Vandals Desecrated a Holiday Gift to a Phoenix Attorney

Despite general rumors to that effect, James F. Westervelt, local attorney, yesterday denied that he contemplated bringing suit against Wells-Fargo & Company. According to sources, Mr. Westervelt was to institute proceedings because of the fact that a Christmas box addressed to him was looted before it reached its destination. The sad part about the matter is that Mr. Westervelt cannot replace the contents in Phoenix.

In stating that he would not bring action against the express company he insinuated that suit however might be brought by the shipper. The holiday remembrance sent Mr. Westervelt by New York relatives was a box containing twelve bottles of perfectly good whiskey. Only two bottles were in the package when it was received. The question is, who is going to make the ten bottles of booze good?

"I have laid the facts in full with a copy of the Arizona law with the New York shippers and will let them take their course," said Mr. Westervelt. "Although this liquor was sent me as a gift my interpretation of the law is that a man has a perfect right to ship it in for his own personal use."

SHE'S MAKING GOOD AGAINST BIG ODDS

Phoenix Girl Who Has Struggled With the World and Has Conquered

Alice Matheny has made good. The pretty 17-year-old ward of the court was given her chance a few months ago when she was transferred from the home in which she had been placed to the Sisters' hospital where she began a nurse's training course. Last night she left for California to continue her training.

Since she was a tiny tot of three, Alice has not known a mother's love, and her two sisters were thrown practically on the world when they were taken in charge by the court. Their father could do but little for them, and the probation officers who came to their aid found them homes.

While she has tried her best to be happy, Alice has been woefully discontented. It has always been the old story of religious debates. She is a devout Catholic and when Protestant influence made itself felt she yearned to be among her own people. Finally the opportunity came and she was permitted to enter the Sisters' hospital. She took readily to her work and was loved by the Sisters, whom she loved.

"But I don't want to stay in Phoenix. I want to go to California where no one knows me and begin all over again," said the girl yesterday. "I know I have never done anything wrong, but the fact that I have been a ward of the court may be misunderstood. I am going to forget all that and just remember that to be a nurse I must devote myself to my profession and become efficient. I will be free, too, to follow my religion, which means a great deal to me."

FRUIT AND OLIVE GROWERS HOLD AN IMPORTANT CONFAB

Decide to Hold Off Action On Importation of Trees from Outside

An open meeting was held at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon by the growers of citrus and olive orchards in conference with the state commissioners of agriculture and horticulture, relative to a quarantine being placed upon olive nursery stock from out of the state points.

F. H. Rockwell, a former member of the commission, W. J. Murphy and others spoke in favor of the quarantine and Mr. Knox, local agent of the Kirkman Nurseries, and others spoke against it, after which Dr. Morrell, the state entomologist, made an extended report giving the situation as he had been able to ascertain it to date.

After the meeting adjourned, the commission carefully reviewed the evidence that had been presented. Much of the information that the entomologist's office had been able to acquire from California, from which point most of the imported olive stock comes, was incomplete and contradictory, and the commission decided that it would be best to give the office until its next meeting in June to complete its investigations so that it might be fully informed upon the situation before taking final action. If quarantine is placed at that time it will give outside nurserymen plenty of notice before taking orders for another year. Considerable olive stock has been contracted for from California for spring delivery. These shipments however will only be admitted after the most careful inspection by the entomologist's staff.

The board is thoroughly alive to the danger of permitting nursery stock to be brought into the state from any district infested by tree pests. At its meeting today it took occasion to reaffirm its previous action in quarantining the state against outside importation of citrus stock. Horticulturally the state is now the cleanest in the union and the commission intends to do everything within its power to keep the bars up against all diseases or parasites that in the future might menace its orchards or fields.

THE PEARL IN THE OCEAN BED

A little pearl lay mourning in a snail at the bottom of the sea. "Why am I left here alone," it said, "while my companions have been taken away to adorn the courtiers who stand before a king? Am I not as good as they?"

But as I wept and complained it grew. Day by day it became larger, until at last it was the biggest and most beautiful pearl in the whole of the ocean. Then it was taken up by the pearl fishers, and it was overjoyed to think it would shine upon the neck of some fair lady.

It was not destined for a courtier, however. It was placed in the very front of the king's crown to be admired by all, and then the little pearl that had become a big one could see how foolish it was to have wept. For while it had rested in the shell it had grown bigger and better than it ever could have been if it had its wish.—From My Magazine.
