

NO MORE DIVORCES.

The Dakota Quick Separation a Thing of the Past.

A New Law for the North State Which Will Do Away with the Colony Scheme and a Very Large Revenue.

There will be no more 90-day divorces in North Dakota after July 1. North Dakota will have but a few advantages over other states when the new law takes effect, for there are several places where divorce laws are pliable after one year's residence.

The amended law has been discussed for years by the "church and temperance" people, who have argued that the divorce-while-you-wait law was calculated to give a wrong impression of the commonwealth. They have now obtained a law just as they obtained prohibition, but, like the latter law, the door is left open for easy access and exit.

The North Dakotans are nothing if not thrifty. Easy divorce brings about $2,500,000 into the state every year, while it only exports contented and heart-whole "residents." The wheat farmers of the legislature had their eyes on the money end of the question and threw out the year's residence as a sop to the moral enthusiasts. In this they had the backing of the banks, lawyers, hotel men and business men generally, all of whom appreciate that the divorce money furnishes business that cannot be had from any other source.

There is no state where the judges are so sympathetic towards litigants in the divorce mills. The courts define cruelty as any action on the part of the husband or wife that causes the other mental suffering. Over nine-tenths of the Dakota divorces have been granted on charges of cruelty and desertion, the former charge predominating.

This new law will be convenient in one way, for there must be desertion of a year, and while obtaining a residence the charge can now be secured.

In North Dakota no place amounts to anything unless it has its divorce colony.

Of these the largest is Fargo, with Mandan at her heels. The colony at the latter place was only started a few years ago, but it has a record, due to a couple of hustling New York attorneys, who send their clients out sorrowful and bring them back happy.

Mandan, being the newest colony, furnishes an interesting bit of life to the observer. There are about 1,500 citizens and a colony of 150 "residents" and "would-be residents."

It was in 1896 that Mandan began its career as a divorce center, and the books of the courthouse show a boom-town business. From 1899 to 1898 but six pages were used in recording all the cases heard by the court. From 1896 to 1899 80 pages have been necessary to enter the causes, and over 500 divorces have been granted. The position of the clerk of the court has become a gold mine; the stenographer and others who receive fees roll in wealth, while the judge has an air of prosperity and contentment.

Life in the colony is not attractive, but the enforced stay to obtain a residence is looked upon as something better than that must be taken with the sweet that comes at the end.

During the day the principal diversion is a game called "Trouble." To play this it is necessary to join a colony; the more players the merrier. Each one must tell his or her troubles to everyone else, and there must be no secret. In this game there are more women than men.—Denver Post.

WAS ADAM A NEGRO?

Curiosities of Human Coloring—Color of the Original Man by an English Scientist.

In the first of a series of articles upon anthropological data Prof. Arthur Thomson discusses the original color of mankind and weighs some evidence bearing upon the question whether the earliest races were black or white.

At the same time he mentions Alfred Russel Wallace's idea that primitive man was a Mongol. This would infer that our original color was yellow, and when we consider the civilization of remote times which existed among the Chinese, that the people of Europe sprang from Asiatic stock, and that the identity of the earliest cave dwellers in this country and in France with the Eskimos (also Mongols) has been demonstrated, this view does not seem so very unlikely. Prof. Thomson characterizes the theory as suggestive, but goes into none of these outside details, confining himself to a study of skin, hair and their pigments.

Sorby, he says, isolated three pigments, using hair as the more convenient subject for experiment. In light-colored hair a brown red and a yellow pigment occur, to which in black hair a black-coloring matter is added, and it is a remarkable fact that there may be in a negro's "wool" as much red pigment as in the European variety sometimes alluded to as "curtains."

Again, when a piece of white skin is grafted, as is often done in nose surgery, upon a black man, it becomes black, while black upon a white man loses its pigment. This, Prof. Thomson thinks, supports the theory that man has developed a black color, rather than the other alternative.

Other interesting points are brought forward. For instance, there is always a certain amount of pigment in the skin of even fair people, that is, of the red and yellow kinds found in their hair, but not enough to prevent the blood in the vessels which do not come nearer the surface than the true skin showing through the semi-transparent layers of the epidermis.

Bronzing through exposure to the sun is due to an increased blood supply and a corresponding development, freckles, and pimpled spots, similar in structure to the general skins of darker races, while dark-complexioned people among us have, in addition to the ordinary pigments, a trace of the black color of the negro, more commonly present in our hair. There is not, however, enough to destroy the racial fairness of our skin, though in exceptional situations (such as in the arm pits) its presence may be very evident.

As to the use of a black skin, Darwin hinted that it might have been developed in correlation with the immunity from malarial diseases which "darkies" enjoy, as it is true that white sufferers acquire a darker complexion.

In support of the idea that the ancestors of negroes and white men more nearly resembled the latter in color, a point not mentioned by Prof. Thomson might be brought forward, and that is that "pickaninnies" at their birth are not black in color, but of a dirty gray. If original man were black, just as the original lion was spotted, we should expect to find in the negro infant the black color, as we find in the young cub the traces of spots.—London Mail.

MINIATURE SING SING.

The New York Prison, Modeled in Alabaster, to Be Exhibited at Paris.

A model of Sing Sing prison has recently been made in alabaster by the inmates of that institution. The pipes were drawn and the material shaped entirely by inmates, and the success has so far surpassed their fondest expectations that the model will be exhibited at the Paris exposition. The work was begun last November and is just completed. A magazine entitled the "Star of Hope," published within the walls, describes this marvel of ingenuity. All the property of the state intended for the prison wall and all its buildings will be reproduced on a scale of one-sixteenth of an inch to the square foot.

Each and every building will be shown just as it stands, completely furnished; every wire and pipe underground will be shown and marked if used for steam or water; all the outside doors of the different buildings will be made so that they may be opened at will; also, the gates of the prison will be opened from the guardhouses just as they are to-day. The tower at the right of the warden's house will be shown in detail, and a small cannon will be placed in position to mark the recent improvement made by the present superintendent; also, there will be shown on the same scale 603,072 square feet of property, along with the 16 state buildings, including the main cellhouse that contains 1,209 cells, and which is 482 feet long. One feature of the work will be the construction of the main prison building, the cells, of which there are 1,200, standing in a solid mass of stone work, with a guard wall of its own height, all roofed over. This guard wall contains the windows, and it will be so arranged that the outer guard wall can be opened in order that the 1,209 cells may be seen in their completeness. All of the buildings will be made of alabaster. This is arrived at after each section is first modeled in clay, then in plaster of paris, which serves to make the glue molds free, and finally in alabaster.—N. Y. Sun.

TOLD OVER THE TEACUPS.

An Indian and a Russian woman are among the graduates of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania this year.

Every year shows an increase in the number of women who in traveling employ valets, instead of maids. The valet acts as courier and attends to the luggage.

The inauguration of the monument to Rosa Bonheur, which has not been, like most monuments, raised by subscription, but erected by a private individual, took place recently at Fontainebleau.

Turkish women, it is said, are becoming more independent every year. Despite of orders to cover the face in public, many boldly let their veils fall aside and keep them off altogether when entering a shop.

There are hundreds of women connected with the newspapers of the land as literary, dramatic and art critics, society and general reporters, but the honor of being the only woman city editor is said to belong to Mary M. Lee, of the Titusville (Pa.) Herald.

Miss Rebecca Page Knox, daughter of the United States attorney general, is a pretty brunette of 20, and is described by her father as a "level-headed girl." Miss Knox has spent much of her time in study and travel. She is the constant companion of her father in their home life and they are spoken of as comrades.

The advent of two Moorish women from the grand vizier's harem, who have accompanied the deputation from the sultan of Morocco to King Edward, is quite a matter of moment. We know little of our sisters in Morocco, for the Moor, as in the olden days, still jealously guards his women relations from contact with the outside world.
