WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2.

In Tennessee you can commit murder, stuff ballot boxes and commit all sorts of fearful crimes and get off easy, but when you commit bigamy, then look out. A bigamist has just been sentenced in a Tennessee court to 20 years imprisonment.

It can be said with all truth, that the country now has a better idea how Mr. McKinley and the Republican party stand on the financial questions of the day, than it had a week ago. Pluck and courage tell in politics as they do in all human affairs.

The Republican party of New Mexico must stand by its principles and by the St. Louis platform if it would be successful during the coming elections. Trimming and vacillation will bring it no votes and will not be conducive toward its success.

AFTER calling for Senator Lindsay's resignation, those free silver Kentucky legislators should have also called for President McKinley's resignation. If not, why not? The average free silver man in Kentucky and indeed elsewhere, thinks he owns the earth and the fullness thereof.

The justices of the Supreme court, the new justices, we mean, should meet in called session of the court in this city at the earliest practical moment, name a clerk and assign the judges to the several districts. There should be no delay about this matter immediately upon the qualifying of Chief Justice Mills and Associate Justice McElie.

It is gratifying to note that there are but few people in New Mexico who take a dark and gloomy view of the situation because Democratic officials and judges are being replaced by Republicans. It is also gratifying to know that many, many good citizens think this change the proper thing and of benefit to the territory in every respect.

DELEGATE FERGUSON'S bill to donate the old Fort Stanton reservation to the American Invalid Aid society as a national sanitarium is all right, if the people of Lincoln county are satisfied with its provisions. Sanitariums of the kind the society wishes to establish are proper enough, provided the society has the necessary funds for the carrying out of the objects for which it was organized.

The father of lies, Annas, Judas Iscariot, Benedict Arnold and a few more of that gentry seem to have counterparts in some of the witnesses that have been and are being examined by the senatorial investigation committee now in session in Columbus. Regardless of truth and facts, the witnesses believe in smirching everything and everybody and are trying very hard to succeed.

A REPUBLICAN tariff bill passed by a Republican house of representatives and signed by a Republican president has sided one of New Mexico's chief industries to a very great extent and our wool growers and sheep raisers should remember this fact in the coming election. A Democratic tariff bill, enacted by a Democratic congress and signed by a Democratic president, proved almost complete ruin to them and they ought to remember this fact very clearly also.

The tax collections for 1897 in Chaves county exceeded the disbursements and the county has over $3,000 on hand in its treasury. And Chaves county is not a very rich country either. This instance shows what an honest and competent board of county commissioners and honest and competent assessors and tax collectors can do for any county in this territory. There exists no good reason why this same state of affairs should not be the rule in every county of the territory, instead of the exception.

The El Paso & Northeastern railroad, up to yesterday, had completed 15 miles of track from El Paso north and expects to cross the New Mexico line very shortly. Track laying will be still more rapid thereafter for 100 miles. The road means business and will be completed by May 1 to Tularosa without doubt. The completion of the road to the Salado coal fields will prove of the greatest benefit and importance to southeastern New Mexico.

The territorial and county authorities should get a move on them and enforce a more strict and thorough collection of taxes. The honest taxpayers have some rights that should be respected. Delinquent taxpayers should be made to feel the penalty of the laws. The latter are good enough if carried out. Delinquent taxpayers may set up a few technicalities and legal quibbles to escape paying taxes, but these will amount to nothing if collectors, boards of county commissioners and district attorneys will do their duty. The courts, the NEW MEXICAN believes, will enforce the revenue laws of the territory should any cases be brought before them.

No Longer Discuss Tariff Deficit.

From the time of the passage of the Dingley tariff law up to the latter part of December, the Democratic papers of the country were very solicitous over the revenue raising qualities of that law. Day after day they harped upon the "Dingley deficiency," ignoring the conditions that caused the shortage, and professed to believe that bankruptcy would be the inevitable result, if some measure, approaching the Wilson-Gorman travesty upon tariff for revenue only, was not immediately enacted. But suddenly that distressing anxiety ceased, and it is only some paper, that can not forget the failure of a Democratic administration to manage the finances of a nation, that occasionally mentions the subject.

Perhaps one explanation of the sudden indifference, the complete loss of anxiety and the disposition to ignore the matter entirely, may be found in the showing made by the receipts under the Dingley bill in the recent past. When the adjustment of the treasury accounts for December showed that there had been no deficit for the month and that even a surplus had been created, the distaste of Democratic journals to any further discussion of revenue matters first became evident.

Although these journals had taken pleasure for months in expressing their opinion that the Dingley bill could not possibly earn enough revenue to meet the ordinary expenditures, and that the country was in a bad way in consequence, yet when it appears that the receipts for January, for example, are tremendously in excess of the average receipts under the Wilson-Gorman law (and indeed will reach a figure never attained in any month by the Wilson-Gorman law during the last administration) our Democratic contemporaries as a rule seem to avoid the subject as eagerly as a red-shirted fireman would get out of the way of an angry bull in a two-acre lot.

Perhaps, however, the working of the Dingley law in the recent past has escaped the attention of the ordinary Democratic editor, who now seems far more interested in events in China or the Sudan. From the ghastly grief and sorrow shown by Democratic journals generally over the fate of the country from a revenue standpoint four or five months ago, one may eagerly anticipate the delirious joy with which those journals will suddenly realize some day that the country is not going to the dogs after all, and that the Dingley law is earning more money each month than the Wilson-Gorman law ever produced under President Cleveland.

New Mexico All Right.

The year 1898 promises to be one of the most prosperous ever known in New Mexico, and the developments of the past 60 days are a surety for the fulfillment of that promise.

In railroad building there will be an activity only exceeded in the years that the Santa Fe road was extended to the Pacific coast. Work is already under way on the El Paso & Northeastern road, which will connect White Oaks in the northern part of Lincoln county and the intermediate country with El Paso, a distance of 200 miles. The White Oaks & Kansas City road has been projected and work will begin upon it in the near future. This line will have a length of 250 miles in the territory, and will be an extension of the El Paso & Northeastern, giving a north and east connection and outlet for the products of Dona Ana, Lincoln, Guadalupe and Union counties. The extension of the Pecos valley road from Roswell to Washburn, under the name of the Pecos Valley & Northwestern, is another most important link in the railroad system of New Mexico, and will require 208 miles of construction to complete. Aside from these roads the Santa Fe system will build several branches and spurs, making a total of over 600 miles of railroad which will surely be constructed in the territory within the coming 12 months.

The building of these roads and branches not only means better transportation facilities and the rapid settling of the country, but the expenditure of vast sums of money for labor and supplies among the people of New Mexico. This alone would insure prosperous times for the farmer, orchardist and merchant, but is only the beginning.

Outside capital has at last come to realize that the mines of New Mexico offer unexcelled opportunities for investment, and thousands upon thousands of dollars are coming into the different mining districts for the purpose of developing gold, silver, lead and copper properties. This is effective in stimulating greater activity in prospecting, and the present year will witness a wonderful stride forward in the mineral output of New Mexico. The settlement of titles to land grants has also worked to the benefit of the mining interests, and mineral lands heretofore allowed to be unproductive because of the uncertainty of titles, will be developed and made producing properties. The mines of the territory will add to the territory's wealth by many dollars by December 31, 1898.

The outlook for the agricultural and stock interests was never brighter. The streams are full of water, the mountains, valleys and canons are filled with snow, and that of itself means prosperity. An abundance of water for irrigation and good ranges will bring prolific crops and fat cattle and sheep.

and New Mexico people all know the results of such conditions. The prices commanded by wool, sheep, and cattle are bound to bring an increase in the number of cattle and sheep, increased sales, and a consequent increase in the amount of ready money in the territory. New Mexico never had brighter prospects than at the present time, and those who have borne the brunt of hard times and reverses in financial conditions will reap the reward. In the vernacular of the street gamia, "What's the matter with New Mexico? She's all right!"

Sugar Beets for Stock.

Referring to the question of the feeding of live stock on sugar beets, the Denver Times says: "A practical solution of this important problem would be of great benefit to the raising interests of the west, rendering it possible to utilize with profit millions of acres now returning scanty revenue from grazing alone."

In this connection the utility of the sugar beet is apparent. Fed in connection with alfalfa, or hay, it makes a most excellent fattening food, without the use of grain of any kind. "That this proposition is literally true has been amply proved by experiments and practical feeding in Colorado and other parts of the west. Mr. Alfred Storrs, a large and successful stockgrower of this city, a year ago marketed two steers which took the first prize offered by the Denver Packing company for the finest and best beef to be exhibited at its opening. These animals were fattened entirely upon alfalfa and sugar beets, and the flesh was pronounced of the finest flavor and texture, surpassing even the best corn-fed beef from Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. Equally gratifying results have been obtained during the past season from similar feeding of cattle and sheep in Larimer county and in southern portions of the state."

The residue of the beet sugar factories at Norfolk and Grand Island, Neb., and at Provo, Utah, has for several years been used in the fattening of cattle and sheep for slaughter with most gratifying results. Stock so fed, with only hay or alfalfa as an adjunct, find a ready market in competition with the finest corn-fed meat, while the cost has been found to be far less. At the Oxnard factory at Grand Island some 35 or 40 farmers regularly employ the pulp for stock feeding purposes. It is fed directly from the factory during the manufacturing season, and the residue is stored at other times. Properly handled, it may be kept for an indefinite length of time in this manner.

The topplings from sugar beets have also proved an excellent substitute for grain in preparing both cattle and sheep for market, thus utilizing seriously wasted products. Experiments in Utah also demonstrate its value to be equally great in fattening hogs. It is said to afford complete protection from cholera among these animals.

It would therefore appear that the sugar beet industry is destined to make some important contribution to stock raising in the west, and that it will materially aid if not finally determine the solution of the stock-feeding problem in the arid regions. Both the sugar beet and alfalfa may be successfully if not profitably raised upon any of the western arid lands where irrigation may be had. Heretofore it has been necessary to send stock from these regions to the great corn-belts of Kansas and Nebraska for fattening. Such a method entails great loss, not only in transportation but in the bad effects of travel and climate, and the change which seriously retards the growth and delay the fattening process by weeks and even months.

When the western stockman may graze and feed his stock upon the same ground, the profits of his business will have increased an hundred fold, while the land changes which seriously retard the growth and delay the fattening process by weeks and even months.

NEW RELIGIOUS BODY.

It Was Organized in Poughkeepsie and Is Styled "The Church."

The Rev. William De Rouven Pos has resigned as rector of the Bishop Cummins Memorial Reformed Episcopal church of Baltimore and will take charge of a new religious body in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., styled "The Church," which was organized recently. The following is a copy of the platform of principles, the charter of the organization:

"We, the undersigned, do hereby and herein resolve ourselves this day, being the 15th of December, 1897, into a church of Christ, to be known as The Church, in Poughkeepsie, upon the basis of the New Testament as the rule of our faith and practice, acknowledging no ecclesiastical order other than Jesus Christ, who alone is the head of the church, which is his body, as he said, 'One is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren.'"

"Loyalty to Jesus Christ, the living Master, thus avowed, must be expressed in an obedient walk and life and attested by a conscious fellowship with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord."

The above is attested by 22 persons.—New York Sun.

Kansas' Boy Lawyer.

Byron Gilbert, the 7-year-old son of ex-Judge W. D. Gilbert of Atchison, Kan., recently received a conditional license to practice law before the supreme court of Kansas. The license is to take effect when the lad shall become 21 years old. This boy is a wonder. He is well versed on all law points, and the examination which he passed would have been a creditable one to any applicant. He is said to be the youngest practitioner ever admitted in the history of jurisprudence.—New York Tribune.

Town Composed of Irishmen.

Of Benedicta, Me., Professor Bate-man writes: "If there is another town in America like it, I am unable to locate it. The peculiarity of the place is the fact that the population is composed exclusively of Irishmen. There is not a family in the entire township through whose veins courses any other blood than that of the Emerald Isle."—Lawiston (Me.) Journal.

Code of Civil Procedure.

Every practicing attorney in the territory should have a copy of the New Mexico Code of Civil Procedure, bound in separate form with alternate blank pages for annotations. The New Mexican Printing company has such an edition on sale at the following prices: Leatherette binding, $1.25; full law sheep, $2; flexible morocco, $2.50.

Coughs and colds need not be endured; they can be cured, and that quickly. Many mixtures are temporary in effect, but Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites is a permanent remedy.

The oil feeds the blood and warms the body; the hypophosphites tone up the nerves; the glycerine soothes the inflamed throat and lungs. The combination cures. This may prevent serious lung troubles.

THE DINING CAR DINNER.

As in the car along we roll,
Annihilating space,
How cheering to the weary soul
To see his smiling face
And hear the "cullud pusson's" voice
Awakening each slumber,
As he leans in against his choice,
"Fust call fo' dinner!"

The sleeping wake, the dead come back,
All animation each,
And quickly follow in his track
The dusky colored peaco,
And then to see the hostess eat,
Fill plum up to the collar,
In order that they mayn't be beat
And earn the price, a dollar!

I like to sit and stuff my skin
While through the country flying,
The eddilities slip in
With ease so satisfying,
And then to catch the motion right
While pouring in the beer
Is not as easy as it might
Be, but it's very queer.

As we roll the flow of soul
Keeps pace with flow of liquor,
The waiter fills the flowing bowl
And we keep feeling slicker,
We gently rock from side to side,
Our food securely eating,
Complimentarily each fills his side,
And not a thing is lacking.

And as I calmly end my meal
And sip my cofe noir
My conscience tells me, and I feel,
That heaven is not so far,
To me it comes, I know full well,
Even though I be a slumber,
With the "cullud pusson's" yell,
"Fust call fo' dinner."
—Warren Beecher in New York Sun.

Not So Fresh.
He was a crusty old bachelor of 45. She was his niece, a little tot of 8. They had been having lots of fun together in the library all the afternoon, and as dinner time drew near she became tired and sleepy. Finally he took her upon his lap. She talked to him drowsily.
"You haven't got any little girl but me, have you, Uncle Harry?" she asked.
"No," he replied, "and if I did have one I couldn't love her any more than I do you."
"Why don't you have a little girl?" the sleepy child continued. "Why don't you get married, like Cousin Tom, Uncle Harry? Don't you want to?"
"Oh, there's lots of time," he replied. "There's lots of time, dearest, and, besides, there are just as many good fish in the sea as have ever been caught."

It was a minute or longer before the little one spoke. Raising her pretty yellow head, she looked up at him and asked:
"But, Uncle Harry, don't you think the bait is getting a little staler?"
He did not reply, and by and by she dropped asleep in his arms.—Detroit Journal.

Two of a Kind.
A concealed fellow, with some pretensions to literature, once traveled some distance by rail with Victor Hugo, and entertained the great author with much egotistic converse. The author of "Les Misérables," having arrived at his destination, was about to leave the train when his interlocutor said: "You may perhaps like to know who I am. I am Victor Hugo."
"How odd," remarked the real Hugo. "So am I."—Exchange.

And They Did It.
"Honorable gentlemen hear me will bear me out when I say"— Punch.

This Is Your Opportunity.
On receipt of ten cents, cash or stamps, a generous sample will be mailed of the most popular Catarrh and Hay Fever Cure (Ely's Cream Balm) sufficient to demonstrate the great merits of the remedy.

ELY BROTHERS, 66 Warren St., New York City.
Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement. "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."
Rev. Francis W. Poole, Pastor Central Presb. Church, Helena, Mont.
Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for catarrh and contains no mercury nor any injurious drug. Price, 50 cents.
