REACHED THE CLIMAX

The River Higher Yesterday Than Before.

Greatest Stage of Water Ever Known Here.

Waters Receding and People Hopeful That the Storm is Over.

From Other Districts.

At last the climax in the flood seems to have been reached, and people gave to a sigh of relief yesterday when it became known that the waters were subsiding.

All day Monday there was a feeling of uneasiness and dread, fearing that the rains of Sunday and Monday would bring the river up to its former high stage of last week. Slowly the water kept creeping up, and all night long a large crowd congregated at the office of the Improvement Company, anxious to hear from the head of the Arizona canal, where the register of the water was kept.

Slowly the river kept rising, and each succeeding report showed it a little more dangerous. Already the water was flooding the low lands south of the city, and if the rise continued it would come up as high as before. Finally, at 2:40 yesterday morning, the faithful watchman at the dam reported 17 feet 1 inch of water, the height reached at the last flood, and the river still rising.

Then the fire alarm was sounded, and officers went riding through the districts formerly submerged warning all to get out. The river continued to rise until it reached the unprecedented height of 18 feet 2 inches over the dam.

Shortly after daylight the levee thrown up yesterday just above the head of the old Maricopa canal, broke and the water began to sweep over north of the railroad, following much the same course as in the inundation last week. The new bulkheads of the canals stood firm and no water came down through them to add to that sweeping over the hastily constructed levee.

South of the railroad, however, there was a greater volume of water than before and it covered the lots in the south end of the city to a depth of three inches greater than formerly.

About 10:30 news came from the dam that the river had begun falling and each succeeding message was but a repetition of the good news. This point is about 40 miles by the windings of the river from a point in the river due south of the city, and it was not until 3 o'clock that any fall was noticed here. However, the waters began to subside rapidly by dark and this morning will see no water outside the river bed excepting here and there on little patches of low ground where there is no direct outlet.

The weather last night was clear and cold, and all now look forward to ideal Arizona spring weather, when the ravages of the flood can be rapidly repaired.

EFFECTS OF THE STORM.

Adobe Houses That Stood the First Flood Go Down This Time.

When the water began to come down yesterday morning, everybody living between the ground flooded before and Jefferson street, moved out, except a few, who made water breaks out of lumber and dirt.

A few adobe houses that stood the other raise went down yesterday, but as every thing had been moved out before the water came, nothing inside of them was lost.

Dr. O. L. Mahoney's house, in Montgomery's addition, that was held by his brother-in-law Rosen during the last high water, went down with a crash yesterday, but everything inside had been previously removed.

An adobe belonging to Frank and J. M. Shott, standing along side of J. K. Murphy's brick residence, fell yesterday evening, and came near knocking one end of Murphy's house in.

Ed Innis' house, near the depot, that was damaged before, fell yesterday.

Smith's mill and Minor's ice house were kept dry again by keeping up the levees that had been thrown up last week.

The brick houses in the Linville addition seem to be standing the storm first rate. A party went out in a boat last night at dark, and examined them, and reported all in good condition. Several tons of baled hay were pulled out of the water. It probably came from Blinn's lumber yard.

CAVE CREEK OVERFLOWS.

Grain and Alfalfa Ranches Flooded West of Phoenix.

The overflow from Cave creek, noted in yesterday's issue, has developed to have been one of the most serious incidents of the wet weather. Many farms west and northwest of the city have been flooded to the depth of several feet and a number of adobe houses washed away. The water came to within three miles of Phoenix on the Yuma road, and the flow at that point was probably a mile and a half wide.

J. A. Vinson, who came in from the Grand avenue country yesterday, says the flow is unprecedented, the water taking an entirely new course. He says little damage will be done, as nearly all the grain is well rooted and strong.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Orme came into the city yesterday from their ranch west

A Day Devoted Largely to Railroads.

Long Sessions Held in Both Houses.

The World's Fair and Australian Ballot Bills in the House.

Council called to order at 2 p. m., President Hughes in the chair.

Roll call showed all members present. Prayer by Chaplain.

Minutes of previous session read and approved.

Mr. Doran introduced a petition from citizens of Pinal County in favor of a reformatory for youthful criminals. Referred to Committee on Education.

A memorial to Congress was read petitioning Congress to appropriate for a survey of the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad lands. Adopted unanimously.

Mr. Frank introduced Council Bill No. 62, fixing salaries for District Attorneys. In counties of the first-class, $2500; second-class, $1500; third-class, $1000.

Mr. Dennis introduced Council Bill No. 63, concerning delinquent taxes. Rules suspended, bill read second time by title and referred to Committee on Judiciary.

Mr. Simpson introduced Council Bill No. 64, relating to executions.

Mr. Hughes introduced Council Bill No. 65, an act for the protection of miners, providing that in quartz mines over the depth of 300 feet there shall be provided a second mode of egress.

Committee reports were received.

The report of the Sanitary Commission was returned from Committee on Territories and referred to Committee on Ways and Means.

Notices of bills were read.

House Bill No. 4 was read second time by title. Referred to Committee on Ways and Means.

House Bill No. 45 was read second time. Referred to Committee on Territories.

House Bill No. 18 was reported from committee, with amendments. Report of committee adopted. Read third time and passed. This bill stipulates that executives shall make annual reports.

Council Bill No. 39, the freights and fare bill, was reported from Committee on Corporations, with amendments. Mr. Zulick offered an amendment, prescribing an 8-cent maximum rate, instead of 6 cents, as fixed by the bill. He did not believe that any railroad in the Territory, except the one to Clifton, was making any money. He did not believe that railroads should be legislated against, but rather, encouraged. Mr. Herndon replied in a long argument for the provisions of his act, believing a 6-cent rate to be equitable to both parties and profitable to the roads. Mr. Zulick retorted, paying his respects to Acting-Governor Murphy and to the Senate. Mr. Simpson stated that the gentleman from Maricopa had had ample opportunity to investigate the matter before the Committee on Corporations, but had failed to do so. He drifted into anecdote and told the story of the woodchuck and skunk, wherein the former had remarked to the latter: "You don't look like a woodchuck, you don't smell like a woodchuck." He did not like the gentleman from Maricopa to the woodchuck.

Upon question Mr. Zulick's amendment was lost, 9 to 3. Messrs. Hughes, Dennis and Zulick alone voting in its favor. The question was then upon the committee amendments. Carried by a unanimous vote. The bill went to engrossment and third reading.

Council Bill No. 40, to regulate the rates of freight, was reported back from Committee on Corporations with recommendation that the matter be submitted to a special committee with Mr. Herndon as chairman.

Mr. Herndon, from the Committee on Corporations, submitted a majority report, asking that the bill be referred back to the Committee on Corporations.

The majority report was adopted and the bill referred to a committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Herndon, Dennis and Frank.

A message from the Governor was read, informing the Council that he had signed Council Bill No. 29, an act to reimburse Giles county.

Council Bill No. 18 came upon special order of business. Laid upon the table.

House Concurrent Resolution No. 4 was received and laid upon the table.

Mr. Simpson moved a reconsideration of the vote upon Council Bill No. 27, the criminal witness fee bill. The motion was lost by a 14 vote. Messrs. Baldwin, Herndon, Thurmond, Vickers, Zulick and Hughes voting in the negative.

Council Bill No. 16, relating to the holding of a constitutional convention, came up on special order of business. Bill made special order of business for Tuesday at 3:30.

The Council then adjourned.

The Assembly.

House called to order at 2 o'clock p. m. Mr. Tevis absent. Excused.

Prayer by Chaplain.

Minutes read and approved.

Mr. Fisher informed the House that House Bill No. 28 was made a special order of business and that the bill had not been returned from the Enrolled Committee.

The Committee on Enrolled and Engrossed Bills reported House Bills Nos. 1 and 28 correct and engrossed. Mr. Fisher moved that the rules be suspended to amend House Bill No. 28. Mr. Chalmers addressed the House in opposition to the motion, holding that the bill had been before the House sufficient time for any amendments and that it had been the author of the bill after the long delay. Mr. Fisher read the amendment, providing that all railroads should not charge more than 6 cents per mile, passenger rate, nor 10 cents per ton for freight.

A message from the Governor instructed the House that his excellency

A WALLAPAI BANQUET

The Indians Attracted to a Big Talk.

Professor McCowan Delivers an Address.

The Advantages of Peaceful Ways and Education Plainly Demonstrated.

From the Mohave Miner.

Last Sunday was a gala day with the Wallapais, and our citizens seemed to enjoy seeing them happy. The great father at Washington, through the superintendents of the Indian school service at Fort Mohave, had duly announced his generous purpose of distributing beef and flour to his wards on Saturday, February 24. By some mistake of the Indian runners they had fixed the dates in some of the camps on February 25, so in order to give all the Indians an opportunity to be present, that date was fixed for the issue. Early in the morning the brave red man, with his squaws and papooses, his ponies, dogs, guns and general belongings began to distribute himself in the street and open country in front of the new court house, where it was announced that Chief Serrum would make a "big talk." The look of expectation was strong on the faces of the crowd, especially of the women and children, and many an anxious glance was cast in the direction of Crozier & Mackenzie's corral, where the beavers were safely penned.

Serrum was reticent and sulky and was trying to convince his people that the hospitality of the Government was offered as a lure, to entice them to part with their children, and to compel them to attend the school at Fort Mohave. That if they yielded to the temptation their children would surely be taken from them, the whites would control the children for their own purposes and the glory of the Wallapais as a tribe and nation be among the things that were. But the prospect of something to eat was too strong for the chief's logic. Presently Professor McCowan made his appearance on the porch, an interpreter was selected and Chief Levy-Levy, one of Serrum's lieutenants, made the first talk—rehearsing how many years the Wallapais had lived here in good and noble they were, making special mention of his own virtues, how he had always counseled peace and taught his people to respect the rights of his white brother. Levy-Levy touched very lightly on the school question (evidently not desiring to jeopardize the things that were getting some) but thought of the old ways the best ways. Then Serrum made his talk, the substance of which has already been indicated, and insisting that his children ought to work for him, showing in all he said what an awful power of ignorance and superstition he possessed in the things of a savage and how selfishness and egotism bar the way to all progress.
