

BETTER FEELING EXISTS IN COUNTRY

Henry Clews Says Better Times and Cheaper Commodities Are In Sight.

New York, Nov. 12.—A much better feeling exists in New York owing very largely to two circumstances: first, the engagement of over $42,000,000 of gold, and second, the saving of two big trust companies from suspension.

In consequence of these developments the security markets, though quiet, have shown a substantial recovery, thus materially facilitating the liquidation which has been necessary in various quarters.

The situation, moreover, was seriously aggravated by the disposition of the public to hoard currency; but this evil, which is a feature in all panics, is gradually disappearing and the ship of finance, though badly crippled by the recent storm, is emerging in much better condition than anticipated.

The burning and aching caused by stiff soles and the evils of thin soles are prevented by the Red Cross. It enables a woman to be on her feet for hours at a time with comfort.

our banks. These institutions, though in the past not always managed on the lines of strict prudence, are now as a whole eminently sound and have endured the tremendous strain of the last few weeks in splendid fashion.

The Weak Element. The weakest element in the financial field has been amongst the trust companies which had entered the field of banking in competition with the banks, but without the restrictions and safeguards of the latter.

The effects of the financial disturbance are now extending into the commercial world. For self-protection the banks are compelled to materially restrict their credit operations.

Everything possible should now be done to rebuild confidence and credit. Hoarded money should be returned to the banks in order to enable them to better grant the accommodations which it is their business to furnish.

Gold Imports. Gold imports will do much to relieve the situation in the further expansion of the currency now contemplated will temporarily counteract the hoarding tendency, but the limit of assistance from this source has been almost reached.

Commodity prices must decline and we will be forced to find a market for all the surplus products—wheat, cotton, etc.—even at the expense of lower prices, if necessary.

The country must have lower costs of production and this means lower prices for commodities and labor.

The advance of the Bank of England rate to the unusual figure of 7 per cent is significant. It is the highest rate since 1873.

Paris has shown much willingness to help London, but placing the latter in a position to aid New York, but it is quite evident that we have almost run to the limits of our tether in getting gold from Europe.

It is questionable if it is good policy to continue this raid upon European gold. If prolonged it will provoke resentment abroad and tend to delay the progress of readjustment on this side which is both inevitable and desirable.

It is unquestionable if it is good policy to continue this raid upon European gold. If prolonged it will provoke resentment abroad and tend to delay the progress of readjustment on this side which is both inevitable and desirable.
