

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Today's Passing Events Boiled Down For Busy Readers.

San Francisco, Nov. 23.—A detective boarded the Pacific Mail liner Magnolia, on the steamer's arrival from the Orient yesterday, and arrested L. E. Knollys, whose description is said to tally with that of L. G. Hancock, wanted by the authorities of Winston-Salem, N. C., on a charge of alleged embezzlement.

Wilmington Nov. 24.—Perhaps the largest congregation ever assembled in the building was present Sunday evening to participate in an appropriate climax to a series of exercises in celebration of the semicentennial of the founding of Saint Andrew's Presbyterian church, this city, of which the beloved Rev. A. D. McClure, D. D., is pastor.

Richmond, V., Nov. 24.—The trial of Alexander E. Gilbert, assistant freight agent of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, charged with violating the interstate commerce law, by giving special rebates to shippers of grain and packing house provisions, is now going on in the United States Circuit Court for the eastern district of Virginia, Judge Waddill on the bench.

London, Nov. 23.—Word has been received here that the balloon owned by The Daily Graphic, which ascended from this city Wednesday morning in an attempt to reach Siberia and break the long distance record, was compelled to descend in a gale on Thursday night near Novoselaxandrovsk, Russia, after having traveled about 1,159 miles. The best long distance record was made by Count de La Vaulx' who succeeded in covering a distance of 1,193 miles.

New York, Nov. 24.—Credit for the creation of the Standard Oil trust, which counsel for the federal government claims still exists as the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was given yesterday by John D. Rockefeller as a witness under cross-examination suit to dissolve the Standard to two men—Henry M. Flagler and Samuel C. Dodd. To these master architects of the oil combine Mr. Rockefeller gave full credit, saying that he did not possess the ability for so progressive a move.

New York, Nov. 23.—A notable article from Andrew Carnegie, dealing with the tariff, will appear in the forthcoming December number of the Century Magazine, in which the iron master takes the position that "infant industries" no longer need protection; that the steel and other industries have now grown beyond the need of tariff protection; that duties on luxuries used by the rich should be maintained, but that those on manufactured articles should be reduced greatly, or abolished entirely when no longer needed.

Wilmington, Nov. 24.—Ten bids of more than par and accrued interest to the county's four and a half per cent road improvement bonds and another upon a five per cent basis, which, however, was rejected, were received yesterday afternoon by the Board of Commissioners of New Hanover at a special meeting held at the Court House for the purpose of opening the proposals advertised. The award was to E. H. Rollins & Son, of Boston, at $1.02 and a fraction, plus the accrued interest, the sale having later been confirmed with Massachusetts brokers at the amount named.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 20.—The big deal between the American Tobacco Company and the Burley Tobacco Society for the 1906 and part of the 1907 crops of tobacco, which has been hanging fire for several weeks, was closed here late last night. The price agreed on in the transaction, said to be the largest of its kind ever put through, is an average of 20 1-2 cents for the 1907 crop and 17 cents per pound for the 1907 product. The deal involved nearly 80,000,000 pounds of tobacco held in the pool by the Burley Tobacco Society and an outlay of something like $14,000,000 on the part of the American Tobacco Company.

Asheville, Nov. 20.—The feature of yesterday's session of the Western North Carolina Methodist conference was the adoption of a resolution by the conference that it would as individuals and members sign notes by which the one hundred thousand dollars endowment fund of the Greensboro Female College would be secured. The resolution was adopted with but one dissenting vote. This means that the college will be the only woman's college in Southern Methodism owned by the church with such an endowment. The session was one of sorrow, to use a fraternal term, in that the order of business was changed and the memoirs of dead preachers and preachers' wives were read and opportune remarks made.

NEW ELECTION LAW.

Senator From Buncombe will Advocate This and a Number of New Measures.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 24.—In a view of the fact that there has been no little talk of late relative to pending legislation for Asheville and Buncombe county when the North Carolina general assembly meets in January, State Senator James J. Britt, the Republican representative from Buncombe county in the upper branch of the next generally assembly, was asked today what, if any, important legislation would be enacted when the lawmakers meet.

"You will have to ask the majority," was the reply. "We, the Republicans, have but a dozen senators and some thirty representatives, and, of course, cannot alone pass any legislation."

"Speaking for myself, I shall vote for whatever measures I believe to be good for Buncombe county or for the whole state, regardless of who may introduce them."

Mr. Britt was asked if he contemplated the introduction of any bills and in reply said:

"Yes. In our local campaign Mr. Rollins and I declared in favor of a non-partisan jury commission for Buncombe county; for the election of boards of education by the people in the different counties in the State, as we do in Buncombe county; for the improvement of our election laws and some other measures. These and such other as I deem necessary for the welfare of this city, of this county and the State I shall not hesitate to introduce in good faith, but the question of their passage will be with the majority—the opposition."

MINISTER A SUICIDE

Disappointed in Politics, wake County Man Slashes His Throat, Ear to Ear.

Raleigh, Nov. 23.—With his throat cut from ear to ear, the razor with which he took his own life still in his hand, the body of Rev. A. D. Hunter, a well known Baptist minister was found in the woodshed of his premises at Cary at noon today.

Rev. Mr. Hunter was 55 years old and had served a number of country churches hereabouts as pastor. He had been very low spirited since the Democratic county primaries in which he was a candidate for county treasurer against Capt. B. P. Williamson, Chas. W. Crawford, L. Brown Pogram, and especially bitter contest involving Hunter quite heavily financially bringing from certain quarters charges involving his family and causing him much suffering. He had discussed these matters fully with some of his friends here very recently. He leaves a widow and four children, Miss Hunter, the oldest daughter, being a member of the faculty of the Business Department of the Baptist State University here.

BUSINESS MANAGERS FOR CITIES.

A New Departure in Municipal Management That Works well.

Galveston, Tex., and Des Moines, Ia., rid themselves of rings and corruption by putting their affairs in the hands of commissioners of three appointed by the governor, or else elected by the people. The commission plan has worked well—so well that many desire to see it extended to their cities.

Staunton, Va., a city of 12,000 people, has, however, evolved a new plan by which all the business of a city is conducted, not by three commissioners, but by one general business manager. The mayor and council exist, but last April they elected a general business manager, putting all the business of the city in his hands. He is contracts for paving at 71 cents a square yard, although the mayor and council had been paying $2 a square yard. He conducts the business of the city promptly, alertly and economically, and the people of Staunton decline to consider a proposition to go back to former political methods. The manager was appointed last April, and the longer they have him the better pleased they are with him and the plan for the transaction of the city's business.

STUDYING

THE CLASSICS.

An Association of Teachers of Latin and Greek.

There is in the central and southern part of the country an association of teachers of Latin and Greek who are organized for the purpose of promoting the study of the classics and advancing the interests of classical learning generally. It boasts now of a membership of 1,700 teachers from the high schools, normal schools and colleges of the twenty-eight States that lie between the Appalachians and the Rockies, and every day adds new names to its roll of members. In the three years of its existence it has had a marvelously rapid growth, due to its liberal policy and to the benefits that accrue to its members. At its annual meetings subjects are treated that have a vital interest for the teacher, both in his private study and in his class room work, and a free and general discussion follows every paper that is presented.

But it is perhaps the two classical periodicals, Classical Philology and The Classical Journal, that have done most to bring the association into prominence, for these are sent free of charge to all the members. The teacher of elementary Latin and Greek no less than the college professor finds matters of interest and instruction in these journals, and soon comes to regard them as indispensable in his work.

The association is known as the Classical Association of the Middle West and South. Each State that falls within its territory is represented by an officer called vice president.
