BUTTER AND CHEESE.

HOW CHEESE CAN BEST BE PUT ON THE HOME MARKET.

It Must Always Be Borne in Mind That the Majority of American Consumers Want a Mild Cheese—They Will Have the Best or None.

According to a New York grocer the demand for cheese is probably affected by the quality almost more than any other article of food. In this country it is as yet a comparative luxury, although in Europe it is as much a staple as meat, consequently the majority of our people call for cheese only as the palate is pleased.

Owing to the improvement in the standard of cheese made in this country, our demand has increased very largely, as is shown by the fact that only a few years since only about 16 per cent. of our product was consumed at home, while 84 per cent. was exported.

Much cheese is lost or damaged by not being properly taken care of. In summer it should be kept in the coolest place possible, and so covered that flies cannot get at it; a tight cheese safe or refrigerator is best.

Many people have a mistaken idea about swollen cheese, thinking that, as in a can of fruit, fermentation and decomposition have set in and it is spoiled.

We have been in factory curing rooms on warm days when half the cheeses on the shelves were swollen, but the factorymen did not for a moment consider them damaged, but turned them daily, and if badly swollen ran a needle into them, thus giving the gas a chance to escape, and they got back into shape as soon as cooled off.

To present cheese in perfection a grocer should not buy too much of it at a time, as it is apt to get hard and stale on his hands. Two weeks' supply at once should be the limit, while one week's is still better.

The internal revenue receipts from oleomargarine had a steep fall in the past year. The main reason is said to be that real butter has been so cheap and plentiful.

The Minnesota agricultural experiment station has found that by washing butter in the granular state with brine the full amount of salt is incorporated with the latter.

Field and Farm asks its readers if it ever occurred to them that milking a cow without first wetting her teats will cause her milk to leak from the teats.

Some lots of butter were shipped from Australia to London, and reached their destination when the butter was two months old. It was found to be in good condition, and brought a fine price.

Dairy and farm butter should be sold directly to consumers to be profitable. There are a few tolerably sure signs of a poor butter maker.

PHOTOGRAPH HOLDERS.

Handsome Case for the Preservation of Sun Drawn Portraits.

Photographs today are in highest favor, as well as in the greatest perfection, and they may be made in all sorts of attractive designs. The open fan design is a particularly pretty one, and would be an appropriate gift to a young man who possessed photographs of all the reigning belles in his own locality.

FAN SHAPED HOLDER.

The satin may be applied with mullage, paste or with a rich gold or crimson—to properly display the photographs placed against it. The yellow is very attractive as a background for trumpet flowers, the heavy greens of the leaves and rich reds leaving the yellow parts of the flower to be colored by the satin itself.

The squares are then nicely covered with bits of plush to match the satin, on which lettering in dull red makes piquant description of the photos they are to support. The fan and these bits may be lined with thin silk or colored cambric. The squares are easily sewed in place, save the top and end one, which may be pasted against the fan or fastened by means of skillful stitching.

EMMA MOFFETT TYNG.

The Fashions of Paris.

Evening toilets are made this season of richer materials than ever before, and the highest novelty is velours de Venise, which is a velvet brocade upon velvet.

SERGE PROMENADE TOILET AND VELOURS DE VENISE DINNER ROBE.

very expensive robe. Of this the long Italian sleeves are made, lined with soft armure silk, and the train is of the same, while the corsage and jupes are of Ottoman silk laid in deep plaits, sometimes fastened with beaded passementerie.

The novelties in woolen goods for early spring are diagonals and serges, soft striped silk warp and woolen Henriettas, and shepherd checks in gray and white and black and white.

Navy blue A. A. and B. B. in shade is a favorite. This is seen in fine serge, with a border woven in of gray and navy satin in broken diagonals, and below this a band of three inches of black astrakhan. Sometimes the whole will be sprinkled with large polka dots of astrakhan.

Washington a Woman's Paradise. Washington is a paradise for the woman who loves to show her independence.

Every day of the year woman tourists arrive, stop at one of the big hotels, and start out to see the town. Washington has the most famous woman lawyer, the best known woman dress reformer, and no end of women who make their way in the world in the public departments, in professional life and as proprietors of hotels and boarding houses, to say nothing of the many women who go there to push their claims upon the government with energy and persistency more than masculine.

When Gen. Spinner was in congress he voted for Lucretia Mott for chaplain of the house of representatives.

MEAT THREE TIMES A DAY. Such a Statement Would Not Be Believed Abroad.

The following from John Roach's testimony before a congressional committee in 1883 will be found interesting: No man wants to bring his friends to this country from any place where they are better off, and in connection with this subject I would suggest to the members of this committee that they ought not to leave New York without making three or four visits to Castle

Garden and looking at the condition of these poor immigrants as they come here and comparing it with the appearance and condition of their brothers or friends, who have paid their passage to this country and who are here to welcome them. If you will just go down there and see for yourselves, you will be convinced that there is no greater absurdity than to say that these people are better off in the old country than here.

Let me illustrate that. I have a German clerk in my office who writes a great many letters for poor German people who cannot write themselves, and a little incident that occurred two years ago, and to which he called my attention, will serve to illustrate this idea. A man got this clerk to write a letter, in which he undertook to give a description of America, and he went on to say to his friend, "I eat meat once regularly every day." The clerk turned around to him and said, "What do you say that for? You know that you eat meat three times a day. I see it in your kettle."

A Woman's Reason. Laura—I wonder why Booth isn't with Barrett this season? Jean—Why, don't you know that Booth is giving all his time to that wonderful Salvation Army of his, and to his plan for helping the London poor? Why don't you read the papers, dear?—Pittsburg Bulletin.

THE NEW FORAGE PLANT

Pronounced by the Agricultural Department to be a Mallow. Colonel Charles D. Poston, agent of the Agricultural Department, yesterday received the following letter from the Secretary of the department. It refers to the plant spoken of in THE REPUBLICAN at the time Mr. Poston forwarded it:

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BOTANICAL DIVISION, WASHINGTON, D. C., February 11, 1891. MR. CHARLES D. POSTON, AGENT FOR ARIZONA. DEAR SIR: Your letter of February 5 and the package of a forage plant have been duly received.

In answer to your inquiry I will state that the plant has been referred to the botanist of the department, who reports that it is a plant of the mallow family, and of the genus spharalcea. There is no reason to doubt its usefulness as a forage plant, especially for sheep, and it is well worth the attention of farmers and efforts should be made to bring it into cultivation.

The mallow is well known as the best provender for sheep in Scotland and Ireland. Mallow Junction, in Ireland, is named from the abundance and excellence of the plant.
