VERILY it seems odd that the Sioux hostiles are being given extra rations, while on the borders of the Bad Lands the whites are in a state of destitution that is almost starvation.

SEVERAL new ledges have been recently discovered in the mountains to the south of Salt River. The ores, though refractory, run high in gold and silver and the veins are large and promising.

THE opening of the toll road through the heart of the Bradshaw Mountains, providing an easy and expeditious way to Prescott, will prove of immediate and material benefit to Salt River Valley merchants and farmers.

GRAHAM County is boasting of a sweet potato weighing sixteen pounds. Maricopa County can overtake that. About four years ago a Mesa City farmer brought to Phoenix a fine, solid sweet potato, weighing twenty-two and one-half pounds.

In thinking of Arizona, most people abroad have an idea of it as a place, not as an expanse of territory that would make a fair-sized European kingdom. There are in Arizona almost all varieties of climate and productions, and intending emigrants can here find in some part of the Territory the peculiar natural qualifications they most affect.

SAYS the Nogales Herald: "The Phoenix Gazette threatens to violently assail the National Republican party with all its prestige, bad press work, hunch-backed grammar and worse orthography. Disastrous political culminations of so grave a character really ought not to originate in a political division of the United States encompassing so slight a degree of distinction as a Territorial form of government. However, if the Gazette has made up its mind to 'swish' its tail the North American continent may as well prepare now to expectorate triple-plated Limburger cheese."

An interesting article was reprinted in yesterday's issue from the Tucson Star, explanatory of the success of a farmer in the Santa Cruz Valley in irrigating by means of a pump, though compelled to sink a distance of sixty feet to secure the precious fluid. The experience of Mr. Hart should be studied by Salt River Valley farmers. They have water much nearer the surface than he has, necessarily entailing less expense in lifting it to the surface and there seems no obstacle in the way of a successful accomplishment of his plan in nearly every section of this valley.

It is time to begin work on the preparation of an exhibit for the World's Fair. Arizona has many products, novel in their way, that would serve to distinguish and render worthy her exhibit, no matter how multiplied and varied were the surrounding displays. Arizona, the land of mystery, could present for the study of the archaeologist and the gaze of the curious the relics of a by-gone race that has left in every valley and on every mountain top the abundant evidence of a civilization that is to be compared to that of ancient Assyria. In minerals no country could show more beautiful specimens or a grander display. In agriculture the most nearly perfect of the products of the field, orchard and vineyard would be excelled by the exhibits of no other land. In scenery, the pictures of the many grand natural features of Arizona would attract throngs of admirers. Now is none too soon to commence the work of gathering a display. Let the word be passed.

POWDERLY, Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, chose to place himself in a very silly light at Ocala, Saturday evening, when he addressed the National Farmers' Alliance in denunciation of labor-saving machinery. He was especially bitter against all electric devices, declaring that the capitalists had cornered God's wrath and compelled it to do their bidding. By these wild and foolish remarks Mr. Powderly will lose much of the prestige that has heretofore attached to him. He has shown that he was born several centuries too late. He would have been popular with the people who tried to tear up the tracks of the first railroad, crying that it was a contrivance of the devil, devised to cheat men and beasts of the honest toil that God had appointed for them. Verily, Mr. Powderly will not be consistent if he does not in his next speech advocate the abolition of the railroads, upon which the members of his order mainly find their employment, and the relegation of all traffic to carts. He is not the first man who has attempted to stay the progress of the world, and he will not be the first to be left behind in the advancement of men and ideas. The irresistible sentiment of civilization is ever toward a nearer approach to perfection. Labor saving devices may render useless the services of many a navy, the services of the "hewer of wood and drawer of water" are annually being held in less account, but those men who keep abreast of the times, those workmen and artisans who, by the application of intelligent industry, have made themselves competent to manage the many great and useful inventions of the age, are not complaining. Intelligent and honest labor has never stood in the way of progress, but demagoguery will usually be found in just such a position, striving to win the support of the ignorant and vicious, to serve its own personal ends.

SPEAKING of George Kelley's suggestion of John Marion, of the Prescott Courier for Governor when Arizona becomes a State, the Nogales Herald says: "George Kelley, of the Graham County Bulletin, nominates John Marion, of the Prescott Courier, for Governor. John would make a very good Governor, because he has the sense, and a tolerable appreciation of honesty, but how's he going to get there? Arizona can't get into the Union with a bouquet of polygamists in one hand and a floral offering of cheery politicians (all Democrats, of course) in the other; and the next administration will most assuredly be Republican. If we are ever to be afflicted with another Democratic Governor, however, the editor of the Courier would be our first choice—but we believe there is still a God in Israel."

FRESNO RAISIN PACK. It Will be Very Large and of Excellent Quality. From the Fresno Expositor. "Yes," said Manager Fish, of Schacht, Lemcke & Steiner, "we packed as many raisins as we expected to this season. The quality of the berry is fine this year, and more care has been taken to pack the fruit nicely than ever before. Whether there could be any improvements in the methods of packing? Well, we think our pack as fine as one as there is, but it is hard to tell at what point one must arrive to make further improvement impossible. "There is room for improvement in the handling of the raisins before they reach the packing houses, though, as a rule, the fruit is brought to us in very fair condition. We require the vineyardists from whom we buy to grade their raisins; some of the other houses, I believe, assort them themselves. We have only two grades, layers and loose, and use only the best raisins for either. "The pack this season will probably amount to 750,000 boxes, the recent fine weather having enabled the vineyardists to relieve their losses caused by the rains some time ago."
