THE DISSATISFIED DEMOCRACY.
The "widespread dissatisfaction" in the Democratic party still fails to materialize. In Ohio, the State where it was claimed to be most pronounced, the recent National Convention assembly, clearly congregated the country upon the decision of President Cleveland; congratulated the President and his Cabinet upon the auspicious beginning they have made in the necessary reforms of the Government, and endorse the Administration; approve the important measures adopted by the Democratic Congress; reaffirm the principles of the National Democratic Convention of 1884, and have nominated for Governor a gentleman who is thoroughly in accord with the Administration and the avowed reform policy of the party.

In New Hampshire, at a fully attended caucus of the Democratic members of the Legislature on Wednesday, resolutions were unanimously adopted, amid long and hearty applause, unqualifiedly endorsing the National Administration, as follows:
"We heartily sympathize with President Cleveland in his manifest determination to fill the offices of the country with honest and capable men. We commend his caution, his firmness and his sagacity. We believe his hand is strong, his heart true, and that his courage will not fail. We assure him of our abiding faith in him, and pledge him our steadfast support, with the confident expectation that the American people will rally around and enable him to banish corruption from high places, and to re-establish wholesome rule, peace and prosperity throughout all our borders."

WHEN I AM DEAD.
(C. M. L.)
When I am dead, I pray that, sweet,
Mourning not above the winding sheet,
But rather smile, and say: "At last
The dew of heaven shall cool his feet."
Yet profane and incomplete
Life's journey, should I fail to meet
One hand with mine to be o'ercast
When I am dead.

But those whose joyance is the seat
And throne of Love - I thus entreat,
Bend not before the cruel blast
Which snags my life; nor stand against,
Lying in vain for one hour's rest
When I am dead!

Causes of Deteriorated Eye-Sight.
(Popular Science Monthly.)
The causes to which this deterioration of eye-sight has been attributed are all related to the cross-eyes, from opposite windows, light shining directly on the face, insistent light, small types, and to the position of the desk, forcing the scholar to bend over and bring the eyes too close to the book or writing paper, etc. But, were all these defects remedied, the integrity of the eye would not be restored, its deterioration prevented. The chief causes of the evil would still remain. These are the color of the paper and the ink. White paper and black ink are retarding the eyesight of all reading nations. The rays of the sun, says Lord Bacon, "are reflected by a white body, and are absorbed by a black one. No one dissects from this nature and of philosophy, we print our books and write our letters in direct opposition to the suggestions of optical science."
When we read a book printed in the existing mode, we do not see the letters, which being black on a non-reflective, they shake the retina, but these are not received by a spontaneous, direct action of that organ. The white surface of the paper is the cause, but the letters are detected only by a discriminating effort of the optic nerves. This effort annoys the nerves, and, when long continued exhausts their susceptibility. The human eye can not long sustain the broad glare of the white surface without injury. The author of "English Vistas" in Harper's Magazine, says of Cartagena that "blind people seem to be numerous there, a fact which may be owing to the excessive dazzle of the sunlight and the absence of verdure." Mr. Seward, in his tour around the world, observed that "in Egypt ophthalmia is universal," attributing it to the same excessive dazzle of the wide areas of white sand; and the British traveler the late century in that country, exhibited symptoms of the same disease.

In the Smithsonian report for 1877 it is stated in a paper on "Color Blindness," that "M. Chevreul produced 14,420 distinguishable tints of the elementary colors, from which the paper manufacturers color their papers, but no one is able to see more than the dazzling white, weakening and lacerating to the nerves of that delicate organ."
The Mail in China.
(Cassell's Family Magazine.)
But as regards letters, a considerable proportion of the 400,000,000 Chinamen do occasionally exchange letters - those who cannot write for themselves hiring scribes to do so. These letters are conveyed to them which have houses in all the large towns, where letters are forwarded to distant ports, to be distributed by special agents, who generally collect the postage on the receiver. There was certainly something comic in the fact that when China was no longer able to exclude foreigners from Peking, our British postal arrangements were no longer established than some of the imperial officials came to ask Sir Frederick Bruce to forward certain state documents for them between Peking and Canton.
At the time of the Emperor Hien-fung, which occurred just at that time, intimation thereof was sent from his country palace in distance of 600 li, which is upward 300 miles in twenty-four hours, which is the highest speed attainable in China. But the placid Celestials, to whom letters appear a form of vulgar impudence, and to whom telegraphs are an abomination, are content that all ordinary communications should be conveyed either by paper lanterns and paper umbrellas, or by footrunners, whose high sounding title of "the thousand mile horse" does not quicken their pace beyond about twelve miles in twenty-four hours. They carry a paper lantern and a paper umbrella, and their letter-bag is secured on their back by a cloth knotted across the chest.

The New "Oceopy" of Buddhists.
(Atlanta Constitution.)
Many intellectual people in this country who have always professed to hold spiritualism in utter indifference are now very much interested in what they call "Psychical research." They are also investigating a very extraordinary phase of spiritualism called "theosophy." This queer mystery comes to us from oriental lands, and is a mixture of Asiatic gnosticism, medieval magic and modern science. Mr. A. P. Slomet is the founder, or rather initiator of the new school. In his "Occult World" and "Esoteric Buddhism" he has outlined its main features very attractively.
Such a bold has the new "oceopy" already obtained that numbers of wealthy men have left their homes to dwell as hermits in the wilds of Tibet, where a paper lantern and a paper umbrella from Buddhist professors. It is difficult to see what useful thing is taught in this weird school. It is claimed that the prosecution of certain studies will enable the student to walk in the air, to play with the clouds, to control the winds, to steer the stars, to multiply himself and appear in two places at the same time, and project himself astrally any distance. He also comes to a full understanding of the nature of God and learns how to re-incarnate himself in a body when old and worn out. Now these things are more wonderful than anything in ordinary spiritualism, and yet there are learned men and women in Europe and America who profess to believe.

Mr. W. Matten Williams remarks that the popular notion that mosquitoes are chiefly resident in tropical and sub-tropical countries is quite a mistake, the home of their mightiest legion being within and about the Arctic circle. On coasting trips to the North Cape, vessels are invaded by maddening swarms at every stopping place. It is reported that in Alaska they form clouds so dense that it is impossible for sportsmen to aim at objects beyond. Native dogs are sometimes killed by them, and even the great grizzly bear is said to be occasionally blinded by their attacks and finally starved in consequence.

SCROFULA CURED.
Dr. L. A. Gull, Atlanta, says: B. B. B. cured Wm. Senlock of a terrible case of Scrofula, which affected the entire elbow joint.
ANOTHER CASE.
EAST POINT, Ga., April 2, 1884.
My wife has been afflicted with a terrible form of Scrofula for over ten years. Physicians exhausted their skill, and numerous patent medicines were used without benefit. Her condition grew worse - her appetite failed, attended with debility, emaciation, falling out of the hair and a frightful breaking out of the skin. Her bones became very much diseased and painful (some calling it white swelling), with sleepless nights and a general feeling of horror. Some friend said that B. B. B. would cure her. I procured it and placed her upon its use, and to the utter astonishment of all who knew her the recovery was rapid and complete. It acted as a powerful tonic, gave her a splendid appetite and acted upon the kidneys. A few bottles did the work. The action of B. B. B. was decidedly quick, and the medicine cost but little. I advise my friends to use it as a blood purifier. Yours truly,
R. M. LAWSON.

BLOOD POISON.
Mr. A. F. W. of Hampton, Ga., has recently emerged from one of the most remarkable cases of Blood Poison on record. His body and limbs had no less than four hundred small ulcers - his bones tormented him with painful aches - his kidneys presented the frightful symptoms of all doctors and 100 bottles of the most popular Blood Poison remedy failed to give him any relief. He secured B. B. B., the concentrated quick cure, and five bottles healed up the ulcers, relieved his pain, cured his kidneys, restored his appetite, and made him a healthy and happy man. Any one can secure his full name and correspond with him.
