

FOR THANKSGIVING

The San Marcos chef has been lying awake nights for a week thinking up a Thanksgiving menu. He says he has planned a wonder. The San Marcos golf links are in splendid condition. Eighteen holes of golf on grass links and a San Marcos dinner ought to be as congenial as a college widow and a sophomore. The roads are good and you will be given a hearty welcome.

VALLEY OF MARICOPA COUNTY

(By C. R. Bernetzke.)
In good old Maricopa County
There is a Valley Green,
The fairest, rarest, dearest,
Of all this state, I ween.
Oh, its silvery, laughing rivulets,
Hedged in with flowers gay
And rows of palms so stately
Have won my love for aye.

In its softly smiling bosom,
A golden harvest lies:
Me thinks the sunshine's glory,
Hath strayed down from on high
And within the breast of nature
Hath hid itself in part;
So we call this golden treasure
Maricopa County's heart.

But o'er this valley lovely,
A blessed spirit thrills,
It breathes in fields so sunny,
And o'er the verdant hills,
It breathes from ripening orchards,
'Tis free beyond control;
'Tis the spirit of the harvest,
From Maricopa County's soul.

NAVAJOS SHOW GAINS MADE IN INDUSTRIAL ART

Durango, Colo.—One cannot remain long in this part of the country without hearing of the remarkable achievements of William T. Shelton, an Indian agent, who seems to have lifted the Navajos a long way on the trail of civilization. A visit at the agency at Shiprock, N. M., bears out everything that has been said about this Indian agent's work and Shiprock has become one of the show places of the Southwest, many people from Colorado making it a point to attend the annual fair which are given by the Indians under Mr. Shelton's directions, these fairs showing in concrete form just what has been accomplished in the way of assisting the Indian along the paths of industry.

Mr. Shelton is a man of pronounced activity and enthusiasm. An industrious worker himself, he manages to inspire all the Indians with a desire to accomplish something worth while, says the Denver Times.

He has built the Shiprock agency from the sagebrush, and now he rules from a model village, with substantial brick buildings, cement sidewalks, electric lights, a sewerage system, shops, stores, and one of the largest and finest Indian schools in the Southwest, with an enrollment of 75 pupils. The farm of more than 250 acres will produce at least $20,000 worth of crops this year.

Interesting and valuable experimental work is carried out by Mr. Shelton and his Indian assistants on the farm. Recently, through a long course of experiments, the agent proved that a certain kind of corn was best adapted to the San Juan region. This seed corn is now being sold to farmers in northwestern New Mexico, and it is expected that the total corn production of that region will be greatly increased owing to the experiments carried on by Mr. Shelton. The agency seed house is a model of its kind. Twenty-one bushels of watermelon seeds were distributed among the Navajos last year. All sorts of seeds are classified by the Indian assistants, the Navajo boys taking naturally to agriculture.

A greenhouse, where rare plants are raised, is run entirely by Indian boys and girls. Plans are secured from the Department of Agriculture at Washington. One of the Indian boys, who also acts as interpreter, has proved exceptionally gifted as a horticulturist.

Recently a lake, big enough for boating, was made near the agency, close to the athletic field where the

ECHO CANYON

I rode out to Echo Canyon
On the desert's outer rim,
When the sunset fires grew dim,
Having with me no companion,
I was told how very clearly
From its rocky walls rebound
Every word and vocal sound,
Shouted forth, or whispered merely,
So I called aloud my name—
Quickly back the utterance came.

More than this—twas twice repeated
Ere the echoes died away
Where the twilight shadows lay
Down the glen where they retreated,
'Twas as if securely hidden
By a sheltering rock, or tree,
Was a counterpart of me,
Talking back as soon as bidden,
Reproducing voice and tone
That had always been my own.

Life is full of sounding canyons
Flinging back to us again
Echoes from the lives of men,
Children, sweethearts, wives, companions—
All who know the thoughts we utter:
All our deeds, and all our words,
Flocking back like homing birds,
When we hear their swift wings flutter.

May we freely let them in
Without sorrow, or chagrin.

As some magic shells of ocean,
Distant from their sunless caves,
Voice the murmur of the waves,
So our influence, set in motion,
Like a great wave, strong and ample,
Touches as it onward rolls,
Quick-responsive, shell-like souls;
And, through them, our life-example
Lives and echoes evermore—
Whispering to the eternal shore.

INDIAN BOYS AND GIRLS ENJOY BASEBALL, BASKETBALL AND OTHER SPORTS

This year the first unit of a 5,000-acre irrigation project for the use of Navajo youth is being put under water. This project is watered from the San Juan River by means of a long flume and a system of irrigation canals. It has been the agent's intention from the outset to put the graduates of the San Juan Indian School on this tract. In this way he will be able to keep them under some sort of supervision even after they leave the school. He does not believe in the policy of sending the Indians back to the environment of the old home life after they are through school.

If an Indian from the San Juan school so elects, he will be given a tract of land under the agency ditch. The things he has learned on the agency experimental farm will prove of good service to him, and he will not be far enough away from the agency to drift into the ways of the other Indians, which too often proves the case. In this way Mr. Shelton hopes to perpetuate the work of the school and make the government's instructions of the most permanent value.

There is a model dairy at the Shiprock Agency. Cattle, sheep and hogs have been purchased as the foundation of better stock on the entire agency. Calves from the agency have been sold this year at from $125 to $250 a head as not only the Indians but the stock raisers outside the reservation are desirous of improving their livestock from the government herds. Draft horses are being raised for farm work, and one of the most important experiments is along the line of sheep breeding. Mr. Shelton has been endeavoring to ascertain just the sheep strain best adapted to the Navajo country. His aim is to enable the Indian sheep raisers to

FAIR WEEK AT THE SAN MARCOS

Golf and horseback riding, varied by motor trips to the fair have been the principal diversions at the Hotel San Marcos, at Chandler, this past week. In addition to the usual games by guests, the students from the Evans school have been frequent visitors on the links, and some of the boys are proving to be very good players. Several motor parties from Phoenix have also come over for dinner and 18 holes of the popular Caledonian game.

Horseback riding has been given an added impetus since the arrival of W. W. Huggett's string of saddle animals from the Grand Canyon.

On Sunday last Mr. H. H. Gross, president of the national Nonpartisan Tariff League, was a distinguished arrival at the hotel. Mr. Gross is visiting his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lewis, of Chandler. Mr. Gross has twenty acres adjoining the town and is making plans for extensive improvements on his place. He left for Chicago on Monday and will return with Mrs. Gross for a longer visit early in December.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lewis, with friends, motored to Phoenix and the fair on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jewell who were guests of the San Marcos last season, and Mrs. Jewell's sister, Mrs. Clark, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, were arrivals on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Tweed, and their house guests, Mrs. R. A. Jordan and Miss Jordan, of Haverhill, Mass., lunched at the San Marcos Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Tuttle entertained the following ladies at luncheon Friday Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Hoxie, of Buffalo, and Mrs. Geo. M. Halm, of Phoenix.

Although the crops in Western Massachusetts have turned out better than was expected, there has been nothing to equal the case of the pumpkin grown last year on a Berkshire hillside field. This pumpkin, it will be remembered, got started in some way and rolled down the hill with such momentum

HE FOUND THE SPOT AT CASTLE HOT SPRINGS

"I have found it! Castle Hot Springs, Arizona," wrote an enthusiastic friend of that delightfully unique resort, when asked by a friend if there was a spot in America that offered a perfect combination of climate, scenery and hotel accommodations. And many Arizonians echo this sentiment, and now that the automobile has made it possible to reach Castle Hot Springs easily and in a few hours at any time, there has been a marked increase in the local patronage. Last season, particularly, Phoenixans made frequent runs to the Springs and many who have gone there for the week-end have been so charmed by the beauties and pleasures of the resort that they have lengthened their stay to a week or more. This season in addition to many private parties, there will be a number of club and association meetings at the Springs, the first one scheduled being that of the Phoenix Rotary club on December 4th and 5th. Manager Edward F. Gusche has spent several days in Phoenix this week, preaching the gospel that Castle Hot Springs is not operated exclusively for the rah-rah of the east but that as an Arizona resort it always extends the warmest of welcomes to all Arizona people. Gusche is an experienced hotel man and resort manager and understands the little turns and favors of special service that add so much to the satisfaction of a hotel guest.

The recent state bankers' convention, held at Castle Hot Springs last week was the best attended and most successful meeting ever held of that influential organization. Many prominent California and eastern bankers were in attendance and they were even more enthusiastically over the exceptional beauty of the place and the fine service given than their Arizona associates.

Castle Hot Springs, as almost every one knows, is located in the heart of the Bradshaw mountains, and is reached by a splendid twenty-four mile automobile road from Hot Springs Junction of the Santa Fe railroad. This resort has issued a number of interesting and well-illustrated folders regarding its accommodations and features which it will mail to any address, or they may be obtained on request at the Republican office.

that it crashed through a barn and brought up against an oak tree, where it split with a report that occasioned not a little alarm throughout the countryside.

The middle west, however, the great source of diverting agricultural phenomena, is not failing this year to furnish evidence of the remarkable fertility of its soil. From Leavenworth, Kas., comes the report that one Daniel Monroe, whose acres lie south of Lansing, was recently obliged to cut two rows of his corn on each side of a telephone line crossing his farm in order to prevent the stalks from thrusting the wires together and so causing short circuits. It is to be hoped that Mr. Monroe was able to obtain sufficient helpers and cross cut saws for the harvesting of his while crop.

DINNER BELL PANTALETTE GOWN IN VOGUE

The pantalette gown which is coming more and more into vogue is made in a variety of combinations suitable for street and ball room wear. The striking part of the model pictured here is the pantalette, bound as it is with white satin ribbon, reminding one strongly of the graduated dinner bells. The model is of striped satin. The skirt reaches to a little below the knees and shows the pantalettes which fit snugly around the ankles. The pantalette is of tufted tulle tied with satin ribbon, leaving a little frill around the ankles. The waist is sleeveless with straps across the shoulders to hold it in place.
