The Great Trials of History

Trial of Wicklow Pretender

Many interesting and extraordinary trials occurred in England during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries of pretenders for titles and estates. The Tichborne case—probably the most striking of all—has already been discussed. Scarcely less so was the pretension that William George Howard was the rightful Earl of Wicklow, and the trial in an attempt to establish his claims is still remembered by the older inhabitants of the United States.

On the 23d of March 1863, William, the fourth Earl of Wicklow, died without male issue. His next brother, the Honorable and Reverend Francis Howard, had died during the late Earl's lifetime, after being twice married. By his first marriage he had had three sons, none of whom had survived; but one son blessed his second nuptial and he claimed the peerage at his uncle's death.

A rival, however, appeared to claim the title in the person of William George Howard, an infant, who was represented by his guardians as the son of William George Howard, the oldest son of the Rev. Francis Howard by his first marriage, and a Miss Ellen Richardson. As to the birth of the former claimant there could be no doubt, and it was not denied that the eldest half-brother had been married as stated; but the birth of the infant was disputed, and the matter was left for a trial before the house of lords.

William George Howard was married to Miss Richardson in February, 1863. Appreciating that his uncle was destined to die without an heir, and that it would be greatly to his advantage to have a son, he arranged an intricate scheme of deception. The Howards went to live with a family of moderate means on Burton street. Nothing unusual transpired for a short time. After Mrs. Howard had her plans fully made she returned suddenly to her home one day while her husband was absent in Ireland, and announced that she was ill and that a certain doctor had sent for Mrs. Bloor, with whom she resided, was a party to her scheme. Mrs. Howard had secured a child from its mother, Mary Best, a pauper, then an occupant of one of the lying-in wards of the workhouse hospital.

This child, when the opportune time came, was palmed off as the heir to the title and estates of the Earl of Wicklow. The house of lords heard the evidence. Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Bloor, and her sister, Miss Rosa Day, were placed in the witness box and gave their evidence clearly and firmly, and agreed with each other in the story which they told. Much evidence was produced to show that the birth had not taken place. Dr. Baker Brown and another medical man deposed that they had professionally attended a lady whom they swore to be Mrs. Howard, and had found circumstances negating the story of the confinement. Louise Jones, a servant who lived at the house on Burton street after the birth of the infant, said she had never seen or heard of his existence. After the hearing of this evidence the case was postponed.

On its resumption Mrs. Edward produced witnesses to show that she was in Staffordshire during the whole of that period in August, 1864, to which the evidence of Dr. Brown and other medical witness related.

At the sitting of the court on March 1, 1870, Sir Roundell Palmer (Lord Selbourne), who represented Charles Francis Howard, the other claimant, produced complete evidence of how the proffered baby was secured, taken to the Burton street house, the head nurse and two assistant nurses being produced to swear positively that Mrs. Howard was the lady who took away the child from the hospital.

Then Mary Best still further startled the court and added mystery to the case by affirming that the child that was taken away was not hers, but that it had been given to her while in the

ALMOST THE LAST CALL FOR GRADUATION GIFTS

There is Still Opportunity for the Belated Buyer at Bkloe's

This is graduation week in Phoenix and other towns of the state. Probably most of the presents which have been bought for the graduates have been laid away for delivery next Friday. It may be that some friends of graduates have neglected this important matter or else they are still perplexed concerning the thing they ought to buy; they may not know just what would be a suitable graduation gift. That is the reason why they should go to Bkloe's Big Curio store today and have their perplexity removed. That is a part of the business of Mr. Bkloe and his assistants—to remove the perplexities of those who are about to buy gifts.

There are so many things at the Big Curio store that are suitable and which could not fail to be acceptable, hundreds of them. One cannot make a mistake there. There is time yet to buy gifts for boys and girls who are about to graduate from any school in the state outside of Phoenix but in a day or two it will be too late. Now is the time. Gifts will never be cheaper. They are surprisingly cheap now at Bkloe's Big Curio store.—Advertisement.

workhouse, and that she had fed and clothed it at her own expense.

The court delivered judgment on the 1st of March, 1870, when the Lord Chancellor announced that their lordships had come to the conclusion that Charles Francis Howard had made out his claim, and was entitled to vote at the election of representative peers for Ireland as Earl of Wicklow; and that the infant claimant, the son of Mrs. Howard, had failed in establishing his claim to that privilege. He said the real difficulty that surrounded the case was in proving the birth of the child of William George Howard without the evidence usually forthcoming of such an event. No dissent was afterwards taken against this rule, but a perusal of the complete story of this remarkable case, reads like one of the greatest romances that has ever been written.

JOYOUS AFTERNOON FOR FIFTY YOUNGSTERS

Juvenile aristocrats numbering fifty were the guests of Robert Porter Lewis yesterday afternoon. The young son of Judge and Mrs. Ernest W. Lewis, of 50 West Moreland Place, brought in a delightful manner and those who assisted him in celebrating his fifth birthday were gloriously entertained.

The beautiful gardens that surround the Lewis residence were transformed into an amusement park where seesaws, swings and games of every description were featured. Here the youngsters played from four to six, the prize games being a marble hunt, the winners of which were Emma Winburne Smalley and Mason Galloway, and a Teddy Bear contest in which Jane Farish and Northcutt Ely captured the favors. The souvenirs of the occasion were balls and shovels.

When the gayly decorated cake appeared the guests arose and sang

OPEN FORUM FOR DEBATING STATE WIDE PROHIBITION

The very important issue of state-wide prohibition has been raised. A campaign in favor of a constitutional amendment will be shortly instituted. This, like all other important questions has two sides, on each of which are found honest and intelligent persons.

The Republican has decided to provide for a reasonable discussion of this issue in its pages, allowing to each side at least a half column daily for signed articles, for which there will be no charge. No anonymous articles will be published.

It is only stipulated that the communications for and against prohibition be just and fair and that in no case shall there be any wild and extravagant statement that will in any way reflect upon the reputation of Phoenix for good order.

It is suggested by The Republican that either side, desiring to avail itself of this offer of space, name a committee through which all matter relating to the issue shall be transmitted. In such case, all communications received at this office from other sources will be rejected. We believe that this arrangement is necessary to keep the discussion within reasonable lines.

No paid advertisements from either side will be accepted.

A TERRIFIC INDICTMENT

In contesting the value of the prohibition movement, the liquor men have declared that prohibition does not prohibit. If that is true, then why does the liquor traffic oppose prohibition? Their policy has been, first to evade the law and then to plead its evasion as a reason for its inefficiency. I have lived to see the day when a judge in Nashville appointed to his office by me, with one order, by a single stroke of his pen, closed more than five hundred saloons in one day. I used to believe in regulation, in high license, strict supervision and segregation, but I no longer believe that.

There are two errors in the regulation, license and segregation of saloons. In the first place, if whisky, the fondest and vilest commodity in the world can be sold, then it should be sold by the fondest and vilest places to be found. Liquor cannot be sold under respectable conditions. There never was, there never will be, there never can be, such a thing as a respectable prostitute? Did you ever know an honest thief? Did you ever see a straight crook? You never did and until you have you will not see a respectable saloon.

The saloon is the promoter of the gambling house above it. The way from the saloon to the house of prostitution is a beaten path.

It has been said that the saloon is the poor man's club. I want to say right here that there was never anything so appropriately named. The saloon is the poor man's club that beats down his health and his character, the club that knocks the bread from the mouths of his children and the club that breaks the heart of his sorrowing wife.

The poor man should not drink because his two principal assets are his health and efficiency. There never was a saloon man who wanted his daughter to grow up in his saloon, and there never was a saloon man who wanted his daughter to marry a saloon man.

When I first entered this prohibition fight it was my aim to close up as many saloons as I ever had entered. To date I can say I have done more than that and the fight has only begun.

The saloon cannot produce one virtuous witness in its favor as it stands indicted before the bar of public opinion.

It stands a convicted felon and must receive the sentence of the law. It must go, never to return, and with the going of the saloon, liquor itself should go.

I favor prohibition in any form that will either reduce or destroy the liquor traffic. I favor it personal-wide, town-wide, state-wide, nation-wide, and world-wide.

EX-Governor of Tennessee.

Chicken Pot Pie

The Chef's Favorite
By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Some folks think that only "colored mummies" can cook chicken, but a trial of this famous chicken pot pie disproves that assertion. Every member of the family will thoroughly enjoy it.

K C Chicken Pot Pie, Baked Dumplings
One fowl cut in joints; 1/4 cup flour; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; black pepper; 2 cups flour; 3 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; 1/2 cup shortening; milk or cream.

Cover the fowl with boiling water and let simmer until tender, then remove to a larding dish. Mix the 1/2 cup flour, salt and black pepper with cold water to a smooth paste and use to thicken the broth. Remove the fat from the top of the broth if necessary before adding the thickening. Pour this gravy over the fowl, until it is nearly covered, and reserve the rest to serve apart. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, three times; into this work the shortening and use cream or milk to make a dough, less stiff than for biscuits. Put this by spoonfuls over the fowl in the dish, which it should rest upon and completely cover. Let bake about 35 minutes.

When young, tender chickens are scarce, this presents a most satisfactory way of serving old fowls. Veal lamb prepared in this manner is more appetizing than when served as a stew. Try this and the 89 other delicious recipes in the K C Cook's Book, a copy of which may be secured free by sending the colored certificate packed in the K C Baking Powder to the Jaucza Mfg. Co., Chicago.
