CONSUMPTION. Circular Recently Issued by the Connecticut State Board of Health. A circular entitled "Consumption: Its Causes and Means of Prevention," has just been issued by the Connecticut State Board of Health for public information. The circular, which contains some valuable information, is as follows: Consumption is the most destructive disease among us. More than a thousand people die from it in this state every year. Much of this suffering and sorrow can be prevented by proper care on the part of the sick and those who attend them. The disease is a preventable one. It is now known that its cause is a germ called the tubercle bacillus. This germ is found in immense numbers in the sputum of consumptive patients. When this sputum dries, the invisible germs which it contains in enormous numbers, rise and float in the air with the dust, and may be breathed into our lungs. Healthy persons may thus take the disease. This is the usual mode of infection. Therefore the key to the control of consumption lies in the immediate and absolute destruction of the infected sputa of all consumptives. For every such person is a producer of consumption seed, which is a living germ of very long and very strong life. If he sows it broadcast about him in his sputum, it soon dries and floats in the air to infect himself and others who may breathe in the deadly dust. This germ is not easily killed by disinfectants. They will destroy it only after contact for a long time. Even boiling it for fifteen minutes is not effectual. Burning by fire is the best means of destroying it; fire is infallible. It resists cold also. When the sputum of a consumptive has passed out of his possession he cannot recover it. He has sent it on its mission of death with heedless indifference, to find such victims as it may. Public safety requires that any person who has pulmonary consumption should spit nowhere except upon or into some receptacle which may be burned with the disease-germs which his expectoration contains. Pocket spit-cups have been invented, but old handkerchiefs, freshly-washed rags or cheap Japanese napkins are admirably adapted for such purpose, and can be burned without loss. If all the sputa of all tuberculous persons, from this time on, could be utterly destroyed, the next generation would, in all probability, be practically exempt from this most fatal malediction. But other precautions are necessary; no person should sleep in a room occupied by a consumptive. Rooms so occupied become infected and have been proved to be the cause of the disease in many cases. Such rooms should be frequently disinfected by scientific methods. The dry broom, the feather duster and all its substitutes, should be rigorously expelled from every consumptive's habitation. The damp cloth and the fire should be the chief implements of house-cleaning where consumptives dwell. Tuberculous mothers should not nurse their children, because the germs are sometimes found in the milk. The milk of tuberculous cows should never be used. Members of tuberculous families ought to find out-of-door occupation. Overcrowding, bad ventilation in houses or shops, employments which make dust, dampness of the soil, increase the liability to tuberculous infection, and are therefore to be avoided. It would be a general public educator, if there could be hung in street and railway cars, public halls, theaters, business offices and stores conspicuous notices to this effect: "Spitting on the Floor Positively Forbidden." They would be constant reminders, and by working a reform in the disgusting habit of spitting, would contribute largely to public safety. The State Board of Health, believing that any effort to restrict and control the prevalence of Consumption, will be a failure without the hearty and intelligent co-operation of the public, issues this circular in the hope that the information which it gives will awaken an interest which will bring practical results. A diagram is also given exhibiting the comparative mortality by absolute numbers, from twenty of the most prominent causes of death in Connecticut in 1894. Some statistics drawn from the diagram are as follows: Total deaths. 1. Consumption ..... 1311 2. Pneumonia ..... 1113 3. Infantile Diarrhoea ..... 943 4. Cholera ..... 583 5. Accidents ..... 566 6. HELD OF THE TRAIN. The Lake Shore Express from New York Robbed by Six Masked Men—A Large Sum of Money Taken—Passengers Not Molested. Toledo, July 24.—Train No. 37, the west-bound New York and Chicago express on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad, was held up by six masked men at 12:30 this morning at a lonely place in the woods known as Reece Siding, between Archibald and Stryker, O., about ten miles west of Wauseon. The train stops there to let the eastern express pass. The latter train was approaching when the robbery took place. The robbers were mounted and rode out of the woods, which are dense and close to the track. Conductor Darling, who was standing near one of the coaches, was ordered inside at the point of a revolver. Admission to the express car was obtained by the same means, and the messenger was forced to open the safe. The robbers were evidently familiar with the train, and it is thought that employees of the railroad company or of the express company must be implicated, either as principals or as confederates. It was undoubtedly known to the bandits that an unusually large sum was in the express safe that night. The amount given out as having been obtained by the thieves is $8,000, but it is believed that a much larger sum was taken. No attempt was made to molest the passengers, none of whom knew anything of the occurrence. When the thieves had secured the contents of the safe they rode quietly away. General Superintendent Coniff, Assistant Superintendent Bloodgett and Chief Detective Robinson, with a party of detectives, left here immediately by special train. The country is being scoured for traces of the robbers. It is in the neighborhood of these dense woods at Reece Siding, where the train stops unprotected, that the highwaymen operated successfully last year and the year before. Large sums of money were secured both times. WHAT THE MESSENGER SAYS. Chicago, July 24.—Express Messenger Nettleton said in regard to the robbery: "I was dining in my chair near the safe about 12 o'clock last night and the train was making about forty miles an hour. I knew there would not be another stop for half an hour, so I was surprised and startled when the brakes began to jar on the wheels. The train came to a stop and I suspected something was wrong. I had no sooner come to that conclusion when there was a shock and report under the forward end of my car. The glass in the window next to my corner was shattered into a thousand pieces. "I grabbed my Spencer (a little short shotgun) and stood at the door, which was unlocked and had been partly open. In the darkness I saw two men with guns pointed at me. I dodged back into the car and, raising my gun, let them have it, as I thought, full in the face. Apparently it didn't hit, and after that they would not stand any monkeying. "If you put any value on your life you'll get down that gun and let us in," then I gave up and they came in and went to work. They got into the way safe easy enough, but after exploding six charges of dynamite against the other one they gave it up. Three times they left me in the car while they exploded the dynamite, and three times they took me up. They kept me covered all the time with their guns. "There were two who were working in the car and two who stood outside on guard. The men had handkerchiefs tied over their faces and I could not recognize them. I was not frightened until it was all over. "As soon as the train arrived in Chicago this morning the express car was run on the side track next to the United States Express freight office, where the superintendent and others boarded it. Every window had been smashed and the side of the car next to where the safe stood has one board missing. The inside wall was smashed to kindling wood. The big safe showed a circular, concrete dent about six inches in diameter, where the dial had been. The dial itself had been blown off and fragments of it lay about the car. Among the other trophies left by the bandits was a four-inch stick of dynamite. The way safe which was opened is a small affair, and is no more than an iron round chest about the size of a steamer trunk. The facts as to the actual loss are hard to get at, inasmuch as everything given out has had to pass the approval of Superintendent Wiggan. Twice when telling his story the messenger stopped and appeared to that gentleman to know whether his narrative was meeting with approval. A rumor that found some currency was to the effect that $40,000 worth of jewelry had been put on board at Cleveland, and that this was known to the robbers and that their raid was planned with this in mind. Superintendent Wygant of the United States Express company to-day places the loss at $150.
