WHISKY CAN'T HARM THEM.—Frank J. Sibley of the prohibition party's national committee said in the course of an argument at a Tucson dinner:

"Yet I will admit freely that there is one class of men whom whisky never injures."

"And what men are they?" his opponent asked.

"These," Mr. Sibley answered, "who leave the stuff alone."

THE SPICE OF LIFE. My sister knows a lot of girls. And all the grown-ups say There must be one of them with whom I'd rather talk or play.

My sister and the other girls Are always dressed just so. In sailor suits of blue or white, And 'way up top a bow.

But I like Katie's clothes the best. She wears more colors than the rest.

My sister's seen her, and she says "That Katie's common!" Well, I'm glad she is—it's pretty dull. When all our friends are swell.

But anyhow, I like her best. She's different from all the rest. —Eunice Ward in Puck.
