SCHNEIDER'S SERENADE.

Wake up my schweet! Wake up, my lolo!
Der moon dot can't been seen whole,
Vake out your eyes, und, dough it's late,
I'll make you oud a serenade.
Der shstreet dots kinder dampy vet,
Und dhere vas no goot place to set;
My fiddle's getting off of dune,
So please git vakey werry soon.

O, my lolo! My lovely lolo!
Aw you vake up dhere spofe,
Fesing vad und nice to hear
Schneider's fiddle schrabing near?

V-ll, anyway, ope loose your ear,
Und try to saw if you kin hear
From dhem bedeloo-vat you in among
Der lottle song I'm going to sung:

O, lady, vake! Git vake!
Und hear der tale I'll tell.
O, you vat's schlee-bin-sound ub dhere,
I like you pooty vell!

Your plack eyes dhem don't shine
You you'n schlee-bin-sound vake!
(Yah, hurry ub und vake ub quick,
For gootness cracious sake!)

My imbitance, schweet lolo,
I hope you vill excuse,
I'm singing schreevly--(dhere, py jinks!
Dhere goes a shiring spoke lolo!)

O! putful schweet vake!
(O! vake-uber vake!)
Der moon is mooning--(jining! dhere,
Amuder shiring vent vake!)

O! say, you shlooby head!
(Now I vas gitting mad,
I'll holler now, und I don't care
Uf I vake up her dad!)

I say, olt shlooby, vake!
Vake out! Vake lolo! Vake up!
Fire! Murder! Police! Vake!
O! cracious, do vake up!

Dot girl she shlooby--dot rain it rained,
Und I looked shlooby like a fool,
Ven mit my fiddle I shlooby off,
So vet und shlooby like a fool!

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15th.—The President has sent to the Senate, today, a message, under date of the 13th, stating that since his sending in the nomination of Caleb Cushing as Chief Justice, he has become satisfied, from information received by him, that the nomination was not a proper one to be made, and therefore withdraws it.

CALEB CUSHING'S LETTER ASKING THE WITHDRAWAL OF HIS NAME

Appended to the message is a postscript, stating that the President has received the following letter from Mr. Cushing, asking the withdrawal of his name:

To President Grant—Sir: Animate by a sense of profound gratitude for the honor you have done me, in nominating me without any previous on my part, for the high office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and perceiving that a continuance of my name before the Senate may be the cause of inconvenience to yourself and your political friends, therefore I respectfully request you to withdraw my nomination.

Permit me to add that the charges of disloyalty to the Union and the Constitution, which have been made against me in this connection, are totally destitute of any foundation or truth. In fact, I indignantly repel them. At all times and anterior to the commencement of hostilities in the Southern States, every act of my political life was governed by the simple dominant purpose of aiming to preserve the threatened integrity of the Union, and avert from my country the calamity of disunion, and of fratricidal carnage. How could such a purpose be promoted other than by political association or personal intercourse with persons of the different States, including even those of the States which professed to be disaffected with the Union.

Immediately after the first act of hostility, I took my stand with the Government, and I publicly announced my adhesion to it in the most emphatic terms. I respectfully tendered my services to the Government in the field or in any other way, which might testify my fidelity to the Government. From that day to this, as well in official as in unofficial action, I have trod the loyal path, unswerving in devotion to the Union, whether during the actual progress of hostilities against it, or in subsequent times. Reconstruction and the successive amendments of the Constitution, rendered necessary by the changed condition and relations of the several states of the United States, and their respective inhabitants, and the recent amendments of the Constitution, each and all of them, as they were successfully adopted as legal measures, and they acts for their enforcement, and for accomplishing reconstruction, had my cooperation. I have supported them constantly, though not in political debate, for which my comparatively retired life afforded no opportunity. I have expressed them to officers of the Government, Members of Congress, and private persons. I entertain the same respect for these amendments as for other provisions of the Constitution. While my nomination was undergoing consideration it would have been unseemly for me to speak in explanation of my acts or opinions, but now with relative indifference to whatever else may have been said to my prejudice, it belongs to my sense of public duty and my political convictions to affirm and declare that I have never, in the long course of a not inactive life, done an act or deed or uttered a word of disloyalty to the Constitution.

I have the honor to be, respectfully,
C. CUSHING.

MARK TWAIN'S RESPONSE TO A Toast at a London Banquet.

On St. Andrew's Day, the two hundred and ninth anniversary of the Scottish corporation of London was held. It terminated in a banquet, and among Barons, Earls, Knights and the Lord Chief Justice of England, who responded to the toasts, we finally come upon the familiar name of Mark Twain. This is what he said in response to the toast of "The Ladies!"

"I am proud, indeed, of the distinction of being chosen to respond to this special toast to 'The Ladies,' or to women, if you please, for that is the preferable term, perhaps; it is certainly the older, and therefore the more entitled to reverence. [Laughter.] I have noticed that the Bible, with that plain, blunt honesty which is such a conspicuous characteristic of Scripture is particular to never refer to even the illustrious mother of all mankind herself as a 'lady,' but speaks of her as a woman. [Laughter.] It is odd, but you will find it is so. I am peculiarly proud of this honor, because I think that the toast of women is one which by right and by every rule of gallantry should take precedence of all others—of the army, of the navy, of even royalty itself, perhaps, though the latter is not necessary in this day and in this land, for the reason that, tacitly, you do drink a broad general health to all good women when you drink the health of the Queen of England and the Princess of Wales. [Loud cheers.] I have in mind a poem just now which is familiar to you all—familiar to everybody. And what an inspiration that was, and how insidiously the present toast recalls the verses to our minds, when the most noble, the most gracious, the purest and sweetest of all poets says:

"Woman! O woman!—er—
Wom—"

[Laughter]—however, you remember the lines; and you remember how feelingly, how daintily, how almost imperceptibly the verses rise up before you, feature by feature, the ideal of a true and perfect woman; and how as you contemplate the finished marvel your homage grows into worship of the interest that could create so fair a thing out of mere breath, mere words. And you call to mind now, as I speak, how the poet, with stern identity to the history of humanity, delivers this beautiful child of his heart and brain over to the trials and the sorrows that must come to all, sooner or later, that abide in the earth; and how the pathetic story culminates in that apostrophe—so wild, so regretful, so full of mournful retrospection. The lines run thus:—

"Alas!—alas!—a—alas!
—Alas!—alas!—alas!"

And so on. [Laughter.] I do not remember the rest; but, taken altogether, it seems to me that that poem is the noblest tribute to women that human genius has ever brought forth—[laughter]—and I feel that if I were to talk hours I could not do my great theme completer or more graceful justice than I have now done in simply quoting that poet's matchless words. [Renewed laughter.] The phases of the womanly nature are infinite in their variety. Take any type of woman, and you shall find in it something to respect, something to admire, something to love. And you shall find the whole joining your heart and hand. Who was more patriotic than

John of Arc? Who was braver? Who has given us a grander instance of self-devotion? Ah, you remember, you remember well, what a throb of pain what a great tidal wave of grief swept over us all when John of Arc fell at Waterloo. [Much laughter.] Who does not sorrow for the loss of Sappho, the sweet singer of Israel? [Laughter.] Who among us does not miss the gentle ministrations, the softening influences, the humble piety of Lucretia Borgia? [Laughter.] Who can join in the heartless libel that says woman is extravagant in dress when he can look back and call to mind our simple and lowly mother Eve arrayed in her modifications of the Highland costume. [Roars of laughter.] Sir, women have been soldiers, women have been painters, women have been poets. As long as language lives the name of Cleopatra will live. And not because she conquered George III.—[laughter]—but because she wrote those divine lines—

"Let dogs delight to bark and bite,
For God hath made them so."

[More laughter.] The story of the world is adorned with the names of illustrious ones of our own sex—some of them sons of St. Andrews, too—Scott, Bruce, Burns, the warrior Wallace, Ben. Nevis—[laughter]—the gifted Ben. Lomond, and the great now Scotchman, Ben. Disraeli. [Great laughter.] Out of the great plains of history tower, whole mountain ranges of sublime woman—the Queen of Sheba, Josephine, Semiramis, Sairey Gamp; the list is endless—[laughter]—but I will not call the mighty roll, the names rise up in your own memories at the mere suggestion, illumined with the glory of deeds that cannot die, hallowed by the loving worship of the god and the true of all epochs and all climes. [Cheers.] Suffice it for one point and our honor that we to our day have added to it such names as those of Grace Darling and Florence Nightingale. [Cheers.] Woman is all that she should be—gentle, patient, long-suffering, trustful, unselfish, full of generous impulses. It is her blessed mission to comfort the sorrowing, plead for the erring, encourage the faint of purpose, succor the distressed, up lift the fallen, befriend the friendless—in a word, afford the healing of her sympathies and a home in her heart for all the bruised and persecuted children of misfortune that knock at its hospitable door. [Cheers.] And when I say, god bless her, there is none among us who has known the ennobling affection of a wife or the steadfast devotion of a mother but in her heart we will say, Amen! [Loud and prolonged cheering.]

For interesting 'matter', see our 'inside.'
