THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 10.

Rio Arriba county did splendidly for the Republican ticket. That county is all right.

Mr. Perea's election is assured by a very handsome majority. How is that for high?

Bernalillo county gave Mr. Perea a very gratifying majority, namely of 650. Good enough.

Grand old Valencia looms up with 1,500 majority. No flies on Valencia when it comes to voting the Republican ticket.

The race issue did not work as well as the Democratic campaign managers and their subsidized press thought it would.

The voters of this county recognized the great necessity of electing an honest and capable board of county commissioners and acted on that realization on Tuesday last.

New York, Ohio, California, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Wisconsin and New Mexico went Republican last Tuesday. This territory is in good company.

Socorro county is coming to the front for the Republican ticket in fine shape. Mr. Ferguson was sure of that county before election day, but "there is many a slip between the cup and lip."

As election returns are being received and as the Republican victories are being announced, it is becoming apparent that last Tuesday was a very cold day for the Democracy of New Mexico.

The Democratic newspaper lie that Mr. Perea was opposed to American free public schools did not work well last Tuesday, as the result of the election held in this territory on that day fully shows.

The Republican party on last Tuesday presented a united front to its old-time enemy. The result is a glorious Republican victory. Let this lesson be heeded in the future. United we stand; divided we fall.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Albuquerque Democrat, is being reminded by the result of the recent election, that "For an ignorant Mexican, who can neither write nor read the English language," Hon. Pedro Perea did right well.

The New Mexican made a clean, consistent and energetic campaign. The result of the election shows that it adopted the right course. It left the use of slander, falsehood and lies to its Democratic contemporaries, where they properly and naturally belong.

Mr. Ferguson is respectfully reminded to the following stanza from one of Heinrich Heine's poems: "I am not tall what has come over me, That I can't so weary and woe," as rendered in the original German: "Ich weiss nicht was soll es bedeuten, Das ich so traurig bin."

During the recent campaign the New Mexican advised the Republicans of Santa Fe county to put up a ticket composed of clean, able and honest citizens. This advice was heeded, and certainly, no good Republican can, with justice, cavil at the result.

Santa Fe county gave Mr. Perea 434 majority last Tuesday. Right good, that, for a county that gave Mr. Ferguson 56 majority two years ago. It seems that the voters of Santa Fe have come to their senses and acted accordingly.

The Republicans of New Mexico made a courageous fight during the recent campaign. There was no dodging and no equivocation on their part. They stood squarely on the St. Louis platform and obtained a great victory. Courage and pluck tell in politics as they do everywhere else in life.

On Tuesday last the people of New York had to choose between Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Boss Richard Croker. Naturally, they sided with Colonel Roosevelt, which action on their part will prove exceedingly wise and profitable, as the future will show.

Governor Otero ought to feel very proud at the result of last Tuesday's election. The people of the territory have paid him the compliment of electing a legislative assembly strongly Republican to sustain his administration, and have sent to the 56th congress a Republican delegate to show that they are pleased with the Republican executive appointed by President McKinley. Glory enough for the governor for one election.

Santa Fe county looms up as one of the banner Republican counties in the territory. But for the treachery of a few renegades and neglect in two precincts the Republican majority for Mr. Perea, instead of being 434, would have been 600. But the New Mexican is right well satisfied, any way. Its good, hard and energetic work told and told well. And all is well that ends well.

Of course the New Mexican is compelled to acknowledge that the result of the recent election in this territory pleased it very much. It did good, honest, solid work for the Republican party and its nominees throughout the recent campaign, and the results speak for themselves.

Mr. Ferguson does not yet concede Mr. Perea's election. However, this cuts no ice. The people have elected Mr. Perea and he will get his election certificate and take his seat as the delegate from New Mexico to the 56th congress at the proper time. Mr. Ferguson need lose no sleep over this affair.

The Las Vegas Optic and various other Democratic papers abused Mr. Perea, Republican candidate for delegate, most shamefully and caustically during the campaign just closed. The people of New Mexico, by their votes on election day, emphatically and by a handsome majority disapproved of this low, dirty and despicable warfare. Glory enough for the next twenty months.

Free Trade and Free Traders Again Beaten.

The result of the election held on Tuesday is all that the friends of good government, of prosperity and protection could have asked. The victory for the Republican party in all parts of the United States, except in a few southern states, where the voters are largely controlled by prejudices and race hatred, is an indorsement of President McKinley and Republican principles which will bring the opposition but little comfort in the years to come.

The contest was a bitter one. In every state the free traders and free silver forces used every means known to the shrewd politician and cast doubt over the benefits which have been conferred upon the country by protection; yellow journalism has sought to create bitter prejudices in the minds of the voters by calling into question the conduct of the war; the president's motives and acts regarding the disposition of the territory acquired as a result of that war have been impugned, and cabinet officers have been compelled to submit to slanderous attacks for the same purpose. And what has been the result?

The men who carry dinner pails, who earn their bread by the hardest of manual labor, the business men, the manufacturers, the farmers, cattle men and sheep men have all declared, by their ballots, that under the Republican administration which began on March 4, 1897, conditions have been better, life easier, and that they do not desire a return to the hard times of a Democratic regime. This was what is known as an off year in politics, and had the result been the reverse of what it is there would have been nothing astonishing about it; only the usual occurrence of a congressional election would have happened. But in place of that result the voters have served notice upon the enemies of American industries and good government that with free trade and free soup houses they are through; one experiment in that line has been enough to last a life time.

One of the gratifying features of the election was the defeat of Tammany in New York and the election of Colonel "Teddy" to the governorship. In the Empire state the political organization known as Tammany and under the leadership of Richard Croker, has assumed a position where it is positively dangerous to the welfare of the commonwealth, but it is safe to say that before the expiration of "Governor" Roosevelt's time of office a way will be found to clip its claws and reduce it to a less aggressive and menacing condition. When police commissioner Colonel Roosevelt made considerable trouble for the "tiger," and as governor he will be able to so manage affairs that the greater part of its influence for evil and robbery will be taken away.

The senatorial situation is also such as to bring smiles to the face of true Americans. With the assembling of a number of state legislatures, protection senators will be elected to succeed free traders, and the upper house will stand between the laboring men and low wages for a number of years to come. The present tariff law will be maintained upon the statute books of the nation and the wool and sheep and cattle men of New Mexico will have no fear that prices will again reach the 65 cent lamb, 4 cent wool and $5 steer level for the next generation. The lower house will have a very comfortable Republican majority during the 56th congress, and in fact, the situation is very promising for the prosperity of the country.

It is true that the Democrats made some gains in the house of representatives, but when the methods employed to accomplish that end are considered, it is to be wondered at that the Republicans were not defeated entirely in the congressional districts. But for the common sense of the voters and a vivid remembrance of the conditions which obtained when the house was Democratic the last time, there is no question but the Democrats would have been successful in carrying nearly every district in the states.

The direct result of the Republican victory will be seen in the next two years in the growth of American industries, the expansion of trade and the capturing of the markets of the world by honest American products made by honest workmen. The people have every reason to be thankful for the way in which the voters cast their ballots, and on the 24th of the month the national feast and thanksgiving day can be observed in a true spirit of thankfulness for an escape from free trade, free soup houses and enforced idleness on the part of the wage earners.

Indorsement of Governor Otero.

By their votes, cast on Tuesday, the people of New Mexico paid a well deserved compliment to Governor Otero, by indorsing his official acts for the past 17 months and upholding him in his efforts to give the territory a good, clean and just administration. Ever since Governor Otero took his office the Democratic press of the territory has never failed to misconstrue his acts as an officer, pervert facts and to accuse him of exercising the prerogative of his office for partisan reasons, even though he was only obeying the mandates of the law, and could not have acted otherwise had he desired. The election of a great majority of the candidates on the Republican tickets in the various counties clearly indicates that the voters believe in the honesty of purpose and sincerity of desire which have actuated the governor in everything he has done as an officer and the executive of the great territory of New Mexico.

Governor Otero has conscientiously endeavored to do his duty in every act imposed upon him by his office and it must be gratifying to him to know that the voters of the territory believe in him and so express themselves at the polls, despite the efforts made by the Democrats to discredit him by misrepresentations and malevolent attacks. As matters now stand, the governor has every evidence that his efforts to advance the interests of the territory are appreciated by the great majority of the people of New Mexico, and strength will be given him to continue his course of action without regard for the desires of the extreme partisans among his opponents, and in utter contempt for enemies and their newspapers and supporters.

What a Contrast!

What a contrast! Two and four years ago, under Democratic officials, it was not known who would be seated in the legislative assembly until after the organization of that body, since no matter how large a majority members-elect had received at the polls, the Democratic governor and the Democratic secretary arrogated to themselves the right to say who should be members of the New Mexico legislative assembly, regardless of the wishes and desires of the people as expressed at the ballot box. This election a different state of affairs exists. There is a Republican executive and a Republican secretary in office and the people know that whoever has received a majority as either a member of the house of representatives or member of the territorial legislative council, will take his seat accordingly. Nobody expects any fraud or chicanery or lawlessness as was the case under a Democratic administration, for the simple reason that Republican officials are in power, who will do their duty well and honestly.

The Silver City Enterprise is 16 years old, and is the oldest paper published in southern New Mexico. The Enterprise is a staunch Republican paper, its editor is a good citizen and his paper will live long after its Democratic contemporaries are gathered among the relics of the moldy, musty past.

American Soldiers in the Philippines.

Correspondence of London Times. Their brief experience in actual warfare established a notable fact. It proved them courageous, decent, high-minded soldiers, worthy of every confidence and cheerful in all circumstances. If the laurels they have gained are small in comparison with those which rewarded the heroism of their comrades at Santiago, they are none the less honorable for no men could have endured more or worked harder than they, or have shown more valor.

TERRITORIAL TOPICS

COLFAX COUNTY.
Raton Rough Riders are receiving their bronze medals. On the cross bar in raised letters is the inscription "1st U. S. V. C." On the pendant in raised letters on a plain field appears: "San Juan, Las Guasimas, Santiago." Between the pendant and the bar is an eagle with crossed sabers forming the connection.

PUTTING HIM RIGHT.

The Small Boy Thought the Orator Wanted Information.
They were having a flag raising in a township not more than half an hour's run from Detroit, and an orator from this city went out to make the eagle scream for the assembled patriots. To the more youthful members it was the event of a lifetime, and their elders were scarcely less enthusiastic. There had been days of anxious waiting and preparation, the committee in charge were as busy as the whippers in at a political convention and the women, always the most fervent of patriotic citizens, had prepared a generous spread to be enjoyed after the more formal exercises.

When the orator mounted the rostrum, he consulted a nosey assistant, and his lips twitched with a desire to smile as he noted a little fellow on a front seat, his feet bare, his red hair bristling, his eyes sparkling and his one suspender, over which there was neither coat nor vest, fastened to a wooden pin. It was plain that to him the proceedings were no less important in character as busy as the whippers in at a political convention and the women, always the most fervent of patriotic citizens, had prepared a generous spread to be enjoyed after the more formal exercises.

Only a Moment.
The orator jolted in the inevitable laugh, restrained a zealous citizen that was going to lead the small boy out by the ear, and from that time on confined himself so religiously to the text that the younger liked to have unjoined himself to the enthusiastic applause.—Detroit Free Press.

Barber—What can I do for you, youngster?
Youngster—Cut dese curls off, an, say, get a hustle on, 'fore me man is gunnin for us.—New York Journal.

Perhaps She's Changed Her Opinion.
Mother—What did he say to you in his letter, dear?
Daughter—Reminded me that I promised to wait for him till he came back from the war and not to go with any other young man while he was away.

Young—Of course you wrote him that you would be true to your promise?
Daughter—Well, yes, and I told him very distinctly that I didn't think the war was being pushed along as it should be at all.—Detroit Free Press.

A Great Trial.
Mr. Lovell—You are an honest woman to bring them back.
Mrs. Washington—Yes, sah, but don't leave dem diamonds in no no. Mah ole man was dat sliced dey'd be stole at de cake walk he nevah took his han off'n his razzah, an not anoddih shirt as would fit him in de wash.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Mr. Ashby Peppers.
"War," said Ashby Peppers, "is getting back to first principles. Primitive men used to throw stones; modern men throw tiles."
"Hes," echoed the medical student boarder.
"Yes—projectiles."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Washington's Eyes.
Small Boy—Mamma, was General Washington blind?
Mamma—Of course not. Where did you get that idea?
Small Boy—Nurse took me to th' Old Ladies' home today and showed me a woman that he kised.—New York Weekly.

WINTER STYLES.

New Models for Jackets and Skirts for the Coming Season.
Since golf has become so universal a pastime, bright colored outing garments have appeared in great numbers. Among the latest are plainly made short jackets with a double breasted, straight front and small coat covers. These jackets are of scarlet, blue or white cloaking, the revers, collar and cuffs being of plaid or plain, brilliantly contrasting cloth. For example, a jacket of military blue will have trimmings of white or emerald green, one of white will be set off with scarlet. These jackets are very effective and becoming.

Skirts have become tighter and tighter at the top until now a new model has appeared in which there is no fullness at all at the back, the skirt being fitted quite flatly and smoothly and fastened by a row of five or six buttons. Of course a circ-lar flounce is a necessity in such a skirt to give the requisite fullness and flare about the lower edge. This style is worn with a bodice having no bustle or even points. Close skirts are not the only ones seen, although they are having a great vogue. There are others which are plaited at the back and toward the front and which open over a plain or full tulle of a different material.

Today's illustration shows a costume of yellow and white striped taffeta with black dots. It has a tablier decoration of two bands of white guipure edged with puffings of yellow mousseline de soie. The blouse bodice is crossed in front and is edged with a similar trimming and opens over a guipure of puffed white mousseline de soie, with lines of yellow silk between the puffings. The sleeve caps match the decoration of the gown. The collar and belt are of yellow taffeta. A hat of black velvet trimmed with black plumes and yellow taffeta accompanies the gown.

TAILOR MADE FASHIONS.

Variations in Style from the Costumes of Last Season.
Tailor made costumes, in the fashion of which there seems to be less fluctuation than in that of any other sort of gown, do nevertheless change more or less every year, and this season the variation from the usual standard is quite marked. The skirt, which was formerly invariably plain or at most ornamented with flat galloon or buttons, is now frequently adorned with circular flounces or with panels of cloth of a different color. It may be opened at the side or in front, or the foot may be cut into scallops, squares or points which fall over a band of velvet or cloth. Velvet is, however, always employed very moderately in the tailor made class of gowns, as a simple and correct effect is aimed at rather than richness.

The tailor made gown illustrated is of beige cloth. The close skirt is adorned with bands of suberine velvet, which pass down each side of the bodice. The close bodice has an applied plastron of an bergine velvet, cut in points and brotelle of velvet. The tight sleeves are trimmed like the bodice and have turned back cuffs of cloth bordered with velvet. The straight collar and the valon collar are of cloth with velvet bands. The hat of beige velvet is draped with chenille dotted tulle and trimmed with feathers and a jeweled ornament.
