair to smaller colonies or otherwise objectionable. "King (or Sovereign) of all the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, and Emperor of India and Sovereign Lord of the British Realms Beyond the Seas."

EAGER TO SUPPRESS CRISPI'S PAPERS.

Italian Government Fears That They Would Reveal Too Many Discreditable Secrets.

OLD PREMIER KEPT A DIARY.

Supposition Is That in Its Pages May Be Found His Version of the Intrigues Behind Adowa.

London, Aug. 24.—The Italian Government's eagerness to take charge of Signor Crispi's papers immediately upon his death has been reported by the Rome correspondent of the Express.

The prize that the Italian Government is supposed to be trying to secure (though it is stated that Crispi's family have smuggled it away to a place of safety) is certainly a big one. Crispi is believed to have kept a political diary for nearly forty years, from the time when Italy was still minus Venice and Rome, and to have later added notes and comments thereto.

But everybody does not know the political intrigues that lay behind Adowa. Crispi, who was opposed to the Erythraean venture altogether and only carried it out because Italy's honor was already involved, mistrusted Baratieri, had forbidden him to move about with his private diary, but Crispi had permitted him.

But what was the full extent of the King's responsibility?

rumors darkly hinted that Crispi's bitter enemies at court, possibly in league with the French, deliberately aimed at an Italian reverse with a view to discrediting Crispi, and that Baron, who had secretly agreed, behind Crispi's back, to make the fatal attack.

Mr. W. J. Stillman, Crispi's firm adviser and champion, insisted, in his biography of Crispi, that at least the War Office, King and court cabined against the Premier. None who could know anything of Crispi's confidential character will suspect him of any baseness, but it is probable that at some moment the moving panorama of bleak Indian Territory struck the Premier.

Crispi himself, the converted Republican and staunch Monarchist, would probably have been the last to wish to make trouble for his King and country by spilling his secrets, as Baratieri did in his revelation of his double-dealing with Austria and Russia, and it is always the duty of an indiscreet editor, and the Italian Government may naturally prefer to be on the safe side.

It is a pity that Stillman has just died, too. The passing of the subject of his biography, and the revelation of his double-dealing with Austria and Russia, and it is always the duty of an indiscreet editor, and the Italian Government may naturally prefer to be on the safe side.

PULLMAN CONDUCTOR HAS VIVID RECOLLECTION OF "KATY" HOLD-UP.

C. P. Baranco Was Making His Maiden Trip When His Train Was Robbed at Caney Station, I. T.

HIS LIFE THrice THREATENED.

He Had Advised His Passengers to Conceal Their Valuables and Thereby Aroused the Anger of the Bandit Chief.

"I knelt in prayer before the robber. The cold steel of his pistol pressed into my flesh. He bade me prepare for death, and with that terrible of Crispi, that at least the War Office, King and court cabined against the Premier. None who could know anything of Crispi's confidential character will suspect him of any baseness, but it is probable that at some moment the moving panorama of bleak Indian Territory struck the Premier.

CLARENCE P. BARANCO.

fronted us. I was conscious of nothing but a solemn stillness and the hard, cold steel of the revolver. "Oh, I thought you had a gun," he remarked gaily. "All right, open the door." I did so, but nothing was found. Then he took out his revolver and held it before him. "I will give each of you two minutes to get those things out of your pockets. If you do not produce them in all up with every one of you." "There was a distinct ticking of the watch. Both robbers seemed to nervously consult the pocket watch. At intervals of several seconds a shot would pass the window. The passengers hurriedly consulted with the demand for tribute. Each produced his money and was ordered to deposit it on the floor. The money fell into the hands of the bandit chief. After securing enough to satisfy the robbers, he turned to the passengers and said: "Gentlemen, you have given me more trouble than the passengers forward. We are going to march, boys," was the command to the train conductor and the express messenger. The conductor and the express messenger fell into the open mouth of the platform. All of us lay flat in the aisle to avoid the fusillade that we expected, but it did not come. This part of the robbery I witnessed with my own eyes, but I was told several tales of incidents that happened in the day coaches while the gang was going through the train.

VAST GROWTH OF OUR COAL TRADE.

Exports From the United States Have Doubled Within Four Years.

IS THIRD IN LIST OF NATIONS.

Great Britain First and Germany Is Second—Prices Smaller Here Than in Either of the Other Countries.

Washington, Aug. 24.—Coal exportations from the United States during the fiscal year just ended, as shown by the Treasury Bureau of Statistics, amounted to $2,217,496, against $1,002,513 in the fiscal year 1900; $1,615,258 in 1899, $1,066,943 in 1897, $1,066,943 in 1895 and $2,314,205 in 1897.

Thus the value of coal exportations from the United States has doubled since 1897 and nearly tripled in the decade.

These figures relate to values. Measured by quantity the increase has been even greater, the exports in 1901 being 7,638,139 tons, against 3,200,000 in 1897, thus making the total exports of 1901 in quantity more than three times as much as in 1897.

The United States now stands third in the list of coal-exporting countries of the world. The coal export figures of the principal countries of the world in 1899 show that while Belgium slightly exceeded the United States in the total number of tons exported, her exports were more than one-half as great as her exports, making her net exportation of coal much less than that of the United States.

The figures of coal exports during 1900 recently published by the British Government, of which the United States is a member, show that the coal exports of the three principal coal-exporting countries in 1900 were: United States, 7,638,139 tons; Germany, 15,650,000 tons; and Belgium, 18,800,000 tons.

Rapid Advance Made. Thus, while the growth of the coal exports from the United States shows a large percentage of increase, these figures of the exportation of coal from Germany and the United Kingdom show that the countries occupied by these countries is still much larger than that which the United States now supplies.

In growth of both exports and production, however, the United States had made much more rapidly in the United Kingdom. The total quantity of coal produced in the United Kingdom was, in 1898, 138,000,000 tons, and in 1900, 152,000,000 tons, while in the United States the production was, in 1898, 106,000,000 tons, and in 1900, 125,000,000 tons.

The cost of coal has meantime increased much more rapidly in the United Kingdom than in the United States. The price of the 12,000,000 tons of coal mined in the United Kingdom in 1900 was $23,000,000, or $1.92 per ton, while the price of the 15,000,000 tons of coal mined in the United States in 1900 was $15,000,000, or $1.00 per ton.

Prices Are Low. On the other hand, the price of the 100,000,000 tons of coal mined in the United States in 1898 was $100,000,000, or $1.00 per ton, and in 1900, $125,000,000, or $1.25 per ton.

The relative increase in the cost of coal in the United Kingdom and the United States is shown in an even more striking form by the statement of the British Government given above referred to by a table which gives the price per ton of coal in the United Kingdom and the United States in 1888 and 1900 respectively. It shows that the price in the United Kingdom advanced from 1888 to 1900, while the United States fell from 64 to 52 pence per ton, or a decrease of 18 pence.

The same statement shows the relative value per ton of coal produced taken at the same time in the United States, United Kingdom, Germany, France and Belgium in 1898 to be as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Country, Value per ton. United Kingdom: 1.92; United States: 1.25; Germany: 1.00; France: 1.00; Belgium: 1.00.
