

NEW YORK'S SENSATION

THE POLICE BOARD PRESIDENT WALKS AROUND

And Catches Many Police Shaking Duty—A Big Excitement in the Police Force Yesterday.

New York, June 7.—New York's police department had a big surprise this morning. The sensation was the fact that during the night President Roosevelt had been on the street, patrolling on his own account, attending to the business of some of his men were neglecting.

Before headquarters had got itself shaken into the routine folds of the department business, a string of these men, half a dozen in number, stood trembling at Mr. Roosevelt's office door, summoned by orders to come forthwith and hear the president's opinion of them.

Mr. Roosevelt started on his tour of inspection at 2:30 a. m. He had his plan of work all mapped out. He worked in the Twenty-first precinct. A sketch of his triumphal progress is as follows: Two policemen stood talking on the corner of Forty-first street. They didn't know Mr. Roosevelt, and didn't move when his great, round gold glasses beamed upon them.

But for the moment he was dropped, checked "not there" on the list, and Mr. Roosevelt continued down the avenue. The man on beat 29 was munching a bite of early luncheon in front of a coffee house on Twenty-ninth street. The president turned his head the other way. He was there, at all events, if he was eating.

He hurried on to post 28, which is between Thirtieth and Twenty-ninth streets, and searched it over three times, going on both sides of the street. There was no policeman there.

Just as he started back for a fourth trip a man came out of O'Neill's coffee house with a club and, going to the corner of Twenty-eighth street, rapped three times for the policeman. The raps were easily heard all over his short post. No response coming, he rapped with no better result. He gave up in disgust.

Having satisfied himself that the beat was absolutely deserted, and vainly searched the elevated railroad stations at Twenty-eighth street, and inspected the saloons and such stores near by as seemed tempting shelters to a policeman, and found them locked, Mr. Roosevelt went down on Second avenue, where there are five posts, beginning with 23, between Twenty-seventh and Forty-second streets.

The man on 23 was on the corner talking to a citizen; 24 was in a doorway looking straight ahead; 25 was actually patrolling his beat. Mr. Roosevelt rubbed his spectacles, adjusted them carefully, took another look and made a note on his paper. This was the first, and the last policeman found patrolling in that precinct.

At the corner of Thirty-eighth street—post 26—Patrolman Elbert Roberson was found comfortably sitting down contemplating the dawn in the east; time, 3:40.

On the last post—27—the policeman was entertaining a woman. Mr. Roosevelt watched them with white teeth. When the woman left went over and said something to himself. A white and scared policeman fell to patrolling his beat with sudden zeal.

Back to Third avenue went Mr. Roosevelt and patrolled posts 31 and 32, from Forty-second to Thirty-sixth streets, seven minutes by the clock, but found nothing. One hour and a half covering one-fourth of the precinct's beats and no roundsmen appeared.

It was exactly 4:02 a. m. when he opened the door of the Thirty-fifth street station and gave Sergeant Fagan a hock by saying simply: "I am Commissioner Roosevelt."

He desired to know where the roundsmen whose tour of patrol it was might be. The sergeant couldn't tell. He explained that no sergeant was on patrol, as they were one short. One was asleep upstairs.

"Wake him up and let him see if he and the roundsmen, or the patrolman on beat 31," said Mr. Roosevelt, feigning while he went back to look for him again.

He came upon not only Policeman Maconey on beat 31, but another policeman, and the roundsmen as well, gossiping on the saloon corner at Forty-second street and Third avenue, at the extreme end of the beat. None of them knew the commissioner, and they laughed with a lilying smile while he inquired what they were doing there.

"Standing, of course; what else?" "What is your beat, sir?" asked Mr. Roosevelt of one of the trio. He said it was 31. "Ah!" said Mr. Roosevelt. "And yours?" "Sixteen," said No. 2, and the president turned his gaze upon the roundsmen.

"Post 17," he said, cheerily. "Huh!" said Mr. Roosevelt, eyeing a stripes, and left them. A block down the avenue Sergeant came hastening up, aroused from his bed. Mr. Roosevelt went back with him and confronted both sergeants at a desk. "Four men patrol badly," he said. "I know you are short-handed, but it is excuse for shirking. The board will see to it that a fourth sergeant is sent as soon as possible, but it expects for more than I have seen this morning."

Young Edward Rafter apprehended for pilfering from his employers. Officer Henry J. Donnelly arrested seventeen-year-old Edward A. Rafter yesterday for the theft of a pin valued at $14. The charge is on but one of many thefts, which amount in value to about $200, which Rafter is charged with by his employers, Chase & Co., the Chapel street outfitters.

Last December as Mr. Chase was looking over his stock of scarf pins he missed a pin valued at $14. The pin was a wash-bone of gold and contained a small diamond setting. At the time Mr. Chase had no idea who could have stolen it, but he reported the loss to Officer Donnelly.

The officer had noticed the pin and finally remembered seeing it on Rafter. When he learned where the boy was employed the matter explained itself. By inquiry the officer learned that the pin had been pawned for 75 cents in a Grand avenue pawn shop. Officer Donnelly communicated the facts to Mr. Chase and he began looking over his stock and found that a variety of articles were missing which he at once suspected had gone where the pin did. So when the boy was arrested yesterday morning he was confronted with a long list of missing articles, including scarfs, underwear, umbrellas, cuff buttons, canes and other goods, and he admitted having taken many of them, but he could not remember how he disposed of them all. A large part, however, he had sold to his friends or made presents to them, while many more had been pledged. The officer has located considerable of the stolen stuff, but will probably not be able to recover a quarter of it.

Young Rafter was locked up pending a further investigation of his case. He lives at 21 Garden street, in this city, and has four brothers. He had always hitherto been considered honest and upright.

AN OFFER OF A SITE. The Quimby Company Offer Land for a site for the East Haven School. The Quimby Co., which has purchased fifty-two acres of land in the vicinity of the Four Corners, and near Fort Wooster, have made a generous offer to the school district of East Haven.

The East Haven people are divided on the site for the location of a school and have asked the New Haven board to act as arbitrators in the matter. The Quimby company, part of whose land is in East Haven, offer as a free gift a tract of land on Main street, corner of Massachusetts avenue, with a frontage of 100 feet and a depth of 250 feet, for a site for the proposed school.

If the offer be declined the Quimby company place themselves in favor of the site known as the Forbes site. This site is on Main street and is easy of access, being on the line of the electric road. It is looked upon most favorably as this site of the town will soon be built up much more rapidly than heretofore. Many people doing business here in this city are contemplating making homes in this end of the town, and if the school is located there it will be an inducement.

It is said that $100 will be given by a responsible person if the Quimby company's offer is accepted.

MR. MASON MEANS BUSINESS.

Ready to Appear Before the Senate—Ready to Testify in Regard to His Charges.

After a committee of three senators was appointed by the state senate Thursday to investigate the charges of bribery and corruption made by Rev. J. H. Mason of the Wooster Place Baptist church against the Connecticut legislators on his sermon last Sunday evening, some thought that perhaps Mr. Mason would endeavor to avoid being called before the committee. When, however, he was asked regarding the matter he said that his only fear is that he will not be summoned, and the firm way in which he said it gave the impression that he was much in earnest, and would be only too ready to appear before the bar of the senate. He declines to discuss the situation. It is quite certain now that he will be given an opportunity to testify before the senate as to what he knows in relation to the charges.

Another attack was made upon the legislature Thursday night in Bridgeport, when Rev. Frank Russell, in addressing the delegates to the Fairfield county W. C. T. U. said that our legislative halls are places where laws are bought and sold, and otherwise scored legislators.

U. V. U. Sociable. The U. V. U. will hold an ice cream social at Turn hall Monday evening, June 10. The U. V. U. have many friends here and have held several social meetings, at which all who attended have had a most enjoyable time. The ice cream festival is quite the proper thing just now, and all who attend are assured of a good time.

Financial. A Lower Range of Prices Prevailed Early in the Day. New York, June 7.—A lower range of prices prevailed at the stock exchange early in the day, owing mainly to the receipt of selling orders from London a fresh batch of unfavorable crop reports from the west and continued liquidation in New York, Susquehanna and Western, Cordage, Reading, Atchison, North American and other low priced stocks. The reduction of the Chicago and Northwestern dividend on the common stock to 1 1/2 per cent, yesterday was used against the grangers and the general list sympathized to some extent.

Outside of Susquehanna and Western, however, the losses were by no means great. The stock named fell 4 per cent, for the preferred to 2 1/2 and 1 1/2 for the common to 6 1/2. The decline otherwise was 3/4 to 1 1/2 per cent, the latter in New York Central, which touched 57 1/2. Reading fell 1 1/2 to 1 3/4. Rubber 1 1/2 to 40 1/2 and Sugar, Northwest, Louisville and Nashville, Manhattan, Missouri and Texas preferred and Tennessee Coal and Iron each about 1 per cent. The Cordage shares sold at the lowest figures on record, namely 1 1/2 for the common and 3/4 for the preferred and 7 for the guaranteed.

The market experienced a change for the better with the announcement that the directors of the American Sugar Refining company at a meeting this afternoon had declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, on the common and 1 1/2 on the preferred stock. This started a latent short interest into covering and a rise from 11 1/2 to 12 1/2 ensued. The stock responded so promptly that the bears in other parts of the list took alarm and under moderate purchases a general rally ensued.

The advance was more rapid than the early decline in a number of instances. Consolidated Gas rose 3/4 to 147 1/2 on a belief that Governor Morton will sign the bill now before him, which is favorable to the company's interest. New York, Susquehanna and Western preferred jumped 1/2 to 25 1/2, common 3/4 to 25, Minnesota Iron 5/4 to 65, Lake Shore 1 1/2 to 147 1/2, Lackawanna 1 1/2 to 162, New Jersey Central 1 1/2 to 92 1/2 and Tennessee Coal and Iron 1 1/2 to 29 1/2. Commercial Cable sold at 162, a rise of 12 points from the last previously reported sale.
