LYRICS FROM HOMER MOORE'S NEW OPERA, "THE PURITANS."

Homer Moore of St. Louis is negotiating with a well-known scholar in Munich, Bavaria, concerning a German translation of the Moore opera, "The Puritans."

Here freedom's birds break. The birds that have flown here freedom's birds have come.

The musical expression of this appeal begins quietly with a melody as simple as the character of the maiden whose sense of justice, love, conscience and talent power raise her above her surroundings.

Selections from the opera were performed at the Odéon some time ago. Mr. Moore has been active in almost every department of the musical life of St. Louis.

PLAN IS INAUGURATED TO IMPROVE THE STREETS.

Civic Improvement League Puts Out Special Inspectors to Report Conditions to City Officials.

The Civic Improvement League has had its inspectors making special reports on the condition of streets in North St. Louis.

One of the most attractive melodies in the entire opera occurs in the prologue and is sung by Naomi, telling of her sorrow and despair.

In many cases the streets are impassable, and persons with bugles find it necessary to drive blocks in many cases to find a street car track so that the wheels of their vehicles can follow the rails.

The league is making full detailed reports of these conditions to the city officials and every effort will be made to bring about some improvement.

The members of the Sanitary Committee of the League have been sending in reports after reports of conditions existing in the various streets.

Arrangements have been made by the League to bring Professor Charles Zuehlbin of the Chicago University to lecture before the members and friends of the League.

Professor Zuehlbin is one of the most prominent lecturers in this country on civic improvement work.

WOULD MAKE INTERNATIONAL POLO MATCHES FREQUENT.

SPECIAL BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC.

London, Oct. 4.—(Copyright, 1902.)—Mr. W. A. Hazard, secretary-treasurer of the New York Polo Association, who, with his family, has been spending the summer over here, playing many polo games, is very much impressed with the cordial reception given to American sportsmen over here.

"I shall have more international polo matches I hope so, for they are not only tests of skill, they are important, in my mind, in making us know one another, in the broader sympathies they foster and the pleasant companionship they create among English and American sportsmen."

"We have, I think, gotten on the sunny side of one another. If we occasionally quarrel, why, quarreling is the prerogative of members of the same family, and with us, at least, leaves no bitterness behind."

"Not is this mutual understanding between the sportsmen of the two countries without its influence upon the relations of the two nations. The friendship between us as individuals makes for friendship and peace between the nations to which we belong, so that we may justly feel a certain pride in our sports, apart from our love for them, as the promoters of international good will. This, in itself, is worth the trouble of many trips to England and America."

"How may we make frequent matches possible? I believe this can be done by harmonizing your rules and ours. Mr. C. Whitney, editor of Outlook, an admirable sportsman and eloquent advocate of high ideals in sport, has suggested that a committee of English and American polo players be appointed to revise the rules of your association and ours. Do you think well of this suggestion? If so, I shall be glad to meet representatives of your various clubs at luncheon at my house to discuss the matter informally and in detail."

"While I am not empowered to represent America, I believe I know the view of American players sufficiently well to enable me to facilitate negotiations."

MUSIC PUBLISHERS MAKING WAR ON PIRATES.

SPECIAL BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC.

London, Oct. 4.—(Copyright, 1902.)—London has been hit this week of one of its most music pirate hawking copies of "Daily Grey," the irrepressible "Honey-Suckle and Dee" and other popular songs of the past day to day. Then there are printers who right act has come into force, but it does not give the music publishing firms all they want.

A partner in a well-known firm said in an interview that round the hawkers is a triple fence. First, there is an organized band of pirates that changes its quarters from day to day. Then there are printers who want to keep their machines going. It is really wonderful, my informant remarked.

SPECTACULAR WAR GAME PLAYED AT CAMP ROOT.

How Regulars and State Troops Maneuvered Together Under General Bates's Direction—Russian Military Officers Witnessed Mimic Combats as the Guests of the War Department.

CAVALRY HIDING BEHIND HILL, WHILE SCOUTS EXPLOIT CREST BY CRAWLING THROUGH THE LATE GRASS.

General Bates to the scene of activities daily. With them is assigned Captain Wright, one of General Bates's aides, who is a thorough tactician. Captain Wright is previously informed, as no one else is, of the orders issued to both sides of the maneuvering army.

As for the maneuvers, nothing could be more simple in arrangement, nor more practical in execution. An instance may be given of the fight of Monday. First of all it must be understood that because one force goes into the field in blue shirts or blue blouses, it is styled the army of the blue. Because the other goes out in brown khaki, it is styled the army of the brown.

On Monday morning at 9 o'clock Colonel Miller, commanding a force of 250 men, learned that Colonel Rodney, chief of the divisional artillery, was on his way from the sea to a point within six miles of where Colonel Miller and his brown army lay. Miller knew that Rodney's blue army was slightly stronger than his own, and that its line of communication must be kept open to Abilene, further east. Miller was ordered to meet the blue army, and either drive it back, cut off its retreat, or, at least, push it off its line of communication so as to hamper it and possibly to permit Miller's superior officer to ride on down to Rodney's superior officer and his command at Abilene.

is pitched on the slope of what in Colorado would be styled foothills. It is well drained. Six thousand men and almost 3,000 horses are being fed daily by the Quartermaster, a work involving tremendous energy.

HOW THE LITTLE MULES CARRY THEIR CONVOY.

"HALF INCLINED TO GO ON."

One of the prettiest bits of melody occurs in the second act at the beginning of the love scene between Philena and Henry, and is sung by the latter. It begins thus:

One of the most dramatic portions of the opera is in the second part of the third act, when Philena appeals to the people in the name of religion, justice and the freedom they crossed the sea to gain, to stay the execution of Mrs. Witterow. In the opera Philena is the prophetic of the love of independence and the Stars and Stripes.

AMERICANS ARE LEAVING LONDON FOR HOME NOW.

SPECIAL BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC.

London, Oct. 4.—(Copyright, 1902.)—London has been fairly busy during the week, especially at the hotels, for many Americans have come back from the Continent during the last few days. Most of these will be leaving by next Wednesday's steamer, after the departure of the Kronprinz and Gemanic on that day.

Mr. William C. Whitney, who is in town a few days this week, has been attending the races at Newmarket, where he has a house and stables. It is said that this is Mr. Whitney's first visit to Newmarket since he has his stables there.

LORD CADOGAN TWICE REFUSED A MARQUISATE.

SPECIAL BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC.

London, Oct. 4.—(Copyright, 1902.)—It is said that Lord Cadogan has twice been offered by the King a marquessate, which he has refused, so I suppose nothing more will be heard of his ascension in the peerage. It was always thought he would be given a dukedom, but as this has not been done, he prefers to remain as he is.

Considering how often in the past strawberry leaves have been given for services less important than those of the former Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, many people think it strange that the higher rank should have been withheld.

BOMBHELL CAUSED PANIC AT AUCTION FURNITURE SALE.

SPECIAL BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC.

Paris, Oct. 4.—(Copyright, 1902.)—One of the most famous pictures in the Dautin collection bequeathed to Paris has been given the honor of a place apart. This is the "Châliet des Singes," painted by Huet in the eighteenth century, which is assigned to the Museum of Decorative Art, which contains nothing but masterpieces and is one of the most interesting art exhibits in Paris.

The Hotel Drouot has just been the scene of a curious panic. The auctioneer was engaged in selling some one-off furniture, when the attendance happened to open the door of the cabinet where to everybody's horror, a large bomb shell was seen popping on one of the shelves.

The result was a wild stampede down the staircase, the auctioneer leading the flock. Telephone messages were at once sent to the Ministry of War, and soon an officer of artillery was on the spot with an artillery wagon. The shell was removed to the nearest barracks. How it got into the cabinet is still a mystery.

A LONG-FELT WANT.

It is Supplied at Last in St. Louis.

Good-natured people are often irritable. If you know the reason you would not be surprised. Ever have itching piles? Not rich enough to go to bed, not well enough to be content.

The common itching sensation. Hard to bear, harder to get relief. Spoils your temper, nearly drives you crazy.

Don't suffer and cure a long-felt want. You can have relief and cure if you will follow the advice of a local citizen. Mr. August Fritsch, retired treasurer of the Missouri State Bank, writes: "Doan's Ointment was used in my family for excoria of the arm and neck. The burning and itching sensation was very annoying, particularly when water was splashed on the affected parts. It struck me when ready for a statement about Doan's Ointment from one of our German papers that it might help, so I sent to 'Witt-Wilson' for a box and it was used as directed. It actually gave relief as soon as applied and in a few days there was not a trace of the excoria or skin disease left."

For sale by all dealers. Price 10 cent. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Remember the name—Doan's—and take other.
