Col. Broadhead Goes into the Whisky Cases.

He Didn't Say it.
New York, Dec. 14.—Prof. Wells, who made Bishop Haven, at the now famous Boston preacher's meeting, and to whom was attributed the language: "Grant was the Saviour of his country and the people could not dispense with his services," the truth is I never alluded to Grant in any way, shape or manner whatever, and in the whole course of my remarks I had not the most distant thought or allusion concerning what followed. Indeed I do not believe a single individual came there with the slightest anticipation of what would be said by the bishop. The whole tenor of my speech from beginning to end was a censure of the ecclesiastical interference with civil government in Europe, and as such the logical sequence could scarcely be the intermeddling of the Methodist church with national politics.

Counsel for the Government.

Sr. Louis, Dec. 11.—A dispatch from Attorney General Pirrepoint to District Attorney Dyer, says the commission of Col. Jas. O. Broadhead, a special counsel in the whisky prosecutions has been forwarded on a retained of one thousand dollars. Another dispatch says the president desires ex-Gov. Thomas C. Reynolds to be engaged to assist Col. Broadhead. Mr. Reynolds has been proffered the appointment and has declined, but for what reason has not transpired.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The annual report of the attorney general was laid before the senate and ordered printed and referred to the judiciary committee.

A large number of petitions asking the appointment of commissioners to the liquor traffic were presented and referred to the finance committee.

Edmunds, from the judiciary committee reported a bill to extend the duration of the court of commissioners of Alabama claims six months. The bill passed.

The report of Maj. C. B. Comstock, through the secretary of war, on improvement of the south pass of the Mississippi, under Mr. Eads, was laid before the senate and ordered printed.

By Davis—A resolution concerning the accounts of the government, being unfinished business, came up and was referred to the committee on finance 35 to 25.

The chair then laid before the senate a motion of West from Louisiana, to grant the request of McMillan to withdraw his claim to a seat in the senate as senator from Louisiana.

After long debate the senate agreed to West's motion 30 to 25. The only republican who voted with the democrats against the motion was Dawes. Randall introduced a similar amendment extending ineligibility to the vice president when the office of president devolves on him.

Under the call of states a number of bills, etc., were introduced and referred.

By Blaine—proposing a constitutional amendment that no state shall make any law respecting the establishment of religion or of prohibiting the free exercise thereof—also providing that no tax receipts or public lands set aside for public schools shall ever be under the control of any religious sect, and that no such money or lands shall be divided among religious sects or denominations.

By Lauder—Relative to the repeal of the resumption act of January 14th, 1875. He offered the following resolution and demanded the previous question on its adoption:

Resolved by the house of representatives, That in all subordinate appointment under any of the officers of this house, it is the judgment of this house that wounded soldiers, who are not disabled from the performance of the duty should be preferred.

The vote seconding the previous question showed 97 republicans voting in its favor, and 104 democrats against it.

The vote was then taken by tellers with this result:—ayes, 99; nays, 126; so the previous question was not seconded.

Cox offered an amendment as follows:—Resolved, That inasmuch as the union of the states has been restored, all citizens thereof are entitled to consideration in the appointment of officers under this government.

Cox moved a reference to both resolutions to the committee on accounts and demanded the previous question. Hale, of Maine, asked whether the resolution was offered as a substitute.

The speaker said it was an amendment.

Starkweather objected that New York had already been called and the gentleman could not put in a resolution now.

The speaker ruled that it was too late to make objection.

Fort said he had tried to make the objection as soon as the resolution was offered.

Hale inquired whether the house had acted on the amendment.

Speaker—it has not. That would be acting on the subject matter of the resolution now, which is not the purpose of the gentleman from New York. His purpose is to refer both resolutions to the committee.

Cox—the original resolution was an ad captum affair. My resolution is in the nature of amnesty.

The vote being taken resulted in referring both resolutions to the committee of accounts, 168 to 102 a strict party vote.

The call of states being continued, Harrison introduced a bill to amend the constitution, fixing one term for the president and making him ineligible thereafter, but making him a senator for life from the United States at large, at the expiration of his office.

By Morrison—fixing the president's term six years, and making the president ineligible for six more years.

By Hilzer—A resolution directing the committee on military affairs to inquire into the expediency of reducing the army to 10,000 men, or to such a number as will insure efficient public service at an expense not exceeding two million dollars yearly.
