TRUSTS THE CRYING EVIL.

Havana, Oct. 27.—The representative here of the Associated Press has learned from the Cuban authorities that the proposed treaty between the United States and Cuba was returned to Washington by mail last Saturday. With the treaty was sent a counter proposition from the Government of Cuba to that of the United States, the nature of which is not known, but it is understood that President Palma in a letter sent with the treaty, says that the acceptance of the propositions made by the United States would be ruinous to Cuba, as it would reduce the appropriation of the customs revenue of the island.

GRAND JURY WILL INVESTIGATE CHARGES OF FALSE REGISTRATION.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY WARNS PERSONS WHO WOULD VIOLATE ELECTION LAWS.

Changes have been made this morning which will be attempted at the coming election. It will be my duty to prosecute every offender against whom evidence can be secured, and I shall do it in my power to mete out the punishment of the law to every guilty person.

It might be well to remind those who would vote unlawfully and judges and clerks of election who would alter returns or make false counts that the punishment for such acts is from two years to imprisonment. It is necessary I shall, for the purpose of obtaining evidence, allow any judge or clerk to give State's evidence against his fellows. Under the law there is no statute of limitation for the prosecution of crimes punishable by life imprisonment, so that any one who votes or attempts to vote illegally, or any judge or clerk who tampers with the ballots, for the remainder of his natural life will be in danger of the Penitentiary.

The obligation rests upon me of upholding the majesty and dignity of the law in relation to felonies by enforcing the penalty of the law against lawbreakers where there is evidence of such fact. In this, as well as other crimes, any violation of the law will be answered by prompt prosecutions of principals and accessories. In the latter class are included all those who give aid to the perpetrators of illegal acts and assist in any way in the basis of government by the people, for it is through the ballot the people speak their will. The debauchers of this sanctity are not confined to any political party, but operate in all parties from venal motives. They have no politics except in name, for there is no politics in crime.

They are not Democrats, they are not Republicans, they are criminals, and as criminals they will be prosecuted. JOSEPH W. FOLK, Circuit Attorney.

Circuit Attorney Folk will begin to investigate in a few days the charges that have been made that there has been false registration in some of the wards. It will be necessary for those persons who have made the complaints to present their evidence, as the Circuit Attorney will take all cases before the Grand Jury for investigation.

The laws governing elections have been carefully read by Mr. Folk and his assistants in the last few weeks. As in the case of bribery, which has occupied so much of the Circuit Attorney's attention lately, he finds that there is no lack of limitations applicable to the crime of election fraud. He also states that for the purpose of obtaining evidence he will permit any judge or clerk who knows of illegal voting or registration to turn State's evidence against the others.

MRS. OLA NEWCOMB RELATES STORY OF ASSAULT AND ROBBERY.

Ernest Jenks and his clothing was ruffled as a result of the struggle through the streets.

A few minutes later the carriage arrived and Jenks compelled me to enter it, assuring me that if I uttered a sound he would shoot me. Then he initiated something to the driver, which I did not understand, and the door of the carriage was closed. We were driven to a place in the neighborhood of Nineteenth and Olive streets.

It was not permitted to leave the room until 11:30 o'clock the next morning (Monday), and then it was only through strategy of mine that I secured my release. Jenks had taken $25, which I had secreted on my person, and wanted to know if I could get it back. He said he wanted me to stop with him and that it would require at least $100 with which to leave the city. I told him that I could get the money from a friend of my husband if he would permit me to go to a certain restaurant on Washington avenue.

"He did not want to do so at first, but finally consented and accompanied me to the restaurant. There I telephoned to my husband's friend, telling him that I wished to see him immediately about a matter of importance. He said he would meet me at the restaurant in a few minutes. I then informed Jenks to leave the restaurant by telling him that my husband's friend would probably object to giving me the money in the presence of a stranger. The friend arrived and I hurriedly told him of my plight."

When Mrs. Newcomb had related her story, her husband buried his face in his hands and groaned. "And just to think that I once befriended that fellow Jenks when he was in trouble," he said.

JENKS DENIES CHARGES. When the story was repeated to Jenks at the station he failed to show any signs of emotion. "I took her carriage riding," he said, "and we went to a hotel, but I did not strike her, nor do I know how she received her wounds. I did not drag her from her mother's home to the saloon at Good and Easton avenues. She accompanied me of her own free will."

The woman's husband was worked up as a result of the affair. He declared that he had spent the night searching for his wife. Newcomb says he will charge Jenks with abduction, assault to kill, robbery and any other thing which the alleged offense may imply.

Jenks was arrested shortly after 6 o'clock last night by Policemen Schorgens in a saloon at Marcus and Easton avenues. A detail of special officers had been watching his home since early in the afternoon, but he failed to put in an appearance.

Ernest Jenks, a brother of the prisoner, declared that Ernest had spent Sunday night at home and had been in and out several times yesterday.

Mrs. Newcomb's father-in-law, the Reverend John W. Newcomb, who lives at No. 427 Newcomb place, was contacted over his daughter's story and went to the police station to urge a thorough investigation.

Mrs. Mary Roe, mother of Mrs. Newcomb, stated last night that a stranger called at her home shortly after her daughter had disappeared and inquired if Jenks was there. Upon being told that he was not, the stranger left. Mrs. Roe stated she rode away in a rickshaw.

Harvey Brockman of No. 1331 Bayard avenue was taken into custody by the police and admitted that it was he who called at the New home. He said he had gone there with Jenks and that he remained on the outside while Jenks approached the house. He said he did not see Jenks leave and denied seeing any assault. He was released on promise that he would respond if summoned by the police.

GOV. GANDLER URGES APPROPRIATION.

In his annual message to the State Legislature last week Governor Gandler of Georgia made a strong appeal for a proper representation of the State's resources at the World's Fair. He says in the message that there is nothing in the Constitution forbidding the appropriation of money to defray the expenses of an exhibit.

Peru Appropriates $25,000. World's Fair Commissioner Wanda cables from Lima, Peru, that the Congress of that country has just voted $25,000 for an exhibit at the Exposition. He believes that the next Congress will increase this amount.

TRIED TO LASSO THE VILLAIN.

Mulhall's Cowboys Took in Theater at SoBoys Antonio. San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 27.—There was a fascinating conglomeration of the drama of true, wholesome Texas life at the Grand Opera-house last night. Zach Mulhall, general live stock agent of the State, is here in the interest of the St. Louis Exposition, and they occupied eight boxes at the Grand last night at the presentation of Hal Reid's "Human Hearts."

"Can my boys make all the noise they want to?" asked Mulhall before he accepted the invitation. He was assured that they could. The band was attired in leather leggings, buckskin shirts, campaign hats and red bandana handkerchiefs. They carried Colts six-shooters and a belt full of cartridges. Miss Lucile Mulhall, the pretty daughter of Colonel Mulhall, who can rope and tie a steer in 35 seconds flat and sing an operatic air equal to a prima donna, accompanied the band as sponsor.

After the third curtain the band struck up "Dixie" with such feeling that everybody cheered until they were hoarse, but the climax of enthusiasm and consternation came when Miss Mulhall snatched a six-shooter out of one of the men's pockets and emptied it in the direction of the ceiling. The "boys" were not averse to following her example, and while they continued to play music they punctuated the stirring notes with a fusillade of shots. There was wild consternation in the big audience, but a panic was averted.

There was another tremendous sensation when Jim Hopkins, a big raw-boned cowboy, sat beside the way the heroine was being treated, undertook to lasso the villain. While unsuccessful the attempt caught the attention of the audience, and Hopkins was forced to take the stage and, larlet in hand, bow to the applause of the audience.

On the whole, it was a bit of the "wild and woolly West" not witnessed here in many years.
