PRESCOTT

Prescott, July 12.—(Special correspondence of The Republican)—Mr. and Mrs. Howard Burnside moved into the newly little cottage just completed by W. C. Washford on South Pleasant street. Mr. Washford is to have another handsome cottage built upon the lot adjoining this one, which is to cost in the neighborhood of $3500.

The residence of Mr. Wallace Fairbank on South Pleasant street opposite the Avery residence is nearing completion. It is a unique structure, covering a good deal of ground and seeming to be much more spacious than it actually is, from the fact of its being built all on one floor. It was old-fashioned, wide porches supported by massive columns of wood. In style of architecture it resembles the old colonial houses of the south "before the war."

A runaway occurred here yesterday, in which one wagon was entirely demolished, while another was twisted out of shape by the runaway team dashing into it when cutting around a corner. The team was standing at the depot receiving a load of mine machinery, when they became frightened and dashed down Court street, first throwing out their driver and load of machinery. At the Burke hotel owner they encountered another team and wagon standing still, and running hard up against it, overturned and dragged the wagon, when they were finally stopped.

Mr. Ben Blanchard of Kansas City, Mo., representing capitalists of that town, made a $20,000 payment of days ago on a mine in the Big Bug district to Mr. J. S. Johnson and partner of Mayer. Mr. Johnson immediately married the "schoolmarm" at Mayer and departed for California on a wedding trip. The name of the estimable school teacher referred to was Miss Grace Overman, a very popular young lady in that district. Mr. J. S. Johnson was assayer at Mayer as well as mine owner.

An important decision was rendered by Judge Swan today in a suit brought by John Duke against the city of Prescott for the alleged diversion of the waters of Granite creek by the subterranean tunnel and impounding dam constructed just above Duke's property, and which suit asked for a perpetual injunction against the city to restrain it from diverting said waters. The decision rendered was in favor of the city against Duke, for the reason that plaintiff has failed to show any damage, present or prospective, from the diversion of water from Granite creek through the city's pumping plant. Judgment must go for the defendant, dismissing plaintiff's complaint, and for costs of suit.

The trial of Pain, charged with complicity in the killing of Mrs. Burns at Yuma, was set for July 18th. Miller, who was tried here for the same charge and acquitted recently, left here to return to his former home in Illinois. A little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Biddlecombe, on South Montezuma street, died of scarlet fever and was buried last evening.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Bate and son returned to Phoenix last night after a week's visit in this city. Among those boarding the train for California in the last day or two were Mrs. T. W. Otis, who is en route to visit her daughter at Santa Ana, Mrs. J. B. McNally, Mr. Colin Timmons, F. Wingfield, H. L. Wright and Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Johnson.

Ed M. Blake, formerly here in the capacity of Wells-Fargo agent, has just been transferred from that position at Nogales to San Diego, Cal.

IMPATIENT TO GO HOME

The First Chinese on Record Desirous of Deportation.

Two of the happiest if not the most demonstrative girls in Phoenix are Leung Yook and Lee Moy, the two Chinese girls awaiting deportation under an order by Commissioner Crenshaw last Friday. They never really had an understanding of the situation until yesterday. The barred windows and the iron door of their cell made them think they had been adjudged guilty of a crime for which they would lose their heads, for heads are not securely fastened on in China.

But as a matter of fact these girls did not come from China and were never in the empire in their lives. Their home is on the island of Hong Kong, a few miles from the city, and so geographically but not actually they are British subjects.

A reporter for The Republican was permitted to interview them through that bright eyed celestial maiden Mary, who has sold vegetables in Phoenix ever since she was big enough to drive horses. The two girls had just learned that they were not criminals and that they were to be taken home. They said they wished they could start at once.

Their story of their coming to this country was misunderstood by the Chinese inspector, who said that they had been bought of their parents for $500 each. They said that for a long time two men who wore short hair and looked like the men they had seen at Nogales (meaning Mexicans, but were no doubt Japanese) had been hanging about the village where they lived. The men at length addressed them in good Chinese. They became better acquainted day after day, and one day the men asked them if they would not like to see the city. As near as they lived to it they had never visited it. They were glad to go and went away without the knowledge of their parents. After a while the men asked them if they would like a boat ride. That was also a novelty. Once in the boat it put out to a big steamer (the American Maru). The next place they touched land was at San Francisco. They were hurried through the city as fast as possible and were soon on the way to Nogales, accompanied by the two men who had invited them to see Hong Kong and have a boat ride. From Nogales they were hurried back to Tucson, but were not accompanied by the two men and they never saw them afterward. At Tucson a countryman bought them two tickets, but they did not know to what point. They never knew from the time the Maru started where they were going. They never heard the name of San Francisco, Nogales, Tucson or Maricopa, where they were captured and taken from the train. They were always ignorant of their destination as if they had been boxes of dry goods, and could form no sort of conjecture regarding the object of bringing them to this country.

"How do they like the country?" the reporter asked Mary.
"Oh, they don't know," she replied. "They have been kept on the move so fast they haven't had time to see anything."
One of the girls gave the reporter a cigarette and a match.
"That's a custom of their country," said Mary. "They would give you a cup of tea if they had it, but they haven't anything but a cigarette."
Mary and her mother are fitting up some clothes and providing money for them, so that the return trip may be made as comfortable as possible.
"They are allowed every possible liberty at the jail and last night were taken out for a street car ride.
"Have you ever been perfectly happy?"
"Yes, but I never knew it at the time."—Life.

DIED OF STARVATION

Vic Bennett says that his train crew found a dead man this week between Tacoma and Mohawk Summit who had evidently died of starvation. The man was a consumptive and was making his way in the heat alone and without sufficient money to provide food. The railroad boys held an inquest at the request of the coroner and buried the man. His name was not revealed by anything he had upon his person.—Tucson Post.

TUCSON'S LIBRARY.

The new Carnegie library has at last been occupied. The last delay was in arranging the shelves for the books, and now the books are being placed upon the shelves and the final work is being done. A large number of new books are to be placed upon the shelves, embracing the latest stories published. Tucson now has the finest library in Arizona. The handsome building is a credit to the territory. The people of Tucson are proud of it and they are grateful to Andrew Carnegie for it. The library commission has done its work well and completed the task with as little delay as possible. The library will be formally opened in a short time.—Post.
