

GOWNS AND COATS FOR LITTLE GIRLS.

Calf Skin and Astrakhan Trim Long, Warm Garments - Picturesque Models Revived for Dancing School-Fancy Silks.

Etiquette in dress for little girls is just as sharply defined as for their mothers of grown sisters. According to the old saying, there is a time and place for all things, and in no one particular is the truth of the saw better exemplified than in the suitable wearing of the gowns.

Another smart little dress for a school-girl shows the body of the waist pleated, front and back, while the skirt is full and fluted. This also is better. Waists may be varied in treatment to make them fanciful or otherwise, according to the dictates of the mother's taste.

Wash fannel, of which beautiful soft quality is readily obtained, makes pretty morning and afternoon frocks for home. Trimmed with serpentine braid, the fannel frock is a very popular one.

There is much less danger of a mother committing a faux pas in the matter of coats than in any other article of a child's wardrobe. For children's outer garments the smartest ones are all made in tailor effect, and which are suitable for school, because of their predisposition to soil easily, still it could be worn at any other time and place.

Most of the new fall coats are trimmed with fur of some sort, pony and calfskin being most popular. Children love the calfskin, not so much for any beauty it may possess, but for its associations. Furs, lamb is also popular. Coats are made much after the suit model, with full length plaques, open on the side and belted at the waist.

With this model a deep rolling collar and a pocket of coral silk poplin, made Kate Greenway style and tied under the arms with a soft ribbon sash. A deep, plain bertha of net, fine moulin embroidery and lace. A Claret pattern complete very dainty and childish gown.

DELEGATES DOUGLE LIGHTING MEASURE

Bill Providing for Illumination of Mount Pleasant and Carondelet Laid Over.

BLOCK AND FONTANA CLASH. House Ignores Member Who Tried to Force Issue—Relief Water Bill Passed.

The House of Delegates twice dodged the lighting bill for Mount Pleasant and Carondelet last night when Delegates W. A. Block made several attempts to bring the measure before the body as a committee of the whole.

The bill has been delayed and sidetracked for more than two months, and Block said that it was time either to reject or to accept the measure. The present contract for the lighting of the southern districts of St. Louis expires in February, but it is said in the City Lighting Department and by members of the House that much time is needed for the advertising of bids and preparation for any new arrangement that might be made.

When a motion for the House to adjourn for a week was made, Block arose in protest, saying that a previous action for a twenty days' adjournment during holidays had been taken, the lighting problem should be solved at once, instead of having to lie over another month in January.

Argument between Delegates Block and Fontana followed, Fontana taking the stand that Delegates of the Committee on Public Works should not be called upon to present a bill which was not in the hands of a committee of the whole.

When Speaker Pro Tem McCarthy suggested later that a motion for adjournment was in order, Fontana hastily took advantage of the point, Block again protested, and raised the lighting bill question. He said that the World's Fair was now over and it was time for the members to get down to business.

His protest, however, was ignored, and the vote for adjournment followed. A Council bill was introduced by a series of bills between Block and Fontana, and it was only on general improvement measures that the House could proceed.

A bill to create a municipal library in the City Hall also was defeated through the opposition of Block and Fontana. The measure was to have established a reference library of statistics and other material, which, it is said, is needed daily in the City Hall.

Two new bills were introduced, one for placing a watchman at a new public dump and another for the improvement of the street between Locust and Walnut avenues.

EXHIBITORS HURRY TO SHIP GOODS. Crowd in Bureau of Expedition Breaks Partition in Office.

APPEAL MADE FOR GUARDS. Empire State Express With Engine and Four Cars First to Leave the Exposition Grounds.

The mad scramble for place began early yesterday morning at the World's Fair grounds among those exhibitors who wish to be the first out with their property. It lasted all day and was a pugilist affair to which the Tower of Babel could have been but a slight circumstance.

It reached its height at about 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the surging file of those anxious to be supplied with exit passes entailed them to haul staff out of the grounds without a challenge from the gatekeepers.

While the offices of the Director of Exhibits, the Secretary of the Exposition, the Traffic Manager and the Bureau of Expedition were crowded all day with exhibitors anxious to be off without delay, the Bureau of Expedition was the storm center at all times.

Before an exhibitor or concessionaire may shake the dust of the Fair grounds from his feet and take with him his goods, there are several men whom he must see.

Two husbands seek divorce. Judge Kinealy Severs Several Marital Ties. Robert W. Griddle, in his suit for divorce, filed in the Circuit Court yesterday, alleges that his wife, Leola, was addicted to the use of intoxicating drugs.

Is there really any good reason why people should buy your goods? You can't make much money out of the patronage of your own friends and acquaintances.

Neither can you ever achieve a really important success by selling your goods through the old-fashioned method of slowly introducing them through retailers and forcing the public gradually to learn for itself why your particular products are desirable.

Assuming that you have an article which meets a strong public need, you can make a quick, sure success if you tell people just what that article is, why they should buy it, where they can get it, and what it will cost.

Those who make or handle articles appealing to American households should advertise in the columns of THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL and THE SATURDAY EVENING POST. THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL has a paid circulation of over 1,000,000 copies per month, and THE SATURDAY EVENING POST a paid circulation of over 700,000 per week.
