FORESTERS MEET—The Independent Order of Foresters held its enjoyable open meeting on Tuesday, June 21. The meeting of the many meetings this popular order has planned for the coming season. All Foresters and their friends are invited to attend the open meeting on the third Tuesday of each month at the Knights of Pythias hall.

NOW CACTUS MARKET—An announcement is being made today by the Arizona Packing company that the name of the "Tribble" market, 15 East Washington street, has been changed to "Cactus" market. GETS FRONTIER DAYS PROGRAM—H. P. A. Sutherland of Prescott is making arrangements for the printing by The Republican Print Shop of the program for the Prescott Frontier Days. He will visit his friends at a dinner which cost $50 a plate. A mine owner in Kiyushu gave a dinner of 50 covers at $150 a plate, in addition to the program for the geisha girls.

GEISHAS, IN FACT, via with the motor car as the most expensive luxury of the markins. The girls are recruited from the fairest maidens of the country, taught to dance, sing, play native instruments, serve tea, arrange flowers, embroider, converse and compose. They are employed, like pretty table decorations, from the time they are 6 or 7 years old, beautifully robed and with ornamental coiffure to serve the viands and dance two or three times in the course of the evening, to the accompaniment of songs and instrumental music by the older geishas. They are the charm and the joy of the occasion.

THE WAR, WHICH was responsible for the markins themselves, has multiplied the geishas. There are three times as many in Osaka today as a few years ago; and they totalled in all Japan by the end of the war some 50,000, earning in the aggregate more than 40 million dollars yearly. Their average earnings were $800 (1600 yen) apiece, while many government officials made even today are not paid more than $200 a year. In addition, the gifts they receive must greatly exceed their regular wages and salaries.

THE WATER CURE

 "Yes. I'm having three baths a day."
 "What for?"
 "Don't know; doctor's orders. He gave me some medicine and told me to follow the directions on the bottle, which read: 'One tablespoonful three times a day.'"

POSTPONE ARGUMENT—Arguments in the industrial commission case which were scheduled to be heard before the supreme court yesterday went over until Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The case was continued owing to the illness of John C. Gist, special counsel, who is associated with the attorney general's office in handling the matter for the state. Shortly after the appointment of the commissioners, James L. Crisman, a taxpayer, brought an action to enjoin the commission from exercising its powers on the ground that the act creating it was unconstitutional. He won his case in the lower court and the case was taken to the higher court on appeal where it will be argued only on the question of constitutionality.

ABOUT THIS TIME O'YEAR

Cantaloupe Harvest Is About To Open With Largest Acreage

With a larger acreage being devoted to the luscious cantaloupe in the Salt River valley than ever before in its history, with the exception of 1919, and with markets in the east and in California holding steady, the first important step in the rehabilitation of the valley is well under way and every prospect for a successful and remunerative season, according to those who are in touch with the cantaloupe industry here.

The government market men will be here on July 5, according to word at the chamber of commerce, and from that date it is expected that the business of giving the rest of the world the finest melons in the world will be exceedingly active.

The acreage being devoted to cantaloupes in the valley this year is given by the chamber of commerce at 3,600. In 1920, there were 2,557 acres devoted to the melon industry, with an average yield of 130 crates to the acre. The average value of the product was $1.10 a crate, and the shipments totaled 1,146 cars.

OUR MIGHTY UNKNOWN RIVERS
 Is there anything in nature so majestic and spirit attracting as a great river? And are there any nobler rivers on earth than those of America? The traveler who does not study up his map in advance is constantly coming unawares upon majestic yet uncelebrated streams, which in Europe would be world famous.

Not long ago journeying from Massachusetts into New Hampshire, I found the train following for hours a beautiful river for whose existence I was quite unprepared. Inquiring its name I learned it was the Merrimac, and was further informed that it drove more spindles than any other river in the world. A little later business took me to Birmingham, N. Y., and again a beautiful river lent dignity to an otherwise undistinguished town. Once more I had to confess my ignorance. This was the Susquehanna; just entering the state of Pennsylvania on its way to Chesapeake Bay.

Yet these are, so to speak, hole and corner rivers, not to be compared to the great arteries of the continent. The superb expanse of the Hudson puts Rhine and Danube to shame; no less grandiose than romantic is the confluence at Pittsburgh of the Allegheny and the Monongahela; the tiny little block house of the Port Pitt still occupying the tip of the tongue of land, overshadowed by the giant buildings of the city of steel, and the Allegheny and the Monongahela unite in the mighty Ohio, and the mighty Ohio itself is but a tributary of the still mightier Mississippi, the father of waters.

Without any disrespect to the Nile, the Euphrates or the Ganges, great rivers of the past, I venture to find these great rivers of the future every bit as thrilling to the imagination. William Archer in the Atlantic Monthly.

MOVIES 4,000 YEARS OLD
 The movie industry is four thousand years old, according to a story told recently by J. Stuart Blackton, Rameses, a Pharaoh of the Egyptians, "put on" the first movie.

It was displayed on the outer wall of the temple at Thebes, according to Mr. Blackton. Starting at one end of the wall and extending to the other there still to be seen a row of figures of the great Rameses, 128 of them, beginning at one end with Rameses, hands down and head looking pretty rigidly "left" and changing the pose gradually in each figure. As the ancient Egyptians rolled by in their chariots and passed an eye along the row of figures, old Rameses seemed to them to move, and as the last figure slipped by they saw Rameses finally, the first of the movie stars, with his hand fully outstretched and his head completely turned.—New York Sun.

The famous Bois de Boulogne, near Paris, was laid out by Napoleon Bonaparte.

The earliest mentioned wooden coffin in England was that of King Arthur, who, in 542, was buried in a hallowed oak trunk.

BOOKLET TELLS OF ARIZONA AND MOVIES

Arizona and motion pictures are attractively combined in a 12-page booklet just off The Republican Print Shop press. An artistic feature in four colors forms a striking feature of the publication. Action briefs wherever the eye meets the cover while a "bull's eye" on the back page shows a camera man rapidly recording the animated scenes.

Mr. Scott of the Arizona Engraving company did the very creditable art work for the cover and the art titles heading the various subjects covered in the booklet. The reading matter was compiled by L. A. Weiss and deals with plans of the Arizona Motion Picture company for putting this state on the celluloid and into national prominence.

THIRD EYEBROW KEY TO JOB
 "Hello, Bob, I hardly knew you. Why did you remove your mustache?" For a reason, I suppose," he said philosophically. "Wherein I'll tell you of their uses to me. When I was a young man I made application for a certain position and was a hard pass for I passed with a high percentage and subsequently was called to fill a vacancy in a big business house, but my youthful appearance was a handicap, for it was a place for a much older person than they actually thought me to be.

So I put a mustache, made out another application, was called again and got the job. Recently I have been on the leisure roll through no fault imposed upon them. I have excellent credentials and a gilt edge recommendation, but of no avail. I made application for another place, passed and could have had a good position, but I looked too old for the situation; therefore I removed the appendage and landed a tip-top job where I had previously been refused."—New York Sun.

ROME WANTS ON PROFITEERS
 An attempt is being made in Rome to restore outraged reactions of profiteers by establishing arbitral commissions which have power to compel traders to refund exorbitant profits and to impose unusual forms of punishment.

One method of bringing profiteers to terms is first to compel them to restore their ill-gotten profits and then display for one month in their shops an official account of their gouging methods and the punishment imposed upon them.

These steps are the results of public exasperation over the excessive profits taken by retailers.

The Italian government first tried other methods to shame the Roman shopkeepers into charging only a fair and honest profit. One of these efforts was to compel the retailers to publish the price they asked for every article; but it was of no avail.

Now the people are resorting to the new provincial arbitral commissions, which seems likely to achieve results.

One of the cases recently handled by the commission was that of two chemists who had charged from 45 per cent to 80 per cent profit. One of the chemists had charged a purchaser $7.90 for a tube of anti-diphtheritic serum which had cost him 90 cents wholesale.

The arbitral commission compelled him to restore to the buyer all except 100 per cent profit and the drug-gist was compelled to hang in his shop a record of the case against him.

In another case a wholesale stationer, who had charged a profit of $8.25 on a quire of paper, was compelled to refund all except a fair profit.

The actions of the commission are received with delight by the people of the middle class, who have felt more severely the exactions of the profiteers. Their incomes have not increased in proportion to those of the wage earners, who now are paid from seven to nine times as much as before the war.—New York Tribune.
