REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 18.—Without being compelled to put forth even moderate energy to start the perspiration, St. Louis won both games of a double-header from the Phillies this afternoon.

Both of the games were played in unusually quick time, the first one being over in an hour and thirty-two minutes and the second in an hour and twenty minutes.

In the first game both teams scored a run in the initial inning. For St. Louis Shay started things with a single. Shannon was an easy out. A moment later Shay was caught napping off first base, but the poor throw by Corbett to catch him allowed the Missouriian to reach second in safety.

Barclay, the next man up, struck out, but both dropped the ball and on the throw to first to catch him, Shay sprinted to third. Beckley was thrown out, Shay, however, scoring on Brain's single.

When the Phillies came to bat Thomas was thrown out at first, but Titus straggled to center. Wolverton flied out to Shannon, and Titus got around as far as third base. He scored from there on a beautiful single by Gleason to center. St. Louis scored again in the second inning.

With two runners on base and Taylor walked. Shay banged out a long hit to the outfield which scored Burke. Beckley was again bunted to center, filling the bases.

A wild pitch by Corbett allowed Beckley to score. Beckley was thrown out at end to St. Louis' runs. Smoot flied out to McGee, and quick as a flash, the Quaker right fielder pitched to Corbett at the home plate, just in time to catch Brain in the act of scoring. Barclay, the next man up, was an easy out. Titus, the side. Neither team could score in the next inning.

THE SECOND GAME.

The second game was even an easier victory for St. Louis than the first. Not a run was scored until the third inning, when St. Louis sent one man across the plate. After two men were by Beckley singled and came all the way home on a smashing double by Brain to center field.

Beckley, the next man up, walked up to the bat and smashed out a three-bagger to the right-field wall, which scored Beckley and Grady.

A single by Burke to right field, scored Barclay. Burke tried to stretch his hit into a double, but was caught at second. This ended the run-getting for St. Louis, but in the eighth inning the Phillies added a run to their score. With pitcher Corbett allowed Suthoff to reach first in safety.

He was forced out at second by Thomas. The latter then took second on Titus's out.

and scored on Wolverton's long hit to the left-field foul line. The score: SECOND GAME.

Yesterday's Results.

Cleveland 0, Aug. 18.—The Blues and the Browns even in a double-header this afternoon.

The visitors won the first by bunching their hits off Donohue, while the locals, with the exceptions of La Jole and Lush, found Harry Howell a mystery. The second game was poorly played by the Browns; their rickety support handicapping the great hitting duo of Padden and Burgett.

For the first time in several weeks, Otto Hess, the soldier-boy southpaw, was in the box for Cleveland, and he certainly pitched a masterly article of ball. From the start he had the Browns mystified, and they kept popping them up. In the eighth inning he struck out Suthoff and Burgett in succession, and in the ninth inning struck out the first two batters, Hedrick and Wallace. Hynes then scratched a single and Jones made a three-bagger, saving the visitors from a shut-out.

The hitting of Lush, La Jole, Padden and Burgett was the feature of the two games in the second game. La Jole and Lush scored the hits in the two contests, one a triple and a single in the first and two singles in the second game. Padden and Burgett secured the hits in the two contests, one a triple and a single in the first and two singles in the second game.

The game was featured by the reappearance of Jack O'Connor and Dick Padden in the game. Padden has been out for two weeks with a bad leg, but his playing to-day was of a star order until he retired in the fifth inning of the second contest. O'Connor had not caught a game for two months, having been in the hospital for the greater part of the time until the baseball writers had him shelved for good only a few weeks ago, but to-day he came back with the same old skill and speed and proved hard to victory.

With "Red Donohue" on the slab for Cleveland, the first of the local rooters thought a victory would be certain. "Red" had downed all the Eastern teams in one's time last season. His old puzzle, Burckett hit the first ball pitched to him, and he was out. Hedrick and Wallace's smash sent Burckett home. With one out in the second inning, Lush made a walk in error to Padden on the fly, and it went to the fence for three bases. Moran singled and Padden scored.

Turner's error saved Moran in the fifth inning, but he was forced by O'Connor. Hynes pitched a single to Padden, and Lush made another fatal mistake. Burckett lined to left and Lush again tried to make a walk in error to Padden on the fly. He missed it by a few inches and the ball went to the fence, while Burckett circled around the bases. In the sixth inning, Lush's mistake thus turning a single into a homer. First inning by single. Hynes pitched a single to Padden, and Lush made another fatal mistake. Burckett lined to left and Lush again tried to make a walk in error to Padden on the fly. He missed it by a few inches and the ball went to the fence, while Burckett circled around the bases. JAW OF SOLID GOLD.

Boer Officer at the Fair Has This Characteristic. Commandant Mol, one of the most interesting personages in the Boer War, is especially noted as being the possessor of a jaw made of solid gold. At Fort Plant, August 8, 1901, the Commandant received the wound which shattered his jaw, the bullet passing through his chest and out at the back. He was supposed to be mortally wounded and sent to the British lines. He was treated at Middleburg and Pretoria. After a long hospital stay in India he was sent to London and from there at once to a guest, to Holland, where Professor Kortlandt performed the remarkable operation of inserting a jaw of solid gold. Commandant Mol entered the Boer service as a private and his gallantry made him a hero. He is now a Colonel in the American army.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 18.—Until further notice Joe Corbett, who twice for the Cardinals part of this season, and who is now with the San Francisco team, will be available to play any more games with that club until the National Commission lifts a claim by Hanlon against Corbett.

Hanlon claims that Corbett belongs to Brooklyn by virtue of his release by the St. Louis club to the Brooklyn club, and has protested against Corbett's playing with Philadelphia. Corbett has declared time and again that he will not play with Hanlon, and he will play the same rather than go back to Brooklyn.

Should Hanlon force his claim Corbett will have to quit the club of the Coast League and will have to take up his bat and ball and play in a war between the Coast League and organized baseball.

Hanlon's hounding of pitchers has driven many good ones from the game, and the National Commission will lift a claim if he allows his claim against Corbett. In a short time Hanlon caused Corbett, Hughes and Newton to desert the league on account of his treatment of pitchers. It is a short time ago that they can draw more from the minor leagues than from his team.

On a short space of time but to the National League since pitchers as Doctor James, Doctor Foul, Jerry Brown, John Schmitz, Dimping Mc-Mulvan and "Wild Bill" Donovan.

REGAN TO FIGHT NEIL.

Bantams Renounced to Battle for Title in Their Class.

New York, Aug. 18.—Johnny Regan, who fought Frankie Neil to a twenty-round draw at Los Angeles last fall, has been ready to match with the bantam champion and will meet him for the title at 115 pounds in the near future.

Final arrangements, so far as the Neil fight is concerned, when a challenge of this city to Regan was made, and Regan was taken up and when it was known that he would fight in the afternoon, Regan was taken up and when it was known that he would fight in the afternoon, Regan was taken up.

Regan referred the bouts at the West End Club last evening, and has been working for some time under Jack Keenan's management, at a downtown gymnasium. Johnson says that he would be only too glad to accept the challenge, and that he would gladly take on Neil at any time or place.

Whether the fight will be held here is uncertain, although the local club may make a bid for the contest. The fighters state that the affair is set for San Francisco.

To Neil will doubtless be considered the great fight of the season, and the strength of his possession of the title.
