FUNERAL OF JOHN L. FRENCH FROM HOME THIS AFTERNOON

Religious Ceremonies Will Precede the Burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

The funeral of John L. French, who died Saturday night at the home of his father, Jesse French, No. 413 Morgan street, of hemorrhages resulting from an automobile accident in Pittsburg, Pa., last August, will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his parents.

The Reverend Charles L. Kloss of Webster Groves will deliver the funeral sermon and the burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

While in Pittsburg last August on business connected with his firm he made a trip in a new machine, and collided with a street car, which brought on the hemorrhages that resulted in his death.

TO REPRODUCE POET'S HOME. Massachusetts Building at Fair, Will Be Model of Longfellow's House.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Cambridge, Mass., May 24.—Longfellow's old home in Cambridge, the Craze mansion, will be selected by the Massachusetts Commission for reproduction at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

The reason for this selection is that it represents the finest type of colonial architecture in the Bay State. As the Massachusetts State Building at the Fair the old mansion will be reproduced, and received the almost unanimous approval of the State Commission.

About $3,000 will be expended in building the facade, and the furnishings as they were at the time of Longfellow's death. It is his headquarters will be exactly copied.

Wash Goods, a New Feature in the Costume Linens

We are having white and colored dots embroidered on our own dress linens.

This is an innovation—the embroidered and dotted linens are in great demand for trimmings; heretofore it has been very difficult to get the right shades in the plain materials.

See the embroidered linens to-day; prices are, for embroidered linen, $1.00, $1.50 to $2.50 a yard.

Plain colors to match sell for 40c and 50c a yard.

Embroidered Silk Wash Linen—This gauze-like wash fabric, embroidered in self color and contrasting shades of silk rings, dots, etc., is extremely popular just now; the latest productions are here—50c a yard.

French Regence Cloth, reduced from 40c to 25c—an ideal material for general summer wear; we are sold out of a few styles, therefore all the remainder go at, a yard....

Braded Batiste—a fine white ground wash fabric, printed in natural color flowers, exact copies of French Organdies—about 50 styles will be on sale for the first time to-day—30 inches wide, a yard....

American Gingham, equal to imported, opened for Monday's first showing—100 new styles for shirt-waist suits, children's dresses, undershirts, men's shirts, etc.—all at, a yard....

Besides the real Cluny Laces, in so great a demand, we are supplied with an extremely large stock of Valenciennes Laces.

Real Clunys, in the most desirable styles and widths, are here. The French manufacturers have just completed our orders, given months ago. While desirable styles are demanding high prices elsewhere, prices here have not advanced—choice styles, remember—2 to 10 inches wide—prices are, a yard....

Warm weather has stimulated embroidery buying wonderfully. Graduation days are not far away, and warm weather brings out the white summer frock.

A very pretty line of Embroidery Appliques for trimming—the very fine Swisses and Organdies—patterns are extremely varied and beautiful, ranging in price, a yard....

Stylish Batiste Embroideries—white grounds, worked in colors of blue, tan, black and pink—we show them in bands and edges—2 1/2 to 6 inches wide—a yard....

We are showing them in liberal quantities, for this season promises to be a good long parasol season.

The styles we show will not become common—they are, as they always are, confined styles to our house.

In evening styles we show the largest assortment, as this style will be the most popular—prices, $1.75 to $7.50

The Trimmed Parasols are the prettiest we have received—the higher the price the prettier they are, although the more reasonable will sell the best....

For street, for the house, for the social functions, the right style and all the comfort one can find is in the Sorosis Oxford.

Style 602—The stylish Colonial Oxford, made of dull mat, plain toe, hand-turned soles, has a Louis XV heel, laces over the instep under the flap—tastefully ornamented with large black silk bow—widths AA to D—sizes 2 1/2 to 8—price....

Two exceptional Wash Dresses—they are good examples of the rare values in this section—prices are so convincingly low that there is no need of hot-weather sewing at home.

A girl's tan linen, one-piece Russian Dress, has sailor collar, cuffs and belt of white linen, trimmed with natural linen bands—sizes 8 to 12 years—the price....

Very fine French cambric Kimona Sacques, with fitted back, made with yoke and three box plaits, full front trimmed in the fine hand embroidery....

The other, of striped gingham, has umbrella flounce and is trimmed with three small ruffles....

Two good values in these cool garments—no need to bother with the making—there would be no saving.

One is of striped gingham, with umbrella flounce, finished with a small ruffle....

Physician Who Came to St. Louis Immediately After the Civil War Dies at His Home on Wash Street.

DOCTOR HENRY KLEMM, who died at his home, No. 1825 Wash street, of this city. He leaves a very large practice.

Doctor Henry Klemm, a well-known St. Louis physician, died at his home, No. 1825 Wash street, yesterday morning at 6 o'clock. He was 61 years old, and had been confined to his home for the last three months. At first he had but a light attack of the grip. This settled into a complication of diseases.

His death came suddenly, as it was thought he was on the road to recovery but a few days before his death. He leaves a wife and four daughters.

After the war he came to St. Louis. Here he entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons, from which he was graduated in 1858. From that time he has practiced medicine in this city. He is a member of the G. A. R.

For the last ten years he has been associated with Doctor William Hooker. Vall suspended. Nearly every member of the family is married and settled in the vicinity of the old homestead.

THREE-ENGINE TRAIN PILED INTO WRECK

Two Locomotives Behind, Ignorant of Derailed One Ahead, Continue Under Full Speed.

ONE TRAINMAN IS INJURED.

Fifty-Two Freight Cars Ditched by Peculiar Accident on Washburn Tracks at Main and North Market Streets.

After the first engine on a Washburn freight train, manned by three locomotives, had jumped the track at the intersection of Main and North Market streets, yesterday morning, the locomotive pushing at the rear with its throttle wide open piled the cars into a heap before knowledge of the trouble ahead was made known.

The wreck was caused by the train striking an uphill curve and proceeding swiftly. The two locomotives at the front of the train, as well as the next four cars, heavily laden with merchandise, were demolished.

Only one member of the crew, William Kelly, was injured. He escaped alive after being pinned for fifteen minutes in the cab of the overturned engine, No. 38. He was severely scalded, however, and sustained a broken leg. All the other members of the train crew escaped by jumping.

The accident happened shortly after 6 o'clock. Two engines, Nos. 198 and 197, were pulling fifty-two cars heavily laden with merchandise north on Main street. When they reached the curve at North Market street, engine No. 198 stopped and fell over on its side.

As it happened, Engineer Michael Short of No. 232 North Broadway, seeing an accident was inevitable, reversed the lever of the engine and, with a shout to his fireman, jumped from the cab.

The train was moving with remarkable speed and the turning over of the front engine did not for several minutes impede the progress of the train.

Lying upon its side the engine was shoved for the distance of a half block before the train could be brought to a standstill. Steam was turned off on the front engines for several minutes before word could be gotten to the engineer at the rear end, whose engine was driving the train to destruction.

After leaving the front locomotive the members of the train crew ran to the rear to inform the engineer of the head end's plight.

Then it was that the cars began to pile skyward. The second engine forced the tender of the first locomotive into its own cab, and it was there that Kelly was pinned.

Soon the second engine was forced over its predecessor and then four cars loaded with lumber began to rise in the air.

In the center of the train a car loaded with pig lead was also demolished. For a space of half a block the ground where the overturned engine had passed over was thoroughly plowed. Railroad ties for the same distance were splintered and twisted.

SEARCH FOR THE INJURED. When the train was brought to a standstill the crew began an instant search to find if any of the crew were among the wreckage.

Under the boiler of the front engine Kelly was found, with the scalding water dripping upon his body. It took some time to release him, but he was finally pulled through one of the windows of the cab.

The injured man was taken to St. Mary's Infirmary. There Doctor Vandover declared his limb to be so badly crushed that amputation would be necessary. The injuries sustained by the scalding water were pronounced very serious.

Damage to the engines and cars is said to be about $90,000. The train was in charge of Foreman James McDonald.

JEWS AND GENTILES JOIN IN DENOUNCING RUSSIAN OUTRAGES.

In any way interfere in the matter, Mr. Schreier said that according to international usage it would be as ridiculous for our Government to protest as it would be for the Russian Government to endeavor to interfere with riots against Chinese or negroes within our borders.

After an address in German by Rabbi A. Rosentretter, the Reverend Doctor W. W. Boyd spoke. He was received with loud applause, and his remarks awakened enthusiasm. He said in part:

"GREEK CHURCH IS DEAD."

"I speak to you not as a Jew, or a Gentile, not even as an American, but as a member of the great brotherhood of man. When one member of this great brotherhood is touched or harassed by a great wrong the wrong reverberates and it is felt by all.
