KERENS TALKS OF BUSY ST. LOUIS.

Declares the City is Prospering Beyond the Comprehension of Many.

BOOMING THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Says Business Has Superseded Politics—Then Does a Little Prophesying From His Own Standpoint.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Oct. 31.—Richard C. Kerens of St. Louis, who is stopping in this city, is as optimistic as ever concerning the prosperity of the country, particularly the Southwest.

"Business in the Southwest," said Mr. Kerens in an interview to-day, "is at high-water mark. There are no exceptions to this rule. The city of St. Louis has prospered beyond the comprehension of many people. It is a manufacturing city, sending its goods and wares throughout a wide territory, a thousand miles to the Gulf of Mexico on the south, clear to the Rocky Mountains on the west and Southern Hills on the east, while it shares the trade to the north with Chicago.

"A feature of the trade expansion is in its trade relations with Mexico. This business is growing rapidly. The Republic of Mexico purchased in St. Louis mining machinery, hardware, cutlery, engines and the machinery to go with them, furniture and a large variety of other manufactured articles. The hardware trade in Mexico was formerly held exclusively by Germany, but this country is slowly and surely wresting it away from them.

St. Louisans interested in Old Mexico. "A new industry in Mexico, in which St. Louis capital is invested, is the petroleum industry. Oil has been discovered in large quantities near Tampico. One company has purchased about 600,000 acres of this domain which is oil-bearing territory. Wells are being bored rapidly and already this company, the Mexican Petroleum Company, is preparing to complete the boring of fifty wells. Well No. 1 produces an average of fifty barrels a day of petroleum asphaltum. The company has a concession from the Government by which it is possible to import machinery free for ten years, and several carloads have been imported already.

Mr. Kerens then referred to the good that was to result to this country and the Latin republics from the Louisiana Purchase Exposition to be held in St. Louis. He referred to the high price of labor as an indication of the prosperity of business and to the unprecedented bank clearings of St. Louis, which city is able to finance the business of the Southwest this year without drawing on New York. When asked about the Missouri political situation, he replied:

"There are no politics this year. There is no election, no presidential election, no Missouri political agitation. The Republicans feel that they will soon redeem the State from Democratic ring rule. They really won in the presidential election of 1896, but were cheated out of it by the St. Louis 'Goesel' law, better known in Missouri as the Nesbit law, re-enforced as it was by a police law which turned over the management of the city to the police. With these infamous laws wiped from the statute books the government of the city would easily be wrested from the hands of the Statehouse ring at Jefferson City."

JAMES E. HOW SELLS PAPERS.

Heir to Large Fortune Would Organize Newsboys' Union.

James Edna How, grandson of the builder of the Eads Bridge, heir to a large fortune and donor of large sums to the poor of St. Louis, is selling newspapers daily at Twelfth and Olive streets.

Mr. How is a Socialist. His present purpose is to gain the confidence of the newsboys that he may organize them into a cooperative union and stock company, where every member will have a share in the profits which now go to the middlemen, or distributing agents.

Besides conducting in their work, Mr. How desires that the boys be able to rent a clubroom or rendezvous where they may read and have free baths. Mr. How wants to see a newspaper and a pure and instructive kind is supplied, but he desires that the boys shall feel that they themselves are combining, able and independent.

That the boys and girls of cities are the ones in whom Socialists must work to find their converts, Mr. How has long maintained. He did mission work among children at Ninth and Washington streets for many years, combining Bible lessons with instruction on social topics. For how long he will himself continue selling papers Mr. How has not said.

SECURES HORSE AFTER A YEAR.

George Zwilling Recovers an Animal Stolen Months Ago.

George Zwilling, a farmer living near Dwyer, St. Louis County, recovered a horse in St. Louis Wednesday that was stolen from him over a year ago. Tuesday he received an anonymous letter stating that if he would come to a place on King's highway, he could see the horse. Wednesday afternoon he would find his horse hitched to a post.

Zwilling suggests that you simply unhitch the horse, mount him and ride away without any inquiries," said the writer. "In that way you escape paying the reward that you have offered for the recovery of the animal. If questions are asked it might lead to embarrassing situations for several people."

Zwilling went to the place Wednesday and found his horse hitched where the writer said he would be. The place is a famous watering resort for farmers and gardeners who drive in from the country, and is also much frequented by drivers of delivery wagons in that part of the city.

Mr. Zwilling can offer no explanation of the matter. The horse was stolen of his father, August Zwilling, and had been missing until Wednesday.

EARL RUSSELL WEDS WIFE SECOND TIME.

Declares He Did This to Conform With Laws of England.

HAS SERVED A JAIL SENTENCE.

Expect to Return to United States in 1902—Hopes Everybody Will Be Satisfied.

SPECIAL BY CABLE. London, Oct. 31.—Earl Russell and Molly Somerville were remarried to-day at Holborn. The Countess said to-day that she and the Earl would not return to Nevada until 1902.

Earl Russell obtained in Nevada a divorce from his former wife and there married Molly Somerville. The divorce was not deemed legal here and the Earl was prosecuted before the House of Lords on a charge of bigamy. He was convicted and has only recently served out a jail sentence. Since then his former wife has obtained an absolute divorce from the Earl and today's ceremony was designed to make legal here the marriage contracted in Nevada.

Before the ceremony Earl Russell declared: "I do this in order to be in conformity with the laws of my country, with a lady already my wife. The ceremony in no sense implies that the Nevada marriage was void. Now I hope everybody will be satisfied."

Earl Russell is not yet thirty-five years old. Descendant of the famous Lord Russell, who was Premier of Great Britain, he was married to Patricia Russell, Miss Mabel Edith Scott, youngest daughter of Sir Claude Edward Scott. His domestic troubles first became public at the end of 1897, when the Countess Russell filed for divorce, based on charges of cruelty and misconduct on his yacht. This suit the Countess lost and the Earl secured a separation.

Earl Russell early in 1900 visited the United States, and while in Reno, Nev., secured a divorce and was married to Mollie Cook Somerville, whom he met at Glenbrook, Nev., a summer resort on the shores of Lake Tahoe. They had been living for several months previous in Nevada, where they each secured a decree of divorce from their respective partners in life.

Earl Russell returned to England May 7, 1900, and was then informed that his wife, the Countess, had brought suit for divorce. He said he was not surprised at anything his first wife did. The Countess went on the stage. The English courts did not recognize the Earl's Nevada divorce and she was confined this week. The Earl last summer was tried before the House of Lords and sentenced to six months' imprisonment, having only recently been released.

FUNERAL OF H. W. HOLLMANN.

Death Occurs Near Date Set for His Wedding.

The funeral of Henry W. Hollmann, who died at the commission-house of his father, Henry C. Hollmann, at No. 23 North Third street, last Tuesday, six days before the time set for his marriage to Miss Agatha Kuehnemeyer, of No. 384 Indiana avenue, took place yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended by friends both of the young man and his prospective bride.

The same minister that was to have performed the marriage ceremony next Wednesday read the burial service, and the same friends who were to have attended the nuptial festivities stood about the coffin to pay their last respects to their dead comrade.

Miss Kuehnemeyer, in the somber garb of mourning, followed the body of her fiancé to the cemetery.

The pallbearers, all friends of the dead young man, were: Adolph Vogler and John Soel. A quartet, composed of two male and two female voices, sang hymns after the reading of the burial services by the Reverend Reinhard Lengens.

Henry W. Hollmann was stricken with a hemorrhage Tuesday afternoon while at work in the commission-house of his father, and before he could be taken to the hospital he died. A few minutes before his death young Hollmann had been speaking through the telephone to sufficient persons to inform him that she was coming uptown to make some purchases for their future home. Hollmann turned from the phone to aid in the moving of a box of produce when he received the stroke that caused his death.

ROMBAUER TO MAKE REPORT.

Will Advise School Board Regarding Sources of Revenue.

Judge Rombauer has been instructed by the Finance Committee of the Board of Education to prepare a report on the advisability of proceeding against the State Board of Equalization on the grounds that it has failed to provide as much revenue for the schools as it is possible if more property were taxed at higher valuations.

Judge Rombauer said yesterday that very little more revenue was now obtained than before the Board of Equalization went to work. The Board of Equalization followed the reading of a decision by the Illinois Supreme Court in the case of the State of Illinois against the Board of Equalization of Illinois. The Illinois court held that the Board of Equalization was an original assessor, and that it may be forced by mandamus to tax capital stock, bonds and franchises in the same block with other property.

FILED SUIT AGAINST MOTHER.

Miss Helen A. Rooney Wants Damages From Parent.

Helen A. Rooney sued her mother, Mrs. Margaret A. Rooney, of No. 1321 Graham avenue, in Justice Robertson's court yesterday for $476 damages, alleging that her mother removed the same and other buildings, and a top of a cistern and a pump from a 40-foot lot owned by the plaintiff in a same block with her mother's residence.

Miss Rooney's lot was needed to be by her parents some years ago in consideration for money which she loaned her father, who is now deceased. Miss Rooney is a seamstress and lived at home. Her father owned other property adjoining the lot which was needed to be by her parents and she is living on it now.

After her father's death Miss Rooney disagreed with her mother, left home and went to live with a neighbor. It is stated, she had placed on her lot the improvements which she charges her mother removed.

A Hint to Our Business Men. Everything tends to prove that our coming World's Fair will be the greatest and finest the world has ever seen. We must be ready not only to welcome the world, but to show it our New St. Louis, made beautiful by the highest art and science, but we must also be able to attend to welcome and converse with them. We must study Foreign Languages and become linguists.

There are thousands of schools and teachers of languages in St. Louis, and many are very efficient. The way to learn a foreign language is to study it. The best results is to employ the Natural Methods represented by the Victor, Sauveur and Berlitz Schools.

SITE FOR THE BARNES HOSPITAL.

Ground at Glasgow Place and Garrison Avenue May Not Be Used.

It is possible that the site purchased four years ago at the corner of Glasgow place and Garrison avenue for the proposed Robert A. Barnes Hospital, will be sold by the trustees and some other location chosen. This is contemplated because of present conditions which did not exist at the time the property was purchased.

With the proceeds that will be derived from the sale, if the land is disposed of, some other site will be selected that is more suitable to the purpose of the building, which contemplate establishing with the legacy left by Mr. Barnes a refuge for the sick among the most modern lines.

The delay in starting the construction of the hospital is due to a clause in Mr. Barnes' will which provided that only $50,000 should be used for building purposes. The remainder of the $100,000 donated constitutes a sacred fund which cannot be used excepting for the support and maintenance of the institution. As a hospital in proportion to such endowment could not be built with the money set apart for its construction, and it was the particular wish of the donor that no other gifts should be solicited, the trustees have been forced to wait until sufficient revenue shall accrue from interest on the money in their hands before they can carry out the wishes of Mr. Barnes.

This sum has been growing constantly and it is expected that within four years the time set for the completion of the handsome endowment which will enable it to do a great work in St. Louis in years to come. Along with the building, trustees a hospital will be constructed that will cost in the neighborhood of $250,000, including furnishings and equipment.

Smith P. Galt, who is one of the trustees, has, in the nine years that have intervened since Mr. Barnes' death, ideas of the kind of deal of study to hospitals and has visited some of the largest ones in the country. He has found many ideas that will be useful to him and the other trustees when the hospital is to be built. Mr. Galt realizes as much as any one the great need of institutions of this kind in St. Louis and he is anxious to see that the trustees are doing all they can to hurry the construction of the new institution and at the same time to carry out the wishes of Mr. Barnes.

At present the matter is in statu quo and no more revenue will be made by the fund, which must increase from the interest derived from investments of the principal, and the trustees will be endeavoring to insure the completion of the work.

Set Fire to Livestock Stable While They Crave a Safe.

Larned, Kas., Oct. 31.—A big lively barn was burned early this morning, together with twenty-five head of horses and a large lot of bugles and harness. At the same time, the Santa Fe safe was blown to pieces with dynamite and the depot badly wrecked. It is believed the safe-blowers set the livestock stable on fire in order to attract the crowd to another part of town while they worked on the Santa Fe safe. Over a dozen shots were exchanged between the robbers and citizens who rushed to the depot. In the darkness and confusion the robbers escaped. They secured no booty.

JAMES JACKSON ON TRIAL.

Accused of Attempting to Cast an Illegal Vote.

James Jackson, a negro, was placed on trial in Judge Wood's division of the Criminal Court yesterday on a charge of attempted illegal voting. It is charged that he tried to vote the name of Littleton Walker, a negro, at the Eleventh Precinct of the Fifteenth Ward at the spring election.

Norman Florheim, a Republican challenger at the polling place, is the main witness for the State. He said he knew both Jackson and Walker. He testified that Jackson came in and asked for a ballot, giving the name of Walker. Immediately Florheim challenged the vote and Jackson, he said, left the place. The State rested last night and the defense will begin to-day.

Jackson was tried on the same charge last spring, but the jury disagreed and a new trial was ordered.

FIGHT AGAINST SALOON MUSIC.

Warrants Are Issued Against Three Alleged Violators.

Three warrants charging violations of the Newbury law, which prohibits the keeping of musical instruments in saloons, were issued yesterday. The defendants are: Tom Allen, of No. 619 Market street; Ben Staedemeyer, proprietor of the Ohio saloon, at Seventh and Market streets, and Morris Fleischman, of No. 510 Market street. Allen has a piano in his place. Fleischman has a large music box, and the Ohio is provided with an "orchestration," a large automatic music machine which makes music similar to that of an orchestra.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Johnson assured Captain Reynolds of the Central District that he would issue warrants in all cases, no matter with what kind of a musical instrument a saloon is provided.
