LEACH EXECUTED. The Murderer Killed by Electricity at Sing Sing. Sing Sing, Aug. 5.—Richard Leach was killed in the electric chair this morning. The current was turned on at 11:16:40 o'clock. The first contact was 1,740 volts. The current was then reduced to 300. Then it went up to 1,700, was reduced to 300, and went up again to 1,700. It was one continuous current. It lasted one minute and fifty-seven seconds. There was no second shock.

The witnesses of the execution were principally physicians and newspapermen. Richard Henry Galling of New York, one of Leach's lawyers, was also present. These were conducted to the execution chamber at 11:30 a. m. At 11:35 o'clock Electrician Davis said that all was ready, and a minute later Leach was conducted into the room from his cell adjoining Warden Sage and several guards. Chaplain Wells walked beside the condemned man, but the latter walked erect, and needed no support in his short journey to the fatal chair.

His smooth face and short stature gave him the appearance of a boy as he took his seat in the chair. The straps were adjusted in about half a minute, and at 11:36:40 Dr. Gibbs, who was holding the watch, nodded to Electrician Davis and the latter gave the signal to turn on the current. A convulsive straightening of Leach's limbs and several gasps, followed by the rapidly heightening color of his face, were the only external indications of the work of the electric fluid.

Upon the first examination of the body, which was about a minute after the current ceased, several of the doctors thought they could detect a slight pulsation of the heart. It was thought at first that the current would have to be applied a second time, but after waiting about five minutes all the doctors present again examined the body, and all pronounced the man dead beyond question. At 11:39 Leach was officially pronounced dead. There was but one application of the current.

When Leach was about to sit down in the chair he removed the eye glasses from his nose and placed them in his vest pocket. He shook hands with Chaplain Wells and bade him good-bye. Last night Leach wrote the following on a scrap of paper to the warden: "For her alone my love shall be—for her alone. My tears shall fall for her alone; Death shall be only sacrifice, that the gift of my soul to God. May atone for her and me. "R. LEACH."

Richard Leach made his final preparations for death this morning as calmly as most men would make ready for a day's journey. He slept well last night, going to bed at 11 o'clock and awaking only two or three times for short intervals between that hour and 7 o'clock this morning. His first caller this morning was Dr. Irvine, the prison physician, who visited his cell about 8 o'clock at the prisoner's request. Leach's object in wishing to see the doctor was to talk about the disposition of his body after the execution. He had but a faint hope that his relatives would claim his remains for burial, and his request to Dr. Irvine was that some of the physicians attending the autopsy be allowed to carry away any portion of his body. The desired promise was given by Dr. Irvine and also by Warden Sage, who called shortly afterward and found Leach eating breakfast.

His last meal consisted of fresh peaches, chicken, rolls, beef tea and coffee, and he ate it with evident relish. Prison Chaplain Wells was the condemned man's next caller, and he remained with him until the last moment. The Rev. Dr. Robert Collier of New York arrived on the 9:44 train and spent about an hour with the prisoner. On account of his advanced age and somewhat feeble health he begged to be excused from witnessing the execution, and both Warden Sage and the prisoner agreed that it was unnecessary for him to attend.

Mrs. T. DEWITT TALMAGE DEAD. She Passed Away at Danville Yesterday Morning. Danville, Aug. 5.—The wife of Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage died at 5:30 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Talmage had been ill for the past year, and off and on during that time had been staying at the Danville sanitarium, receiving the most careful medical treatment. She had been suffering from nervous prostration ever since the tabernacle was burned in May, 1893. Mrs. Talmage and her family were in the building when the fire broke out, and quickly made their escape. Dr. Talmage returned to this country. She went to Dr. Talmage's summer home in Easthampton, and for a time her health improved. Then the attacks of nervousness and hysteria returned with more frequency, and she went to the sanitarium. A few days ago a change for the worse took place. Her husband was summoned from the west, where he had been on a lecturing tour. Mrs. Talmage was Dr. Talmage's second wife. She leaves two married and two unmarried daughters and one son, the Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage.

KILLED IN A CANYON. Sudden Death of a Yale Sophomore—Struck by Lightning in Arizona—His Brother, Also of Yale, Frostrated, But Recovers—Sons of a Stamford Millionaire. Stamford, Aug. 5.—The news was received here to-day telling of the killing by lightning in the Grand Canyon, Arizona, of Blackley Hoyt Porter, second son of Timothy H. Porter, the millionaire of this city. Young Mr. Porter with his brother, Louis Hopkins Porter, left this city two weeks ago for a trip to Alaska. They missed the steamer in San Francisco, and while waiting for the next, joined an exploring party to visit the Grand Canyon. The fatal accident occurred last Thursday. The party, with their guides, were caught in the canyon during a terrific thunder and rain storm. They took shelter under a jutting rock. Hardly had they reached shelter when a bolt of lightning struck the rock, shattering it and instantly killing Mr. Porter. Louis, his brother, was prostrated and terribly burned by the lightning, but survived.

Dr. H. P. Lebb, the family physician of the Porters, was dispatched to-day to Arizona, to bring back the body of Beckley and attend Louis. Both young men are widely known and have many friends throughout the country. They were students at Yale, Louis being in the junior class and Beckley in the sophomore. At college they were popular and took a leading place both socially and in their studies. Mr. Porter, their father, has received much attention of late owing to the litigation over his estate.

Fever at Black Rock. Bridgeport, Aug. 5.—Typhoid fever broken out in the family of Eugene Merritt in Black Rock, just west of here, and there is much alarm felt there. The water has been examined, but the health officials believe it did not spring from that source. Now they think the family which occupied the premises a short time ago emptied refuse in the yard and that it percolated into the well, as the water there is somewhat tainted. A thorough investigation will be made.

When the first of the heavy traffic began, at about 6 o'clock this morning, three car trains were run at intervals of fifteen minutes, and were really nothing more than an aggravation. Thousands wished to board each train where there was room for but one. The result was a frightful crush in and about the Brooklyn entrances to the bridge. Hats were knocked away and clothing torn in some of the crushes. The awful crowding immediately made the cars so hot that passengers were almost overcome. In more than one instance they became alarmed and tried to get out of the cars, but were wedged in so tightly that all effort in that direction was so much effort wasted.

At 7 o'clock, when the travel was heaviest, the jam extended for a block from the terminus of the bridge in Brooklyn. The north driveway was turned into a promenade. The regular promenade was closed. A conservative estimate of the persons who walked across the north driveway this morning places the number at 100,000. They poured off the bridge in a steady stream. Looking out from this end of the structure it seemed as if the driveway was so tightly packed with humanity that there was not an inch of space between the pedestrians. That constant stream poured into Park Row without any interruption for almost two hours. Then it began to abate, and along about 9 o'clock one could walk across the bridge with some degree of comfort, though there was still a good deal of a jam at the Brooklyn entrance. The trouble was all over late in the afternoon, and travel on the bridge resumed its normal state.
