CITY AND COUNTY IN BRIEF.

Small Paragraphs of General Interest.

The News of a Day in Phoenix and Its Tributary Regions Presented in a Nutshell—Doings of People and Other Matters.

A prominent real estate man said yesterday that he had received more inquiries regarding Phoenix and the valley by prospective settlers and investors than he had had in several years.

Regular devotional meeting of the Epworth League of the M. E. church, Winnie Henshaw, secretary, will be held in the Sunday school room next Sunday evening, February 6, at 6 o'clock. Subject, "Living Close to Christ." Teacher, Dr. George B. Pratt. Every one invited to attend.

A brief session of supreme court was held yesterday at which only two cases were heard, A. L. Johns and R. E. Daggis et al vs. the Phoenix National bank. In both cases A. J. Daggis argued for the plaintiffs in error. In the former, Thomas Armstrong, Jr., appeared for the defendant, and in the latter the defendant was represented by L. H. Chalmers. Both cases were submitted.

Mr. J. H. Lee, for many years a prominent resident of Yavapai county, is in the city. Mr. Lee is arranging his affairs for Klondyke as soon as navigation opens on the Yukon. He has sold all his cattle, but will retain his ranch. His family will remain on it. Mr. Lee believes there are great possibilities in the north. "I am going to take advantage of them," he said, "and I think every other young man should do so." Mr. Lee is not so young as he was twenty years ago, but he is by no means old.

Phoenix contributed liberally to the "Bostonians," who will appear at the Tucson opera house tonight. A party of thirteen ladies and gentlemen left last night for Tucson. This is perhaps the first time on record that so large a party traveled 200 miles to attend a theater. Those who went were Stanley R. McCormick, L. F. Pease, J. W. Garrett, L. H. Goodrich, Frank C. Hatch, J. W. Craton, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Lampey, Miss L. Solomon, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hordley, Mrs. Channey D. Clark and Mose Daehman.

Will S. Bailey, the theosophic lecturer, who has been speaking here, will deliver what will in all probability be his last lecture in Phoenix, on Sunday night. He will talk at the Reformation hall. The subject selected for this lecture is "Reincarnation." In the event that those interested along these lines of thought upon which Mr. Bailey has talked, desire it, the lecturer will form a class for the pursuit of the studies, having plenty of literature for its advancement. He will leave for the north in the early part of next week.

The people of Pinal county are not champion taxpayers. Territorial Treasurer Johnstone yesterday received a statement from the county treasurer of Pinal in which it was shown that the delinquent tax roll amounts to $12,090.62, a considerable per cent of the whole tax list. From remarks made by Supervisor Miller in the late meeting of supervisors and assessors, held here, it was inferred that the principle of taxation was not popular in Pinal. In his capacity of assessor Mr. Miller said he had made personal enemies of men who had been his lifelong friends.

Ramon Perez, a brute living south of town, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Porterie on a warrant from Justice Johnstone's court charging him with rape. The circumstances are so extraordinarily revolting that they cannot be described. The victim, Petra Valenzuela, a little school girl not yet 12 years old, is about to become a mother. Her condition was discovered yesterday morning by the girl's mother, when for the first time she told the story of Perez's crime. Officer Porterie learned yesterday that this is only one of Perez's offenses. Other complaints will be made against him.

"Dick," the swift talking warrador of Chinatown, invoked police protection yesterday morning against the "white opium fiend." Dick said he was shooting around in the back yard of Chinatown. Collector Long went down and found a young man defending himself with a club against imaginary enemies. He brought him to jail. The young man discovered then that he had lost his "gun" or needle, and he cried piteously. The collector went back and found it and at the same time discovered that what Dick described as "shooting around" was the self-administration by the fiend of morphine.

There is an affair brewing in Phoenix which may assume an international importance since it affects the Mexican consulate or residency. For some time the consul, Senor Navarro, has occupied a house in the eastern part of the city belonging to a man named Martin House. For the last two or three months Mr. House has been trying to remove the consulate without offering any valid excuse, and he has been refusing to accept the rental which the consul has monthly tendered him. Now he is threatening to begin ejectment proceedings. The consul has discovered that Mr. House found another man who offered him $2 a month more.

"Where is John O. Dunbar?" was the inquiry which filled every mouth and assailed every ear when word came yesterday that J. C. Adams had been appointed postmaster of Phoenix. When Mr. Dunbar left Phoenix nearly two weeks ago it was said that he was going to Washington. A few days later word came that he was happily rusticated in Los Angeles. When the news of Mayor Adams' appointment was received, that was to many minds evidence that wherever Mr. Dunbar might be he was certainly not in Washington. Others, though, believed the appointment was an indication of his presence thereabouts, and said it was Mr. Dunbar who pulled the mayor through unaided and alone.

The little building occupied by the Curio company on Second avenue is a source of delight to the kodak fiend. Yesterday it was photographed by no less than a dozen different people. A lady with three gentlemen friends rigged the men up in fanciful garb and had them pose for her. One was dressed out as a cowboy in Benham's old chaps, broad hat and with a belt and six-shooter. Another drapped a gay Navajo blanket over his shoulders and with an Apache war bonnet on his head and a bow and arrow in his hands looked every inch a warrior. The whole made a very funny picture. Our scribe noticed the boys have about sold all their wood during this cool weather, but are buying more every day. If you want a load call them up on the phone and they will send it very promptly.

There is a no more conscientious public official in the United States than Jailor Will Hill. After midnight yesterday morning Mr. Hill for recreation was performing police duty. He saw a drunken man leaning against a house asleep. The sleeper was not on the street, but inside a yard ten feet from the street. Mr. Hill was not certain whether it would be lawful to proceed against him, seeing that he was not on public ground, and he was not sure that the man had not been given permission to pass the night reclining against the building. Mr. Hill took the quickest way to resolve any doubt he might entertain on the subject. He awoke the owner of the house and inquired if the man was sleeping there with his knowledge and consent. The owner replied that he had issued no such permit. Then Mr. Hill carried the slumberer off to jail.

WARMING THE HOUSE

teaching that does not fully appreciate the advantages he or she here enjoys and I sincerely hope they will not fail to improve it to the fullest extent.

I need not tell you that the money to build and maintain this school comes from honest sweat and labor. No unrequited toil, as in some other countries, furnish the public revenues. Not one dollar or one cent for its support has come from any source except the voluntary free will offering of the people who expect their children and their children's children and their government to reap the benefits. They do not expect a return of any part of the money they pay out in dollars and cents, but the reward they do expect is in the hope of seeing their sons and daughters grow up to be useful and worthy citizens who will honor their names, the community in which they live, and the state. If they are disappointed they will have a right to blame those who are both directly and indirectly in charge of the management of this institution. They must not be disappointed.

Let us then marshal ourselves like a Macedonian phalanx in favor of all our schools, from the highest to the lowest. Let us not only strive to gain all the knowledge ourselves that we can, but when gained resolve to impart it to others and literally preach the gospel of knowledge to every creature. The smallest effort on the part of any one may produce good results and like the tree mentioned in Holy Writ, the smallest seed may grow up among the greatest herbs and become a great tree and bear fruit.

The speech was well received and was marked by frequent applause.

Other features of the programme were a piano solo by Mrs. Curt W. Miller, and a vocal solo by Mrs. D. R. Brigham. H. Z. Zuck, a member of the board, delivered an address which was an interesting history of the struggles and successes of the normal school. There was a duet by Misses Madge Richmond and Lulu Schmidt, followed by an address by Attorney-General Frazier, who, among other things, said that it had at last been demonstrated that the normal school was not for Maricopa county alone, nor was the university exclusively for Pima.

There was a number, rewarded by an encore, from the mandolin and guitar club, composed of Misses England, Hough and Kellner. It was after 11 o'clock before the exercises were concluded, the special from Phoenix returning at midnight. A result of last night's exercises is a greater pride than ever in the normal school of Arizona.

BASEBALL LEAGUE.

A Good Plan Presented for Series and a Final Contest.

A base ball enthusiast has an idea that an Arizona league can be organized to include two northern towns, Winslow and Flagstaff, Prescott, Phoenix, Yuma, Tucson, Huachuca and Bisbee; that the schedule can be so arranged that the winners of the series in which Phoenix, Prescott and the two northern towns shall engage will meet the winners of the series played by southern clubs on middle ground, the particular town to be decided upon in making the preliminaries. Washington's birthday is suggested as the time and Phoenix the place for the initial meeting, when all details can be arranged. It is further suggested that the town offering the best inducements for the final struggle in a series of three games be selected as the place to play and then and there decide the championship of Arizona. Railroad rates can be secured by judicious management. Each of the towns mentioned have good base ball material. What do you say to the arrangement, ye base ball cranks? The sporting editor is aching for something to do and is prepared to put in eighteen hours daily for the good of the cause if necessary. The columns of this paper are open to suggestions from devoted friends of the national game. There is one thing certain: Arizona can accommodate base ball players all the year round in one place or another.
