ROCKEFELLER SKELETON IS 'BOTHERSOME' AFFAIR

"Have you seen the purported interview given by your niece, Mrs. Harold F. McCormick, relating to yourself?" was asked of Frank Rockefeller, at his office here.

"Yes."
"Do you care to make reply to it?"
"Oh, no!"
"It was she who recently stated in an interview that her father lived up the clouds with his money or her God or something of that sort, wasn't it?" asked one of Frank Rockefeller's friends, who was present.
"I don't know. That is what the papers said. That is what the papers said. I have seen her but a couple of times since her marriage, but understand she has been quite ill during the past year, and is probably nervous and naturally irritated at comments made by the press about her father. It's perfectly reasonable she would be."

Has Business Ability.
"Edith does not mean to do me any harm at all, I believe, and if these delusions comfort her at all, I am glad, because she knows one side only and I can cheerfully stand for it, for her comfort. But I guess we will have to leave the clouds and get down on mother earth again if we save anything for future use."

He was asked to explain what he meant by Mrs. McCormick's "delusions" and by the phrase "save anything for future use," but declined.
Frank Rockefeller's friends say that each of the thirteen years he was vice president of the Standard Oil company showed a big gain over its predecessor, and that if his business ability were as poor as his niece puts it, the Standard would have discovered it while he was still on friendly terms with his brother John.

Both Frank and John D. Rockefeller are spending the summer here. All Cleveland knows that they despise each other, but Rockefeller has told many friends that his brother John had used his great power to keep his brother's several business ventures from succeeding.

The story of this business war between the two brothers is a twice-told tale. Frank is said now to be worth perhaps $200,000. If he had been permitted by John to stick to the Standard he would be worth millions today.

Old Man Insane?
Frank is very fond of his old father, John, on the other hand, is not proud of his ancestor, for the reasons stated above.
The statement of Dr. Biggar that old Rockefeller is in poor health is doubted here. There is one story that the old man, during a visit here in 1902, when John D. arranged a reunion of friends and neighbors, behaved in such a manner that his religious son-in-law left his presence. His stories, it is said, were not of an order that would interest the conventional Bible class.

The last time old Wm. Rockefeller visited his old New York State home he wandered away, and a posse of half a dozen men spent two days searching for him. He was finally located in the woods, half dead from exposure. It was said at that time that the old man was a senile wreck mentally, though he was still strong of body.

That there is much more to the fight than is known to the public is the belief of Cleveland friends of the brothers. Every effort is being made to defeat the purposes of inquiring reporters.

"GIVE THE RAMPS A CHANCE SAYS DR. REITMAN

Organization Seeks Legislation For "Down and Out Club."

Dr. Ben L. Reitman, representing the Brotherhood Welfare association, an organization which has for its purpose the remedying of the tramp evil in this country, is in the city in the interests of his association. When interviewed by a Citizen reporter, Dr. Reitman said in part:
"I am on a propaganda here in the west to ascertain the prevailing sentiment of the various communities in regard to the efforts of our organization to better the conditions of the tramp, and interest legislation in making laws which will tend to do away with the evil. Primarily my mission at present is to arouse interest in two bills which are endeavoring to have passed in the various state and territorial legislatures."

Proposes Legislation For Tramps.
"The first bill embodies the idea that vagrants who are arrested in the different towns and cities should be put to hard labor and receive a credit of 50 cents a day for their work, and that the amount they thus earn during the period of their incarceration be given to them when they are released from custody. The hobo who is arrested for vagrancy is no more in a position to find work or leave town than when he came under the old system and his chances for reform are small. With a little money in his pocket he can buy clothing, clean up and be made presentable enough to receive respect when he applies for work. A certain proportion would naturally waste any money they received from any source, but the sins of this element should not be made to reflect upon the tramp who really is desirous of work. In any event, despite each other, Rockefeller has to pay his railroad fare, the only way he can leave a town is to bum his way and his condition is in no way improved, or the community benefited, by his having been put in jail."

New Mexico Has Many Tramps.
"There are more tramp vagrants arrested in the territory of New Mexico than in the state of Illinois. This is because of the principal reason, to come to the police authorities in the territory. The cost is paid by the city, town or county and is a continual drain upon the community, benefiting no one except those who receive fees and have the contracts for feeding prisoners. The object of the bill is to make the labor of the vagrant worth something to the community and at the same time pay the laborer a slight wage to enable him to quit tramp life if he is so disposed."

Tramps and Railroads.
"The second bill has for its object the prevention of the railroads from carrying tramps. The idea is to penalize the railroad to increase their vigilance in preventing tramp travel. Last year there were about 5,000 tramps killed on the railroads in this country and about 12,000 injured. Every year there are ten times as many tramps killed in this way as railroad employes and passengers together. The railway companies do not hold criminally liable for the death of trespassers and are not even obliged to bury them. The counties in which the tramps are killed must endure the expense of these burials. It is estimated that the railroads carry fully 300,000 tramps every year. Of this number 5,000 are runaway boys, boys learn to be tramps for short distances on the railroad trains and then become ambitious to see the country by this easy and inexpensive method of travel. Our bill provides that the railroads be compelled to pay a fine of $5,000 for every tramp killed on the railroad and $1,000 for every one injured, as well as $100 for every train which is stopped by a tramp, with free transportation back to his starting point. This money indemnity for deaths it is proposed to give to the heirs of the victims. In the event of the heirs not being located within a certain length of time, to the county in which he was killed."

Railroad Employees Responsible.
"Railroad employees are largely responsible for the great volume of tramp traffic these days. They collect a small fee from the hobo and let him ride, or are too good natured to throw him off a train. The railroad officials claim they have no desire to carry tramps, and so they have not, but they do not effectually remedy the evil by any regulation now in force. In former years the steamship companies declared they were powerless to prevent stowaways from entering this country. When a fine of $100 for each stowaway was imposed upon the companies it was wonderful to note how their vigilance increased and how the number of stowaways decreased. Tramp travel can be stopped by drastic measures and that is the purpose of this bill."

Millionaire Interested.
"Our association was organized two years ago by J. Eads Howe, a St. Louis millionaire, who is now traveling in the east on a similar mission, and is in the west. Our creed is 'Kindness and no red tape' and we wish to give the tramp a square deal, help him over rough places, get him into shape to work by providing him with clean collars, clean and decent clothing, etc., thus enabling him to get a job. The majority of tramps are mechanics of one kind or another who have lost courage and joined the 'Down and Out' club. A great number would be glad to get to work

PLUCKETT HAS ORDERED DIVORCE SUIT STOPPED

Reconciliation of Husband and Wife-Shields Out of Jail.

The white winged dove of peace has suddenly settled over the Pluckett family trouble. The unexpected happened some time last night between 7 o'clock and midnight. Edward Shields, who was found guilty before Judge McCellan yesterday for alienating the affections of Mrs. Pluckett from her legal spouse and sentenced to pay a fine and confined because he could not then pay, has been released, and there has been reconciliation between the Plucketts. The divorce suit filed by Mr. Pluckett yesterday has been called off, and Mr. and Mrs. Pluckett are now quietly residing at the Savoy hotel, apparently very happy.

Mr. Pluckett was seen at the Savoy hotel this afternoon and said that he had instructed his attorney, W. C. Hancock, to stop the divorce proceedings, and that he and Mrs. Pluckett had settled their disagreement. When asked if he and his wife intended to remain in Albuquerque, Mr. Pluckett said that he had for years been a cattleman in the neighborhood of Medicine Lodge, Kan., but he did not know whether he would take his wife back to Medicine Lodge or not.

Gatchell Imposed Upon.
J. E. Gatchell, with whom Edward Shields and Mrs. Pluckett boarded as brother and sister, said this morning that both parties misrepresented themselves to both Mrs. Gatchell and himself.

"When Mrs. Pluckett came to Albuquerque, she was introduced to us by people from Arizona," said Mr. Gatchell this afternoon. "She was ill and had to go to the hospital for an operation, and asked us if we couldn't board her until she was well. We then took a tent and lived in that. Mr. Pluckett continued to grow worse, so they told us that Silver City was too high, and we came here. "By this time our money had become completely exhausted and we could not hear a word from Chicago, though we wrote repeatedly to Mr. McKendry's uncle. On leaving Chicago we had thought that the saloon business would keep us going. Mr. McKendry paid $500 for six months' license just before we left. My husband had to be held up on his bed to write his last letter, but we received not one word in answer nor any money, of which we were so much in need."

"I think that the lack of news from home helped my husband into his grave. Then when he died I was left without a cent and among strangers. I feel so grateful to the people who have helped me here. I am afraid that I will never be able to pay them back. And Mr. Borders has been so kind to me. I can not understand what they have done with our property in Chicago."

Uncle Must Be All Right.
When Mr. McKendry died, the remains were taken in charge by A. Borders, the west Gold avenue undertaker. The wife of the deceased had no money so Mr. Borders telegraphed the uncle in Chicago of the death of his nephew, collect. This telegram was received and answered as follows:
Mr. A. Borders, Albuquerque, N. M., Chicago, August 1.—Ship body to Chicago, will pay expenses, answer, A. J. McKENDRY.

Believing that this was all right, A. Borders answered again sending telegram collect. The telegraph company notified Mr. Borders that A. J. McKendry refused to pay for it. Then came the following telegram: A. Borders, Albuquerque, N. M., Chicago, July 10.—Cannot pay any such money for funeral expenses, at that end, it will cost $100 more here. ALEXANDER MCKENDRY.

Since this telegram was received, the said Alexander McKendry has avoided further communication. The grieving widow says that she does not understand what has happened, unless the uncle has sold their saloon and made away with the money.

The Non-Sectarian Benevolent Society of Albuquerque befriended Mrs. McKendry in her trouble and purchased her a ticket to Chicago.

WOMAN WITH DEAD HUSBAND STRANDED IN ALBUQUERQUE

Heartless Uncle Has Proved Faithless to Nephew's Wife.

A thin pale faced woman, who looked as though she had had her share of worldly trouble, stood by side a coffin box at the Santa Fe station this morning awaiting the arrival of train No. 2, upon which she was going to ship her deceased husband to Chicago for burial. An elderly woman, with a kindly face, who is known to be active in the work of the Non-Sectarian Benevolent Society is doing in Albuquerque, was with the woman, who wore a neat and cleanly gown of black. It was a scene to attract attention and appeal to one's sympathy.

The woman was Mrs. E. McKendry, recently of Silver City, N. M., but formerly of Chicago, and the form in the black box was that of her deceased husband, who passed away in this city July 27.

The plight of Mrs. McKendry is a sad one. She and her husband lived in Chicago and owned a saloon there. Last winter Mr. McKendry caught a cold and coughing one day broke a blood vessel in his throat. The doctors told him to go to New Mexico, where it was high, dry and warm, and if he took good care of himself or he had a fighting chance to recover.

"We left Chicago May 24," said the woman this morning in telling her story. "We left our saloon in charge of Mr. McKendry's uncle and brought away with us $200. We went to Silver City first and Mr. McKendry staid in the hospital there until our money began to give out. We then took a tent and lived in that. Mr. McKendry continued to grow worse, so they told us that Silver City was too high, and we came here. "By this time our money had become completely exhausted and we could not hear a word from Chicago, though we wrote repeatedly to Mr. McKendry's uncle.
