WINTER IN ALASKA

Lieutenant Walker's Experience Traveling Through Snow and Storm Under Arctic Circle.

HEARD OF WAR ON JUNE 13

Duties of Commander of the Reservation Numerous—Trouble Between Transportation Companies and Passengers—More Troops Needed.

Lieutenant E. S. Walker, of the 8th U. S. Infantry, detailed for service in Alaska, has written his father, Judge J. H. Walker, in this city, as follows:

Fort St. Michaels, July 7.—This winter has been a long blank, as no news from the outside world has reached us since last November. Our mail is on the steamer Alliance, which has not yet arrived, although long since due. She is lying at Dutch harbor awaiting the completion of a boat that she is to tow up the river. It is a shame to delay the mail simply for the benefit of private interests. My health has been good throughout the winter. In fact there has been no serious sickness on the island except among the natives. I managed to get in two pretty good trips around the country, and that helped to make the time seem shorter.

My first trip was to Golovin bay, after the reindeer herd. We had orders to use the animals up the river to assist destitute persons. The herd was ordered to report to Colonel Randall, but it failed to do so. We waited until February, and as the herd still did not appear, it was necessary to take some action. So the colonel sent me out to procure deer and then to proceed up the Yukon. I traveled to Golovin bay with a dog sled and had a pretty hard trip, having to walk most of the distance, 210 miles, besides pushing and guiding the sled. When night came we were glad to get to a warm native house and turn in among the occupants with their seal oil, fish and vermin. The natives are very hospitable, but horribly filthy. There was only one person with me, Folte, the owner of the dog sled and team.

The first night we laid out all night long in a storm. No food, no fire, no water. We simply could not face the storm, and it was impossible to pitch the tent on account of the high wind. We had plenty of food along, but did dare take off our gloves to get it for fear of freezing our hands. We upset the sled with its load to break the wind, sat down on the tent and pulled it over us for shelter. Then kept our hands and feet moving all night long to keep from freezing. We got out all right, except that our faces, noses and wrists were frosted. That was the worst time of the trip, and we were 28 hours without anything to eat or drink. But I got the deer, and brought the herd, about 600 head, over to Huakakuk, and from there started across the portage to Nulato. The snow finally became so deep and soft that the deer could neither travel nor find food, and the trip had to be abandoned, and I returned to the fort, having made about 210 miles by dog sled and 240 miles on reindeer, and was out altogether 39 days. We were delayed several days by storms.

In May I again started for Golovin bay, to look after some miners who were working claims on the government reservation, as we thought. I went up to the bay with reindeer, and from there to the placer locations with a dog sled, as the snow was too soft and deep for deer. We traveled at night to take advantage of the crusted snow, and slept in the daytime. My return trip, as far as Norton bay, was by dog sled, then in a skin boat to the mouth of the river, and from there in a sail boat to this place, reaching here on June 3. This was really a harder trip than the other, although the weather was not so severe. The snow was melting, and the water was running so that we were wet all of the time.

On June 13 the first boat of the season, the Hattie I. Phillips, appeared. She brought the news of the war with Spain and of Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila. Of course great excitement has prevailed since. Other boats followed in rapid succession, until at present the harbor presents the appearance of a great seaport. Colonel Randall has been made a brigadier general of volunteers, and Dr. Eddie a brigade surgeon, and both left yesterday on the St. Paul for San Francisco. Lieutenant Bell and myself are the only officers left here, except Lieutenant Richardson, who is here temporarily, and Dr. Gregory, a contract physician, who relieved Dr. Eddie. So I am in command of this big reservation, 100 miles in every direction from the flag staff. We have only 25 men and there are many conflicting business interests represented. My hands are full of work. In fact we have more than we can do. All kinds of questions arise, the landing of passengers, the locating of different companies, settling or attempting to settle violated contracts, etc., etc. Many of the "wildcat" companies can not carry out their contracts and their passengers are angry. Some of them told me that if the troops would not interfere they would settle their own difficulties. Of course that was squelched. But there is liable to be trouble. Everybody is provoked over the delay of the mail, and those people certainly would have trouble if the troops were not here. The troops are behaving well. If it were not for this state of affairs I would ask to be sent to my regiment, but there is serious work to be done here and Bell, Richardson and myself think it is serious enough to stand off any imputations in the event we do not apply to be sent out. I thought some one would certainly be sent in Colonel Randall's place, but no one has come and we can get no information. We need more troops and more officers. However, if we steer clear of the shoals this summer, I shall feel as if I had done something.

Death of Mrs. Mallinkrodt.

The death occurred this morning of Mrs. Mallinkrodt, at the home of her son, Emil Mallinkrodt, at Espanola. Mrs. Mallinkrodt came to New Mexico from St. Louis, where the family is quite prominent, some time ago, hoping that this climate might restore her falling health. She once took up her home with her son, who has a fine fruit farm at Espanola. Having lingered too long in the east, however, she could receive little benefit here and finally passed away. Undertaker R. H. Warner, of Wagner's undertaking establishment, drove to Espanola with a casket this afternoon and the body will be embalmed and shipped to St. Louis for burial.

Died.

William H. Brandeman died at 2:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Vincent's hospital of consumption. The deceased was a native of New York city, and about 25 years old. At the age of 18 he enlisted in the regular army as a gunner in the heavy artillery and while a soldier he contracted the disease which caused his death. His parents reside in Brooklyn, and have been telegraphed. The funeral took place this afternoon, the body being consigned to its last resting place in the national cemetery, the wish of his brother H. Brandeman, of Brooklyn, being that the funeral take place here as expressed in a telegram to Undertaker Hogle.

MINOR CITY TOPICS.

U. S. weather bureau forecast for New Mexico: Fair tonight and Saturday.

Says the Albuquerque Citizen with absolute truth and correctness: Santa Fe is by all odds the best summer resort in New Mexico.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Piatero, that died Wednesday night, was buried yesterday afternoon in Rosario cemetery.

Paymaster J. A. O'Connor, of the Rio Grande railway, was in town yesterday and the local employes are correspondingly happy today.

Considerable fruit, apricots and peaches, is being received by the Rio Grande Express Company from Espanola for Santa Fe and Las Vegas. Jim Curry, Jr., is among the large shippers. Mayor Hudson should get after the garbage and sprinkling car driver. A little more time spent on city work would be gratefully received by the taxpayers.

Chief Justice Mills last evening ordered the commitment of William H. Sperry, of Springer, to the Territorial Insane Asylum at Las Vegas. Sperry was afflicted with an affection of the head for some time which finally terminated in his losing his mind.

Some 40 odd laborers who left here to work on the El Paso & Northeastern railroad are returning home on foot. The men claim that the agent who hired them offered them 75 cents a day and board, but that when they reached the place they were to work, the contractor refused to pay them money to live on.

A story concerning a man who lives not 100 miles from the Rio San Juan has just leaked out from an intimate friend. When Santiago surrendered the fellow, who figures as the hero in the affair, indulged his patriotism until late that night, and on being taken home tried to "square things" with his better half by singing a song, and this is what he sang:

O, the bar tangled spanner,
O, the spar hanged tanner,
O, the tar strangled barber,
Long shall I maver.

A "Dewey" social will be given by the Epworth League in the hall formerly occupied by Mr. Geo. W. Hickox in the Catron block, on Tuesday night, August 2, next. A program of instrumental and vocal selections and recitations and pantomimes will be rendered. "Manila" ice cream, "Schley" ices, cake, watermelon and other novelties will be served in the way of refreshments. One-half of the net proceeds will be given to the Ladies Soldiers' Aid Society.

Yesterday the thermometer at the local weather bureau registered as follows: Maximum temperature, 83 degrees at 4:30 p. m.; minimum, 61 degrees at 5:00 a. m. The mean temperature for the 24 hours was 75 degrees.

The application for a writ of mandamus by Manuel C. de Baca, superintendent of public instruction, to compel the auditor to pay him certain accounts for traveling expenses and per diem will be heard before Judge McFie tomorrow.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL.

After Lingered Three Days Father Roux Died from the Effects of Being Crushed in Chamita Wreck.

Father John Roux, the young priest of Santa Cruz, who was injured in the wreck on the Rio Grande railroad at Chamita Tuesday, succumbed to his injuries this morning. About noon, Vicar General Fourchegu received a message announcing the young priest's death from peritonitis at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The telegram was received from Father C. Seix, to whose home in San Juan, Father Roux was taken after the accident. The funeral will be held early tomorrow morning, interment being in the late Father Roux's church cemetery in Santa Cruz. Among the priests who will attend the funeral are Fathers Jules Deraches, Alphonse Haeltman and Peter Pelzer.

Father Roux was in his 23d year. He was born in France, came to America five years ago and immediately began studying for the priesthood at St. Mary's college, Baltimore.

He came to Santa Fe early in 1897 and was ordained a priest shortly afterwards, being sent on May 7 of last year to Santa Cruz to act as assistant pastor. Three months ago the pastor died in Santa Fe, since which time the young priest has been filling the duties of pastor to the entire satisfaction of his superiors and his congregation.

Generous Santa Feans.

The following letter is self-explanatory, and only adds to the testimony given by many others to the kind heartedness and generosity of the people of this city:

Edwaco, Colo., July 14.—To the Odd Fellows and citizens of Santa Fe: I extend my heartfelt thanks for their kindness and charity to me during my sickness and trouble. I truly wish you all success and prosperity. Very respectfully,
Mrs. C. H. BENNETT.

Prompt Action Necessary.

Information comes from Wagon Mound that there are 15 cases of small pox in that place. The cases are confined principally among the native people and every precaution will be taken by the local authorities to prevent the disease spreading. It is also reported that there are a number of cases at Ocate, a short distance west of Wagon Mound. There are no cases in Santa Fe at present, but the city is in no wise exempt from contagion. The disease is gaining headway in other parts of the territory, and the mayor and health authorities of Santa Fe should take decisive and prompt action to keep the scourge away from the city.

Every practicing attorney in the territory should have a copy of the New Mexico Code of Civil Procedure, bound in separate form with alternate blank pages for annotations. The New Mexican Printing company has such an edition on sale at the following prices: Leatherette binding, $1.25; full law sheep, $2; flexible morocco, $2.50.
