SPANISH QUEEN IS TACTLESS

Much of the trouble which has fallen of late on the head of the young king of Spain is charged against his English wife. Queen Victoria is said by all who know her to be utterly devoid of tact. She spent most of her girlhood on the Isle of Wight, and the natives there believe that unless a means of suppressing her is devised she will have Alfonso continually in hot water. Victoria had not been a bride in Spain a week before she stirred up opposition. This was in her violation of many of the old court customs. The Spanish court is bound in traditions, and it seemed slow and old-fashioned to the girl going to Madrid from progressive London. So she did not hesitate to criticize, or even to arrange the court to her own liking. Then when the republicans began to threaten revolt she talked out with such candor that public opinion was made hostile. Her English friends do not look for peace for her in the future, as she not only is tactless, but remarkably strong in purpose. Alfonso has failed to silence her and his court advisers and the members of his ministry have failed. Alfonso, in fact, is not king to his wife, who finds not the slightest difficulty in ruling him.—New York Press.

CLOTHES OF ENGLISH WORKMEN

I saw great numbers of workmen among the mills and elsewhere in England, but outside of railroad quarters in London I did not see a single man wearing overalls. England is a cold country and they want warm clothes. I did see quantities of good woollen breeches made from three-quarter cloth weighing from ten to twelve ounces selling at retail from 2s 6d to 3s 6d a garment—less than the price at which an eight-ounce cotton cloth in overalls would cost a workman in America—and I was told that woollen clothes were worn universally by the workmen in England.

In traveling through the county the great flocks of sheep indicated the source of this very cheap supply; and while the cost of cotton garments for both men and women appears to be about the same as in America, the cost of the woollen garments appeared to be about one-half.—Textile Manufacturing Journal.

YOUNG TREES IN THRIVING CONDITION

One Nursery Has Raised 20,000 Citrus Trees From Seed Out of Doors.

The weather of the past year has proved exceptionally good for young trees and all sorts of plants. All of the nurseries in the valley report that their trees are thriving and it will not be long before the importation of citrus trees from other states will not be necessary. A limited number of citrus trees will be ready for the market next spring, but they will not be nearly sufficient to supply the demand and some will have to be imported. An experiment was tried by the Orangewood nurseries this year in growing young trees out of doors. The experiment station has always maintained that the young trees planted from seed could not be raised out of doors, but would grow only under lath. One of the bulletins of the experiment station makes this assertion; yet the Orangewood nurseries now have some 20,000 young trees large enough to bud, all raised out of doors. They are thriving, and neither the cold of last winter nor the heat of the summer has damaged them. They have also about 150,000 trees raised under lath. Very few of the trees have been lost.

They Grow Hair Certain Ingredients If Properly Combined, Stimulate Human Hair Growth

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered. Beta-naphthol is a most powerful, yet absolutely safe germicide and antiseptic, which prevents development of germ matter, and creates a clean, healthy condition.

Pilocarpine, although not a coloring matter or dye, is an ingredient well established for its power to restore natural color to human hair.

Borax, because of its well defined softening and cleansing properties, is most useful to the treatment of scalp and hair diseases. Glycerine acts as a stimulant to the hair bulbs, and has a soothing, healing and nourishing influence. Alcohol is indispensable in medicine because of its antiseptic, stimulating and preservative qualities.

Recall "93" Hair Tonic is chiefly composed of these ingredients which we believe it is the most effective remedy known to medical science for scalp and hair troubles generally. We personally guarantee it to eradicate dandruff and scalp irritations and to grow hair, even though the scalp is spots is bare of hair, providing of course, there is life and vitality remaining in the hair roots.

We want every one troubled with scalp disease, dandruff or loss of hair to try Recall "93" Hair Tonic. If it does not remove dandruff and promote a growth of hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble, return every cent paid us for it. This guarantee is printed on every package. It has effected most satisfactory results in 92 out of 100 cases where put to a practical test.

Recall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike and in every particular different from anything else we know of for the purpose for which it is recommended. We urge you to try it at our entire risk. Certainly we could offer no better guarantee. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Sold in Phoenix only at our store—The Recall store. The Owl Pharmacy, Andrew H. Miller, Mgr. corner First Ave. and Adams St.

BARBERS WHO BECAME FAMOUS.

Perhaps the best known of all barbers who have attained fame were Arkwright, the improver of the spinning jenny, who is said to have turned to mechanics when the wig making trade fell off, and Jeremy Taylor, who was brought up in his father's shaving shop at Cambridge.

Edward Sugden, afterward made Baron Saint Leonards, was the son of a hair barber in Lincoln's Inn, London. A story is told to the effect that once, when Sugden was addressing a crowd in the interest of his candidacy to parliament, a man called out to know what soap cost and how lather was made.

"I am particularly obliged to that gentleman," Sir Edward is reported to have said, "for reminding me of my lowly origin. It is true that I am a barber's son and that I myself was once a barber. If the gentleman who so politely reminded me of these facts had been a barber, he would have continued to remain one till the end of his life."

Charles Abbott, Baron Tenterden, was also a barber's son, and it is related how, when he was made a peer of England, he took his own son to a little Westminster shop and bade him remember it was there that his grandfather had been accustomed to shave others for a penny.

William Falconer, the poet, was a hair barber in Edinburgh until his poem, "The Shipwreck," brought him renown and, incidentally, a commission in the royal navy.

Craggs, associated with the South Sea bubble, was a barber turned promoter. He became enormously wealthy but when the South Sea crash came his fortune dwindled and in despair he committed suicide.

Giovanni Belzoni of Padua was a barber with a varied and interesting history. Belzoni set up a shop in England, but soon found more profit in posing at Sadler's Wells as the "Patagonian Samson." Being of thrifty temperament, Belzoni accumulated quite a fortune. He achieved lasting fame as the discoverer of interesting relics in the tombs of Egypt, and as a traveler.

DIAGONAL CLOTHS FOR WINTER

Coat Suits Are Extremely Smart When Made of the Fashionable Material.

Diagonals are being used so much this fall for coat suits that I wonder more has not been said of the chevron diagonal materials that have come to the rescue of more than one perplexed tailor whose customers are wise enough to insist on some sort of unity in the meeting lines of waives and stripes.

A diagonal is a material that cannot be left to itself in cutting without dire results. It has to be matched at one place and bulled at another until it presents almost as vexing a problem as a plaid. These new chevron diagonals, however, present a very satisfactory, although somewhat expensive solution of the difficulty. The stripes or waives are brought together in chevron angles so that there is little difficulty in handling them even at the many seams of the new coats.

Another new material that is being used to some extent for both suits and dresses is the flitete weave of serge and chevot. The cloth is woven with an occasional surface thread of a lighter color than the foundation material itself.

Another material that has recently made its appearance among more elaborate tailor-made suits and separate coats is a fine ribbed velvet. It is softer and more pliable than corduroy and not so heavy either in weight or rib. It comes in wonderful wine color, deep burgundy and the light, almost white, shades of sauterie.—Delineator.

TO HELP CONVALESCENTS.

An Adirondack Colony Where Consumptives Are Given Suitable Work.

The Leather-Crafters (Incorporated) is a helpful health industry started three years ago at Saranac Lake, in the Adirondack Mountains, New York, which may develop into a highly important branch of the anti-tuberculosis army service.

It tackles in a practical way the problem of providing suitable employment for convalescents from tuberculosis during that precarious period when they have sufficiently recovered from the dread malady to be classed as "arrested cases," or even as "cures," yet are still physically unable to take their former work under the old conditions, while at the same time financially unable to pay their board any longer in the life-giving mountain resorts.

So a number of common sense philanthropists, in co-operation with the local and state boards of health and charities, started up the workshop of the Leather-Crafters up there in the balsamic region of Saranac Lake, where the climate is so extravagantly healthful that handicrafts may be conducted in the open air and in a temperature below zero, with comfort and benefit to the workers.

Self supporting crafts people, both men and women, who have acquired their skill in this workshop while making living wages at easy hours make to their convalescent state, turn out art leather goods of the finest morocco, levant and sealskin, which find profitable sale in the big stores of the great cities. And at this employment, in such favoring environment, it is possible to be fitted out with a new set of leather lungs.

There is a large veranda forming a part of the workshop, where work may be carried on in the open, weather permitting. Of course, wind and storm at times put a damper on this scheme, as the structure is still shy a few window frames, sliding glass partitions, etc. The clapsaws, however, are pretty well all on the main body of the house.

Almost all the money thus far received in stock subscriptions, contributions, etc., has been devoted directly to the salaries of those employed. Helpers in the workshop are started with a salary of $5 a week, irrespective of previous employment or skill. Most of them are fully earning their pay by the end of the second week. As they improve under instruction, wages are raised. A day's work consists of six hours. As the institution is non-sectarian, Sunday is a day of rest.

A typical case cited is that of a man of family—wife and two children—who when he went to Saranac Lake, had been thought "all in" from consumption. When his physician pronounced him fit to do light work, the Leather-Crafters took him in. He has been working with them more than two years now, the main support of his family, and is himself in training to become Exhibit A of the institution's good work.—New York World.

WHY DO MEN WAIT ON WOMEN?

Irreverent persons suggest that man's only object in life is to please woman and to serve her. Slightly exaggerated this statement, perhaps, yet there must be some truth at the bottom of it, says Harper's Weekly. Otherwise, why should man wait on woman at all? Why go out of his way to assist her? In other words, why should he be chivalrous?

Chivalry is the expression of man's real, instinctive deference for woman. Although, like other instinctive feelings, it is being modified or rooted up by education and civilization, the chivalrous instinct nevertheless still makes itself felt in modern man. It impels him, when confronted with woman, to pass through three different stages. In the first one he strives to attract woman's attention; in the second to please her; finally, to serve her.

The unconcerned are highly diverted by the first. There is no end to the things a man will do to attract woman's attention. Nothing is too absurd. One man found it necessary to spill his patent leather shoes. He was being rowed across a lake when a girl passed by in her canoe. Without a moment's hesitation he plunged both feet into the rippling water, letting them dangle there, stupidly.

Other men use other methods; some grow spry and climb fences, stumble over their own feet; some imagine themselves the proud possessors of a voice and exercise it; others whistle out of tune or twirl their mustaches. Still others grow disconcerted and forget where they are going or lose the thread of their conversation.

So much for the desire of being noticed. When it comes to pleasing women, men are more particular. They then strive for personal perfection. The intellectual ones go about with poetry in their breast pockets and learn it by heart, ready to repeat it at the first occasion. Or they dabble into art or literature or some "ism" in order to acquire the correct pose. The more matter-of-fact pursue over material things; whether their hair is parted in the right place; whether the red or the blue tie will make the better impression. For men are vain and dress to please.

HAT PINS IN OREGON

Oregon has a law limiting the length of hat pins to ten inches. But since it went into effect, last January, there have been no arrests, women's clubs have derided it in resolutions, and candidates for the next legislature are promising repeal. Here is an apropos story: A policeman riding in an elevator in Portland was jabbed in the cheek by a hat pin worn by a young woman who was crowded against him. From the depths of his anguish raised a remonstrance. "That hat pin is more than a foot long," he said, "and you are liable to arrest." The young woman faced him scornfully. "How do you know whether that hat pin is one foot or three inches long?" she snapped. "Don't crowd, and then you won't get your face scratched; and when you get the evidence you're looking for, you may arrest me." But the unfortunate officer made no attempt to get evidence. He probably ran.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
