A STATEMENT—An article appeared in The Republican reciting the pitiful condition of Mrs. McJohnston, a nurse who is at the Sisters' hospital, having had her right arm amputated. She has been the recipient of much kind attention from physicians, nurses, relatives, neighbors and friends ever since the beginning of her illness five months ago. She has not always been poor, and while she has not lived in affluence since coming to this state, yet she has never once asked for charity. This movement to assist her was started by a very kind friend with a very kind motive, who sent for the daughter, telling her that there were a few interested persons who wished to furnish the money for a delayed payment on their home—which is, indeed, humble, but still a home—if she would accept it at this time and so dispel worry from her convalescent mother. She accepted most gratefully, never dreaming that it would be regarded as a public plea for assistance.

WHEN IS MARRIAGE A DISQUALIFICATION?

Fowler School District Puts Question Up to Court.

Is marriage a ground for dismissal of a teacher from the public schools? This question that has been agitated throughout the country has a particular interest here since the dismissal of Carrie Green Billings from the Fowler school.

The Arizona statutes say that the board of trustees may adopt for its own government and the government of the schools such rules and regulations as do not conflict with the statutes, and the residents of School District Number 45 believe that Mrs. Billings should be reinstated.

R. B. Evans filed mandamus proceedings against Otto Green, J. P. Ivy and R. F. Homer, members of the board of trustees. In his complaint Mr. Evans sets forth that "Carrie Green was engaged to teaching in the school year but had only served a few weeks when, on October 29, she was discharged. A petition signed by a large majority of residents of that section was issued for an election to elect a board of trustees, and an election to compromise any litigation that might result from reinstating her. According to the statute the board should call an election when a petition has been signed by fifteen percent of the voters, and this it refused to do. The mandamus suit is brought to force the election. Hearing on the return of the trustees to the writ is scheduled for today.

It is reported that the secret marriage of the "school marm" last summer did not change her educational methods as far as the children were concerned, but had its influence in the domestic science and economic courses of the parents. It seems those who objected most seriously to a "married woman" as teacher were the farmers and their wives who make it a business of boarding the "teacher."

DEATH OF MISS WILSON—Maria T. Wilson died yesterday afternoon at Winkelman, where she has been teaching. The body will be brought here today for burial, the arrangements for which will be made later, at Moore and McLellan's.

INVESTMENT PERMIT—The state corporation commission yesterday issued an investment permit to the Fortuna Mining Company of Prescott. A. W. Davis, that city is president, and the company expects to sell 270,000 shares of stock at 25 cents per share. They are capitalized at one million dollars.

STATE OFFICERS ARE CLIMBING THE STAIRS—Thomas Howard, the elevator attendant at the late capitol building, was off the job yesterday on account of sickness and the elevator stood idle. Consequently those officers who happened to have offices on the second and third floor got some good practice in the art of stair climbing.

AID SOCIETY WILL MEET—There will be a meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Lutheran church this afternoon at the home of Mrs. B. B. Balyeat, 224 North Fifth avenue. All of the members are especially urged to be present at this time, as the final plans will be made for the holding of the church's bazaar, which is to be given on Friday and Saturday, December 2 and 4. The event will be held in the room at 24 North First street.

THE CHEESE INVESTIGATION—An effort was begun in Justice DeSouza's court yesterday to ascertain the full extent and nature of the crime of Isaac Cheese, who tried first with one sharp weapon and then another to see what was inside of the superior, Gus Williams, in the supply department of the Arizona club, as a result of some criticism by Mr. Williams of Mr. Cheese's manner of doing things. After hearing several witnesses for the state the case went over until today.

WILL PROSECUTE DEER HUNTERS—State Game Warden Willard expects to go to Tucson tomorrow where he will personally direct the prosecution of two alleged violators of the deer hunting laws of the state. He is charged with the pair, one of whom is a student at the university there, had the contract last summer of supplying a camp in the Catalina mountains with venison, and killed a number of deer this season. The matter was reported to the officials and indictments were returned against the hunters.

C. and K. B. Mullen, Taos, N. M.; Joseph Lavell, Taos, N. M.; Carl Sarver, Winkelman; J. F. Spring and Fred Jervis, Albuquerque.

W. N. PRICE HURT—W. N. Price, formerly a resident of this city, and father of Sterling Price, was seriously injured a day or two ago at his home in Sawtelle, California, while walking along the street. He had made his way to the center of the street when a boy riding a bicycle dashed into him knocking him to the pavement. His leg was broken in two places and his legs badly bruised. His head was cut in several places and he was otherwise hurt, owing to his advanced age, his injuries are considered all the more serious.

THE NEW COURT HOUSE WING—The courthouse addition is an assured piece by J. B. Lammer, bid on by Lescher and Kibbey plans for $2462 being accepted by the board of supervisors yesterday. The sixty day limit on completion is in the contract with the improvement of the early possibility. The wing is on the east side of the building and the lower floor will be used by the supervisors and the county engineer. The second floor will be used by the board of supervisors. The board, besides receiving bids for the sort house addition and conducting its regular routine business authorized calling bids for the five and a half mile road between Tempe and Mesa.

AUDELL HIGGINS PLEASES IN TESS

Straying once again from the field of comedy, in which they have proven themselves to be eminently successful, the Redmond players at the Edna theater last night presented one of those vital, heart-grIPPING dramas of modern life which, coming at intervals among the lighter productions which it has been the policy of this company to present, proved itself to be a refreshing draught to the soul that was weary of the hum-drum plays which give the matinee girl no cause for weeping or the more blasé theater-goer an opportunity to heave an occasional sigh, and feel a slight tugging at his heart owing to the slight of which some fair maiden finds herself.

"Tess of the Storm Country," the production in which the company appeared last night, is the vehicle which Miss Fiske successfully starred for two seasons, and is built around the character of Tess, the orphaned daughter of a fisherman in upper Vermont. The portrayal of this versatile Audell Higgins, and one might not be far from being wrong if he made the assertion that Audell was about seventy-five per cent of the whole show, this statement being made advisedly, and not with the intention of detracting a whit of the praise which was due the excellent supporting members of the company.

Miss Higgins' presentation of Tess to those who have seen her portrayals, according to her own language, had the misfortune to be "put out of jail" when she had gone to that institution on the charge of holding conversation with her father who had been imprisoned on a false charge of murder. This wild, care-free lass which Audell so happily introduced when she took over the stage, was greatly in contrast to the part for which that lady was cast in the production of last week, and a contrast which will doubtless be welcome to those who have seen her portrayals.

Hugh Metcalf was given the chance of his life in this production to put over one of those mezzot-man-alive roles for which he is justly famous—on the stage and in this particular case he played his part in his usual vigorous fashion.

Ed Redmond, as the simperton, presented one of the few comedy elements in the play.

Rosecoe Karns, affectionately known as "Dimples," carried out his part of the young minister in good fashion, and proved that he could delve into the realm of tragedy as well as comedy. The George M. Cohan sort of stuff, such as he displayed in Broadway Jones.

Pretty Marvin Hammond was at her best in her characterization of the Society of the Holy Grail, and her wrong and her pink satin costume in the third act caused many exclamations of delight from among the feminine portion of last night's audience.

The work of Mr. Eddie Mitchell, who for the first time this season had a part of considerable length, went through with good grace, and the audience was glad to see Eddie showing himself so generously throughout the piece.

Ben Erway, Tina Craft, Eleanor Rivlin and Alaric Penfold all devoted their best efforts to insure a faultless support to the leading roles, and the absence of Bert Chapman from the ranks was duly regretted by the friends of that young man, and the introduction of several new faces did not make his loss felt any the less.

Four elaborate stage sets were provided by Minor Reed, the first one being especially suggestive of the decay of the wildwood in which the piece was opened.

FIELDING HAS CLOSE CALL

Probably one of the most thrilling moments in the life of Romaine Fielding, proprietor, director and leading man in the production of the Cinemas Films, the name of the new company recently organized by Fielding and which gives promise of placing Phoenix and the Salt River valley more firmly than ever on the moving picture map of the world, came yesterday afternoon when Fielding astride of a big black horse, narrowly missed being ground under the wheels of a Santa Fe train at Ninth avenue and Jackson street. As it is, he is nursing a painfully bruised shoulder, while the horse he was riding was badly cut by contact with a coach of the rapidly moving train.

It was all in the work of producing Fielding's first picture under his own management for release by the Universal company, "Bobby Darling," is the title of the new picture and Fielding plays the leading role. In the action, while chasing escaping convicts, Deputy Darling rides in front of a train on which they are making their getaway and then urging his steed alongside, dismounts from the horse to the train. Yesterday Fielding made the dash across the track in front of the train and then wheeling his horse about, started on the ride alongside. In some manner his horse got too close to the train and its hip came in contact with the coach. The steel was thrown from the track and landed against a telegraph post close to the track. Fielding was sent flying through the air and he too came in contact with the post. He was dazed for a few minutes and his shoulder, which had acted as a buffer, was badly swollen.

Veterinary Surgeon Louis was among those present when the mishap occurred and he found it necessary to take about twenty stitches to close the wound in the shoulder of the horse. Fielding was taken to his home and while he was advised by his physician to take a rest of a week or more he announced last evening that he would be on the job in less time than that, perhaps today.
