NOW-A-DAYS.

It's oh! to be young in a world grown old.
A sober world and gray;
With chivalry banished, and love grown cold,
And the fancies fled away;
For the Little People are over the sea, over the sea to the West,
A thousand leagues through the Sunset Gates they dwell in the Isles of the Blest.
It's oh! to be young in a world grown old.
A world that once was fair;
She has painted her face like an old-time queen
And tied her faded hair;
And Love, and Laughter, and Hope,
And Faith are withered and worn as she;
For all sweet things are fled away with the Little Folk over the sea.
—Isobel A. H. Fisher, in the Westminster Gazette.

FOILED.

He was very bashful and she tried to make it easy for him. They were driving along the shore more and she became silent for a time. "What's the matter?" he asked. "O, I feel blue," she replied. "Nobody loves me and my hands are cold."
"You should not say that," was his word of consolation, "for God loves you and your mother loves you, and you can sit on your hands."—Success Magazine.
