BLESSED BLIZZARD AVERTS BLOODSHED

All That Prevented the Enactment of Horrible Scenes in St. Petersburg Last Night

The Swift Response to the Call for a General Strike. An Alarming Situation is Rapidly Forming at the Russian Capital.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 15.—A fierce northeast blizzard and snow which blew on St. Petersburg tonight prevented bloodshed in the Russian capital. The bitter cold, by forcing the strikers to remain indoors, did more to preserve order than all the Cossack cavalry patrolling the streets. Heavy military reserves are stationed in all the industrial districts, but up to midnight there was no rioting. The social democrats met an impressive response on the part of all organizations of workmen to their summons for a general political strike to demonstrate their solidarity with the struggle of their Polish comrades for autonomy and to protest against the execution of the mutinous sailors at Cronstadt.

The men walked out of all the big mills and factories, and the employees of the Baltic and Warsaw railroads, the printers and other classes of laborers struck, but the shops in the center of the city are not closed. No dispatches have arrived from the interior, however, to show that the workmen in other cities are respondent to the demand for cooperation and discipline has broken out among the leaders, some of whom believe the strike to be hasty and ill-advised and who say that if it does not succeed the result will be a loss of prestige. The situation has caused a renewal of the panicky feeling among the inhabitants, whose nerves were already shattered by the events of the last fortnight, and hundreds of persons who had just returned are again leaving for Finland. The foreign residents are becoming more and more alarmed, and many of them are hastily preparing to go abroad for the winter. In case the Finnish socialists should join their Russian comrades and tie up the Finnish railroads, the only egress would be by water, and the freezing of the Gulf of Finland a fortnight hence would close the last exit. The foreign embassies share the public alarm, and the British embassy is advising the immediate removal of the women and children.

THE SECOND STRIKE.

The First Day Saw One Million Men Out.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 15.—The proletariat of St. Petersburg announced another general political strike beginning today at noon. The action was decided upon late last night by the workmen's strike committee which is now under the complete control and domination of the social revolutionists whose leaders declare that their ultimate object is to overthrow the monarchy and establish a democratic republic. The committee appeals to the strike committees throughout Russia to join the movement and also appeals to the railroad men to tie up the railroads.

The strike commenced promptly on the Baltic and Warsaw railroads and

New York, Nov. 15.—E. H. Harriman, chairman of the board of directors of the Union Pacific railroad, former member of the board of directors of Equitable Life Assurance Society, and connected with many railroads and financial institutions, the former friend of James Hazen Hyde, against whom the letter charged acts of an unfriendly nature in his testimony yesterday, was one of the chief witnesses before the Armstrong committee on insurance investigation today. Mr. Harriman was called immediately after Mr. Hyde and his testimony was a series of denials of the charges made by Mr. Hyde. Mr. Harriman said that Mr. Hyde came to him about a month before the Odell settlement was made and asked him to use his influence to induce Odell to settle his suit against the Mercantile Trust company. Mr. Hyde told him that the Odell settlement was a series of denials of the charges made by Mr. Hyde. HIDES TOO HIGH FOR SHOEMAKERS

A Delegation Headed by Gov. Douglas Demands Lower Duty.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Governor W. L. Douglas of Massachusetts headed a delegation of boot and shoe and leather manufacturers that called at the White House today and made the principal address to the president in behalf of the movement to secure a repeal of the duty on hides. The delegation numbered in all twenty-eight men representing the various industries interested. In addition to the remarks of Governor Douglas, there were addresses by several of the other members of the delegation. Following the presentation of the views and desires of the delegation, the president assured them that their interests should surely receive the painstaking attention both of the executive and of congress.

In his address Governor Douglas said that the boot and shoe industry of the country "is greatly oppressed and burdened by what we believe to be a needless tariff duty on hides. This duty not only handicaps our industry and prevents its proper growth and expansion abroad, but it is evil to this country. Without, as we believe, serving any good purpose this tariff levies a tax on articles essential for the health and comfort of every man, woman and child in this land and thus greatly increases the cost of living. Governor Douglas announced that the interests they represent would willingly consent to a reasonable reduction of the twenty-five per cent duty on boots and shoes in order to obtain free hides and cheap leather. "All we ask," he added, "is a free field and no favor either in our own or in foreign markets. For unless the cost of materials can be reduced, shoes must soon sell at much higher prices."

A. Augustus Healy, representing the hide and leather association of New York City claimed that the removal of the duty on hides was an urgent necessity.

REPLIES TO PRESIDENT

In Relation His Charge of Abuse of Confidence

In Consequence of Which He had Declined to Quit Talking Freely and Informally.

Boston, Nov. 15.—Henry M. Whitney, president of the Boston chamber of commerce, and democratic candidate for lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, in the recent election, issued a statement tonight in reference to President Roosevelt's remarks to the committee of boot, shoe and leather manufacturers who visited the White House today. President Roosevelt told the committee that he could not discuss the question freely and informally, saying that a year ago Henry M. Whitney called on him with reference to tariff matters and later misquoted what the president had said. After reading the Washington dispatch Mr. Whitney prepared a statement in which he denied that he had willfully misrepresented the president or intentionally violated any confidence.

The statement follows: "Andrew G. Young, Jr. and I, constituting a subcommittee of the chamber of commerce committee of 100 on reciprocal trade, visited Washington last winter for a conference with the president touching especially the matter of the Hay-Bond treaty. I, as chairman of the committee made an argument in favor of the treaty and in the argument made reference to the advantage of reciprocal treaties with Canada. We understood the president to express himself as unfavorable to the Hay-Bond treaty, but desirous of seeing and favoring the freedom of trade with China. I was not aware that this was to be regarded in the nature of a confidential communication; quite the contrary, as we were there, as we stated to the president, as a committee of the chamber of commerce committee of 100, sent to consult with the president and to report the result of that conference to the full committee which was equivalent to giving it to the public.

"While we may have misunderstood the president, I do not see how we could have done so. I absolutely deny any willful and intentional misrepresentation of the president's attitude, and I have no recollection of what he refers to as the 'context' which was calculated to modify the views expressed. The committee above named made substantially this report to the full committee at the time of our return from Washington, and the president's attitude, as we understood it, has been the subject for congratulation among our people from the time of our visit to Washington to the present. It was nothing new and I did not regard it as new matter in my campaign.

"I regret extremely that the president should consider that I have misrepresented his attitude, and especially that he should feel that I have intentionally done so, which I aver is not true.

Copies of this statement were sent to Mr. Hall and Mr. Webster, who accompanied by Mr. Whitney to the White House. Mr. Whitney requested them to examine the statement carefully and inform Mr. Whitney if it corresponded with their recollection of the matter. Mr. Webster replied as follows: "I have read your letter regarding the interview with the president last winter. My recollection of what was said at that time is substantially what you have written. I did not understand that it was a confidential interview."

Mr. Hall said: "I have just received your letter concerning our conversation with the president last winter. My recollection agrees with yours. I had no conception that the interview was considered confidential by any one."
