LOCAL DEAL OPENS UP NEW COPPER BELT NEAR MIAMI

Two Million Dollar Concern Welded Out of Old Inspiration Needles Company and Eleven Claims Near Liveoak Lodge

Involving a large cash consideration and the immediate development of one of the richest of the promising copper districts about Miami, is the deal by which the Inspiration Needles Copper company yesterday took over the holdings of eleven mining men. The transfer was made in the office of the company attorney, George J. Stone, in this city, and all the claim owners were present. The deal was engineered by Harry Lefkowitz, a young but brilliant mining promoter, who is at present in business here in the "Fair Store."

The company, under the agreement, now owns without encumbrance 525 acres of highly mineralized land, adjoining the Inspiration Consolidated at Miami, and within a short distance of the town of Miami.

With a large reserve of treasury stock, the company will float 1,200,000 shares for promotion. Owners of stock in the original company, learning of the deal at Miami day before yesterday, refused last evening to sell shares at an advance of 50 per cent on the market price.

Lefkowitz will himself handle the promotion. Although practically all the stock will be floated right in Miami, the hustling young business man will have as his guests, a hundred Phoenix men on a special train for a three day excursion to Miami, via Bowie. His idea is to demonstrate to them and to the stockholders, present and prospective, the actual holdings of the company.

The property has just been examined by an engineer, whose official report is highly encouraging. He explains that as the copper body is so well concentrated in one area, it should be handled at a single operation. This explains the determination of Lefkowitz to bring the claim owners together in one corporation, as a matter of plain economy.

Exploratory work with churn drills will be started at once. After the "lay" of the ore body has been determined, the work of developing it will proceed as fast as men and money can push it.

One thing that compels interest in the layout is that it lies within 1,200 feet of the Live Oak No. 2 shaft, the richest producing mine of the district, and also in a direct line with the lodes on which are located the majority of the producing mines of that region.

The financial details have been very carefully worked out. The company has secured the entire block of claims, in exchange for a cash consideration, and blocks of stock, which are to be held in escrow here in the National Bank of Arizona, until the full amount can be paid. In this way, ownership will eventually devolve entirely upon the company, without strings tied to it.

The capitalization of the reorganized company is to be two million dollars, shares at a par value of one dollar. The treasury stock of 800,000 shares will be protected for use only in the event of some highly necessary future development work, that will require a large share amount of mobile funds.

Intense interest has been worked up in Miami over the deal, and phone calls from that city have brought a host of congratulations to the officers of the company, of which Dan R. Williamson, an old timer in the district, is president, and F. W. Hamm secretary. Big copper interests have already begun to pay attention, and it is learned that among the possibilities is an offer by a prominent capitalist to look the property over with a view to purchasing.

Lefkowitz, who secured the claims for the company, has a unique record in mining promotion. He started in Nevada when a mere boy and has followed mining in all quarters of the globe.

FINE RESULTS OF DEFINITE SCHOOL PLAN POINTED OUT

This has been the most successful school year the county has ever known, according to County Superintendent of Schools J. A. Riggs. Mr. Riggs stated yesterday that since he took the office four years ago he has been persistently hammering away along certain lines, and the condition of the schools as presented with the closing of this year's work shows that definite permanent results have been obtained.

In speaking of the schools of the county he said:

"Of course, the most conspicuous thing about our schools is the ordinary observer, is our beautiful buildings. Nowhere, not even in the most progressive sections of the east have they builded so well for the future as in Maricopa county.

"We are proud to show such buildings as Peoria, Washington, Alhambra, Creighton, Osborn, Pendergast, Baltz, Wilson, Roosevelt, Alma, and many others as representative of our rural schools. From Higley and Gilbert on the east to the schools of the Buckeye valley on the west, the development along this line has been phenomenal.

"While our rural school buildings are beautiful and attractive to the eye, much more vital points than these have been kept in mind when erecting new buildings or remodeling old ones—those of sanitation, ventilation and lighting. So that we now find most of the rooms clean, fresh and restful. A number of the buildings have running water, sanitary toilets and sanitary drinking fountains. Some of the buildings have furnace heat.

"Many of the rural schools this year took steps to beautify their school yards, most of which have long been fitted out with playground apparatus. "It is with the very greatest of pleasure that I can say that many of our rural schools have auditoriums which are being opened more and more to neighborhood gatherings, making the school the social center that it should be. Nowhere in the state has there been as much done along this line as in Maricopa county. I wish to say that sentiment of this sort has been expressed by the various Woman's clubs of the rural communities and the Parent Teachers' organizations. A community that has a live wide-awake organization of this sort is always progressive. But I wish to say also that much credit is due the broad minded men and women on our school boards co-operating with the county school superintendent, who have made possible using the school buildings for this purpose.

"Our development, however, has not been alone in a material way. The quality of our teaching force has greatly improved, it being the strict policy of this county, for the sake of the child and on account of our school expenses to make "efficiency" our watchword and to dispense with the inefficient teacher.

"I am always glad to speak of our work in domestic science and manual training. In our rural schools we now have three circuits, including five schools each and a prospect that one, perhaps two, more will be organized. The teachers go from one school to another, spending one day in each week at each school. This work carried on by a special tax which the people of the district impose upon themselves, has met with marvelous success.

"Notwithstanding the rapid progress the schools of Maricopa county have made in the last four years, it may come as a surprise to many to know that aside from the special tax for domestic science and manual training, the rate per capita remains the same that it was four years ago, $37.50.

"The city schools of Phoenix, Mesa, Tempe and Glendale are stories in themselves. They are completing this week a most successful school year under most competent superintendents. "It is the rural schools which always suffer from the perverted opinion of people who are so far-sighted that they can see and know absolutely nothing concerning conditions in their immediate vicinity, and since distance lends enchantment to the view think all that is being done worth while is being done away from home.

"If those people I should like to suggest that they "see Maricopa county first."

THIS MOVIE MAN HAS NOBLE'S QUARTERINGS

Baron Carl von Pagh-Winther Here to Make Motion Picture Travogue of the Valley

A travelogue in motion pictures will be made in this valley within the next few days by Baron Carl von Pagh-Winther, who has just arrived from the coast. The baron, who is a world-famed traveler, was formerly noted as a lecturer. He said with the coming into popularity of the motion picture the idea came to him of how many more people he could reach by presenting his lectures in picture form. "It was the greater scope that started me in this work, for I suddenly realized that instead of reaching a small part of the country the whole world was mine," said the baron, in discussing the work. "I am endeavoring to educate the people through the travels I have enjoyed. It is my belief that a country is far better understood and remembered by views of it than in a lengthy discussion. The things that I retained in my mind when a school boy were gathered from my pictured geography rather than what my teacher told me."

The distinguished producer declares that he makes his travels alive in the form he presents them. He does not believe the public's interest can be held with a series of views without giving a bit of life to each picture and weaving a bit of romance in each picture. While here he will take several views of the desert and valley, contemplates writing a scenario of taking in the Apache trail and later going to Gatum mining camp. The baron is his own camera man, and develops his own pictures, which he releases through the various film corporations. Twice, once in Vancouver and again in San Pedro, he has been arrested as a German spy, and he will write his photoplay about these happenings.
