Governor To Adopt Wildcats? Young Admirer Offers Strange Pets

"Pssst-Yeow!!!!" Some such sound may take the place of the common-place honk of the governor's automobile, an offer made yesterday to Governor Hunt is accepted. For just by way of variety the chief executive may become the possessor of a fine pair of young wildcats, an excellent body-guard.

Now as a mark of friendship and the high regard she has for the governor, his little friend has written to know if he will not accept two of the kittens. They can easily be tamed, she says, and will soon become like ordinary domestic cats.

NEW THEORY OF IDENTITY

It Is Believed That Name of Man Whose Body Was Found Last Wednesday Was C. W. Stinson of El Paso, Texas.

The name of the man whose dead body was found east of the city last week is believed to be C. W. Stinson, Corner Parker is being worked on that theory since last Friday when the inquest was adjourned yesterday. That fact has not yet been established and, therefore the inquest was continued until next Tuesday.

The probability that the dead man was Stinson was suggested by Mrs. Vinson, who lives at Tempe with her son and daughter. Vinson, who lived in El Paso was not well known here. He visited in Phoenix and Tempe for a short time last March.

Mrs. Vinson saw the watch fob taken from the dead body yesterday and she thought that it was one worn by her husband when she last saw him. It is a piece of shell or celluloid with the letter "V" set into it in chipped diamonds. Her son was with Vinson a great deal during his stay in the valley and would probably be able to identify the fob. But he is now in San Francisco with Redewill's band, of which he is a member.

A letter was sent to the postmaster at El Paso asking if anything was known there of Vinson. A reply was received stating that there were several letters addressed to him but had not been called for. A letter was also written to the mother of Vinson who lives at El Paso, making inquiry about him, but no reply has yet been received.

RUSSIA'S NEW WAR MINISTER PROMISED HELP BY THE JAPS

EXPORT TRADE LEADS

(Continued from Page One) ers here. The tardiness of English bankers, it is said, is being paid for in British gold at rates extremely dear. The depreciation of the pound sterling, it is emphatically asserted, is not costing the American manufacturers one cent, for all bills payable by Great Britain here are payable in dollars. London bankers and buyers are paying the toll—a premium of more than 6 per cent.

The only bright spot in the outlook was the probability that the prevailing rates might persuade British holders of American securities to part with them now and reap the six per cent profit which will thus accrue. These securities are needed as collateral for the contemplated British credit to be established here. It is estimated there are American securities now in Great Britain to the value of two billion dollars and a sizable fraction of these securities, if available, would restore rates nearly to normal. It is believed.

The high tide of foreign bills is on its way to New York by now. By the end of next month a flood of bills for cotton and wheat will deluge the markets. This movement is hardly yet on its way. Its sweep will be far greater, it is thought, than the great current of war munition bills, that has undermined the markets—and bankers here conjured up a mental picture of English pounds selling at or around $4 unless the rate is bulwarked soon by a mammoth credit loan.

THE CLEANSING SACRIFICE

Tomorrow we shall return to our homes. We shall not weep to find them in ruins. They will rise more beautiful from the heaps of ashes and rubbish. We have known days of heroic misery, but we have learned that misery does not sadden souls which enshrine a great love and which nourish a noble thought.

We shall re-enter with a high head, regenerated in the midst of a regenerated Europe, rejuvenated by magnificent misfortune, purified by victory and stripped of the pettiness which formerly veiled the sleeping virtues that we did not know we possessed.

We have lost the things that perish, but they will rise again as easily as they have perished. In exchange we have gained that which shall never die in our hearts. Our eyes have been closed to many things; now they are open to wider horizons. Our gaze has been confined to our riches, our little comforts, our petty customs. Now it is detached from the earth and raised to summits that we have not hitherto perceived. We did not know ourselves, we did not love one another enough. We have learned to know ourselves in the amazement of glory and to love ourselves in the dolorous ardor of the most immense sacrifice that a people has ever accomplished.

We had forgotten the heroic virtues, the untrammeled thoughts, the eternal ideas that guide humanity. Today we not only know that they exist but we have taught the world that they triumph ever, that nothing is lost while faith remains, while honor is safe, while love subsists, while the soul does not surrender; and that the most monstrous powers can never prevail against those ideal forces which are the happiness, the glory and the sole reason of the existence of man.—Maurice Maeterlinck in the Petit Journal. (Translated by E. E. Stossion for the New York Independent.)
