

WITNESSES TESTIFY AT THE FIFE TRIAL

State Is Trying to Forestall Efforts of the Defense to Establish an Alibi.

WHEN FIFE WAS AT OWL CLUB.

Defendant Was Slightly Nervous During the Day, but Listened Intently to All That Was Said.

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Savannah, Mo., March 11.—The State this afternoon made a determined effort to break down the alibi which it has been announced the defense will attempt to prove for Stewart Fife. Witnesses were called who swore that Fife was not in the Owl Club on the night of the murder.

This and the frequency with which a prominent citizen's name was brought into testimony by the defense in cross-examination, afforded the chief interest of the proceedings to the crowds which thronged the courtroom.

Altogether, to-day's session was a very busy one, though delays resulted from the illness of one of the jurymen. Judge Burnes wishes to hurry the case to a conclusion, and a night sitting of court was ordered.

Effort to Hinder the Trial.

"I want to bring to your attention in this case, all the circumstances surrounding the death of Frank Richardson."

This was the plea of James W. Boyd, chief attorney for Stewart Fife, made several times to-day in the endeavor to influence Judge Burnes against the reported movements of a witness on the night of Richardson's death. The defense repeatedly endeavored to bring his name into the case.

He is a well-known and well-to-do farmer who has a close friend, Frank Richardson. His name had not hitherto figured in testimony, and he is greatly interested at the turn which the trial has taken. Two grand juries have investigated Richardson's strange death, but have not implicated him.

From all that has been established, both at this and previous trials, Richardson was killed between 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock on Christmas Eve, 1900.

E. S. Cook, cashier of the Savannah State Bank, was put on the stand in the afternoon, testified that he was in the Owl Club's room from a few minutes before 9 o'clock until 9:15 o'clock on the Christmas Eve in question. He swore that during this interval Stewart Fife was not in the Owl Club.

Visit to the Owl Club. Frank Becker, a tailor of Savannah, also told of visiting the Owl Club on the same night. The visit, according to Becker's testimony, occurred between 8:45 and 9 o'clock, and lasted five or six minutes. Becker also swore that during his stay in the Owl Club he had not seen Fife.

Attorney Boyd, in cross-examination, pushed both witnesses closely as to the exact time at which they entered and left the Owl Club. Cook stated that he was unable to tell exactly to the minute, but was approximately to Attorney Boyd, and he pressed Cook for a definite answer as to the time at which, in his best judgment, he had left the club. To this the witness replied: "About fifteen minutes after 9."

Cross-examination, Attorney Boyd proceeded to ask the coroner's inquest, in which Becker was quoted as saying that he had left the club at 9:15. Notwithstanding, Becker held to his original statement made during direct examination, that he had left about 9 o'clock.

Both witnesses told of the interior arrangements of the Owl Club, and that had Fife been in the rooms they could have seen him.

Bert Somerville, a young man of Savannah, was next put on the stand, and he stated that he had visited the Owl Club at about 8:45 o'clock and that Fife was not there at that time. He stated that he went to the club, stayed but a moment, and immediately left. He was not cross-examined.

Defendant Was Nervous. During this testimony, the defendant seemed slightly nervous, but he listened intently to what was said and leaned forward in his chair occasionally to say a few words to his attorneys. Besides, throughout the sessions of the court, his father and mother and sister, have remained continually. Mrs. Fife at all times seems composed, but Mr. Fife seems very nervous under the strain.

Many of the witnesses on the stand to-day testified at Plattsburg, and, as at that place, testimony was brought in concerning Mrs. Richardson and Stewart Fife.

The day did not pass without amusing incidents, at which the crowd of listeners laughed heartily, and which provoked Judge Burnes to threaten to make them pay heavily in fines for thus disturbing the quiet of the courtroom.

Several ladies were put on the stand, and one of the first questions asked them was "How long have you lived in Savannah?" The ladies in answer answered that they had lived in Savannah all their lives, whereupon it was necessary to ask just how long that was. The ladies objected to this telling their ages. They blushed and stammered and begged mercy of the Judge, but that question was inexorable, and the dead truth was spoken.

First Witness Called. The first witness of the day was Gail Vaught, City Marshal of Savannah. He spoke of seeing Fife on the street near the Courthouse Square here at 10 o'clock.

James Litzinger was then called. He told of running to the Richardson house when the rumor of Richardson's death spread abroad. He narrated the position of Richardson's body when he reached the house.

George Board, who was formerly a clerk in the Fife-Richardson Mercantile Company, was then summoned. He told of having seen Richardson in his store about 7:30 o'clock, but said that he had not seen Fife during the evening of December 21.

Miss Nora Terhune, who was a witness at Plattsburg, was then called. She was walking toward her home, which is near the Richardson house, at about the time Richardson was shot. But she had not heard the report of a pistol. When in front of the Richardson house she had met Mrs. Doctor

Mr. E. Brown, who also had been employed in the Fife-Richardson store, was the next witness. He said that Richardson in the store at 8:30 p. m. on the fatal night, and saw him hold a whispered conversation with his son, Frank. At 8:30 or about that time, according to Brown, Richardson left the store, saying, as he departed, "I'm going across the street."

When he formed of Richardson's death, Brown hurried to the Richardson home. He returned to the store later, however, and saw Stewart Fife there about 10 o'clock.

Frank Coffey, who also was one of the employees of the store, testified that he had seen Fife in the Richardson store after the shooting, and after he had inquired: "Is it true that Richardson is dead?"

Coffey said that about 9:30 o'clock he had been sent to the Richardson home. Attorney Boyd attempted to press him as to who sent him, but this line of questioning was cut off by Judge Burnes upon the objections of the prosecution.

Described the Wounds. Doctor C. O. Jeffries, who conducted the inquest over Richardson's body, was called and told of the exact nature of the wound which Richardson received.

A. B. Kennard told of meeting Fife at 9:30 p. m. on the night of the murder near Will Limerick's drug store.

Martin Morris told of seeing Mrs. Richardson and Fife together driving one afternoon.

J. P. Frodsham, Jr., testified to meeting Fife in Louis Leyer's saloon at Savannah at 9:15 p. m. Frodsham told that Fife at this time said that he had been up in the Owl Club asleep, and awakened, and feeling lonesome, had sought company in the saloon. Fife was at that time told of Richardson's death, and seemed greatly interested, murmuring over and over again, "Is that possible?" Fife turned away from the bar, leaving a half-glass of beer, but being called by his friends for not drinking, returned and emptied the glass.

John King, a cripple, told of talking to Fife about 8 o'clock. When Fife left King he turned round, who was in the direction of the Richardson home, and when he saw the inquest developed that Fife could have turned the other way, after stepping a few paces, without King seeing him.

The latter, Frank Rickett, was called and was closely questioned concerning the pistol. He carefully described the condition of the pistol when it was discovered.

Mrs. Richardson and Stewart Fife together at about 11:30 p. m. on a Savannah street, in August or September, 1900. Testimony brought forward at Plattsburg explained the circumstances of the shooting.

McDaniel was called to corroborate Glinter's statements, but the latter was somewhat tangled up in cross-examination.

Movement of Mrs. Richardson. Frank Rice testified that he had seen Mrs. Richardson going toward the central section of Savannah, where he had already passed Stewart Fife. It was late at night and about the same date as indicated by McDaniel and Stewart Fife together at Plattsburg, since he "wanted to go to Plattsburg and wanted to have his expenses paid." He also stated that he had seen Mrs. Richardson at the Fife car on his morning, though he denied that he had wanted to testify in the case.

Altogether, twenty-five witnesses were examined to-day. The State is expected to call fully as many more, and the defense has issued several subpoenas.

Judge Burnes adjourned court at 9 o'clock until the same hour to-morrow morning.

Witness Missing. One of the State's best witnesses in the case of Stewart Fife, charged with the murder of Frank W. Richardson, is missing. The witness is E. E. Norris of St. Louis, Missouri. Norris was expected to swear that Fife was in his saloon before the killing of Richardson. He did not respond when his name was called to-day, and Judge Burnes issued a subpoena for him. Norris was not found, and the word came back that he had apparently disappeared.

CUPID HAS A MERRY GAME AT ST. LOUIS UNION STATION.

John Fitzgerald, a Ticket Seller, Weds Miss Deegan, the Matron.

Cupid, looking through the grating in front of the ticket office at Union Station the day the building was dedicated, beheld ten clerks, all single, young and handsome and immediately recognized a fertile field for his matrimonial schemes. That day eight of those clerks have been drawn into his net and a ninth will join the ranks of the beneficiaries this morning at Carrollton, Ill.

Monday John Fitzgerald, a clerk in the auditing department of the ticket office, and Miss Sallie Deegan, matron of the second-class waiting-room, were quietly married by the Reverend Father James McFarlane of St. Xavier's Church.

Over two weeks ago Miss Deegan notified Stationmaster Coakley of her intended marriage and her resignation as matron in the waiting-room. She took effect Monday. Fitzgerald, however, did not tell any one of his anticipated marriage, and even his brother, William Fitzgerald, who is also employed in the ticket office, knew nothing of the affair until yesterday morning.

Fitzgerald met Miss Deegan shortly after Union Station opened and their engagement has lasted ever since that period.

Last night the clerks were making bets on the time that would elapse before the remaining bachelor taken on the job of matrimony, and he has been advised to soon join the happy band, and then Union Station Benedict Society can be formed.

Stationmaster Jerry Coakley, when asked to explain the reason that all his ticket-sellers were rapidly joining the list of the married men, said that for it Cupid is certainly getting in his work.

COURT ADMINISTRATORS REBUKE TO JURY

Judge Ryan Thinks Verdict in La Bee Case Should Have Been More Severe.

Judge O'Neill Ryan, who presides over Division No. 3 of the Criminal Court, administered a rebuke yesterday morning to the members of a jury which returned a verdict finding Edward La Bee guilty of betrayal and fixing him only $250. The judge was much incensed at the verdict, and expressed himself in emphatic terms. He instructed the deputy sheriff not to put the men on any other jury during the week, and intimated that he was going to proceed against some of them for contempt of court, but he did nothing further in the course of the day.

Miss Mary Gause, 16 years old, was the prosecuting witness. She testified that she had prevailed upon La Bee to marry her, but he married a Miss Clark, who brought a similar prosecution against him. The case was all in Monday night and a sealed verdict was returned by the jury yesterday morning. Judge Ryan asked the jurors if it was their verdict, and when they replied in the affirmative, he said: "And is this the verdict that you put upon a woman's honor in St. Louis? Is it the price—"

One of the jurors nodded in assent, and Judge Ryan told them that they should be ashamed of themselves. He said: "John A. Porter, the attorney for the defendant, announced that La Bee was satisfied with the verdict, whereas Judge Ryan retorted: 'Well he may be, I should think he should be extremely fortunate. I never heard of such a verdict.'"

Then he ordered that some of the jurors be placed under arrest. He said that they had been seated outside the railing he called the conduct of some of them in the jury-room. He said he had heard reports of some very bad language, and while the case was being discussed by them.

The jury was composed of the following: Peter B. Blattner, No. 219 South Seventh street; Albert Brown, No. 243 Easton avenue; Emil W. Beck, No. 1027 North Third street; John Brown, No. 1027 North Third street; James H. Burke, No. 1027 North Third street; John C. Dineen, No. 824 Cook avenue; Louis Evans, No. 1633 Carr street; Fredrick H. Flower, No. 324 Morrison street; August Kuhn, No. 1633 Carr street; William F. McClinton, No. 2441 Latin avenue.

Stranded at Union Station. Mrs. Camus With Six Children on Way to Chicago.

Mrs. Louise Camus of Albuquerque, N. M., was stranded at Union Station last night without a ticket or a cent of money. She was on her way to Chicago.

She was accompanied by a woman who had secured her a railroad pass to Kansas City, Mo., at Kansas City her mother-in-law and her mother-in-law, and she left her ticket to St. Louis.

It was reported that the couple applied for a license at Belleville Monday morning. At Miss Kelly's residence, 1027 North Third street, nothing was known of the elopement. Salemen and officers of the Brown Shoe Company met at the St. Nicholas Hotel last night for the purpose of discussing the shoe business and exchanging ideas for the betterment of trade in the future. Present were twenty-five representatives, who cover territory all over the United States. G. W. Brown, president, was toastmaster.

The convention was preceded by a banquet at which the salesmen, many of whom are rarely in St. Louis, were given an opportunity to meet the firm members. Numerous projects for conducting the fall campaign were presented.

Andrew Barnett, Another Employee of Ticket Office, to Be Married at Carrollton.

Andrew Barnett of No. 1500 Louest street, a ticket-seller at Union Station, and Miss Maude Finch of Carrollton, will be married this morning at the home of the bride's parents.

Yesterday morning Barnett notified the stationmaster that he would take a week's holiday and be married. None of his fellow employees, however, were told until shortly before time for his train to leave.

Barnett met Miss Finch at the home of a mutual friend about three years ago, and their engagement followed soon after. Miss Finch is said to be a decidedly pretty girl.

END CAME SUDDENLY TO WILLIAM A. HOBBS

Member of Board of Election Commissioners Expired at His Home After Brief Illness.

Death Caused by Gastritis.

Exertions Over Funeral of Ex-Fire Chief Lindsay Caused Illness—Embraced Catholic Faith on Deathbed.

William A. Hobbs, Republican member of the Board of Election Commissioners, died at his home, No. 481 Cook avenue, at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, after a very brief illness. Death was due to gastritis.

The death of Mr. Hobbs was unexpected by his family and friends and came as a great shock to his large circle of acquaintances, many of whom had not even heard of his illness. Up to Saturday he had been about as usual, in apparently the best of health.

The death of John Lindsay, former Chief of the Fire Department, on Saturday was a great shock to Mr. Hobbs. For years he and Lindsay had been warm friends and inseparable companions, and when the ex-fire chief passed away Mr. Hobbs was greatly affected. To friends with whom he was heartbroken over the death of his friend.

As one of the close friends of Mr. Lindsay, he assumed personal charge of the arrangements for the funeral and exerted himself in seeing that nothing would be lacking in the last sad rites. He was at the Lindsay home Saturday night for a time, but departed early, complaining of not feeling very well. He went home to bed, but at that time it was believed his illness was but a temporary indisposition.

Condition Grew Rapidly Worse. Sunday Mr. Hobbs was feeling no better and Doctor J. B. Pritchard was called. Monday he had improved somewhat, but his condition was such that he could not leave his bed. He had been selected as one of the pallbearers for ex-Chief Lindsay, and Monday he sent a note of regrets to the family, explaining his inability to act as pallbearer. Monday evening his condition became serious, and at 1 o'clock Tuesday he expired.
