TAILOR-MADE SUITS FROM $9.98 to $60.

That Will Appeal to Smart Dressers

There is not a single day that we do not surpass the selling records of the corresponding period last year, and there are many days that we more than double our pre-Easter business of last season.

There's not a day that some one or more of our patrons do not bring some acquaintance to our Suit Section and tell us that they "were so well pleased and satisfied with their Tailor-made Suit—the style, the fit, and the workmanship—that they just would not let their friend decide on a suit until she had seen our showing."

That's the sort of advertising we want, and that's what we're striving for. The good will gained because of satisfaction rendered cannot be advertised into a store or bought; it must be earned, and earned on a basis that makes good will constant. THAT'S THE REASON we are always busy.

FAIRFIELD

Prof. Britton's Lecture—Elm Tree Pests — Scraping Trees—Value of Trees — Spraying—Chickens—The Closed School—Personal.

A good sized audience assembled at the library lecture room last evening to listen to a lecture by Prof. Britton, of New Haven, upon the care and preservation of the shade trees of the town. It was profusely illustrated with lantern slides. A few of those present included Mr. and Mrs. Huntington, Dr. Donaldson, Mr. John Mills, Rev. Dr. Child, Rev. Allen Beeman, Miss Kippen, Miss Bessie Betts, Mr. Charles Jennings and others. Mr. Benjamin Betts, president of the Village Improvement society, in introducing Prof. Britton spoke of a trip he had made into some of the far western states, and through some of the Southern states, where he saw villages and large towns without a single tree, and how glad he was to get back to the New England paradise of Fairfield with its beautiful trees, its well kept lawns, its neat sidewalks, etc.

Prof. Britton agreed with Mr. Betts that shade trees add much to the beauty and value of a village and its homes. He said that a census had been taken of the trees of that city, and it was found that city has over 7,000 which are estimated to be worth $15 each. He thought this too low an estimate, and asked what would Hartford be without its trees. He said there are over 17,000 trees in New Haven which he considered to be worth one million dollars. He threw upon the screen a picture of Temple street as it was 40 years ago, when it was lined with magnificent elms which made a perfect gothic arch the whole length of the street, and then gave a picture as the street is to-day, riddled with its beauty and almost bare of trees. He said the people of that city are waking up to the necessity of doing something to preserve the ancient beauty and removal of the town as the Elm City. He then went into the different causes which destroy trees, showing how they are improperly pruned; how the leakage from gas mains; the cutting and mutilating by telephone and telegraph companies, and the injury to the bark by horses, all help to ruin trees. He stated that 35 per cent. of the trees in New Haven had been injured by horses gnawing the bark, and said there is a law that if any one leaves a horse where he can injure a shade tree, he is subject to a fine of not less than $5; but, he added, the law is not enforced, and the help to ruin trees is an injury done by a horse.

The various methods of preserving trees by killing the trunks with Portland cement were illustrated and also the appliances for the protection of the trunks of trees. Coming to the elm tree and its enemies, Prof. Britton said he was sorry to see that in some places, as in the public square at Newark, much time and money had been spent scraping the trunks of elm trees smooth, under the mistaken notion that by so doing the worm of the elm tree beetle would be destroyed. He said the worm which comes from the eggs of the elm tree beetle had descended in the fall, from the foliage of the tree, and that the pupae from the

FUNERAL OF DR. GORHAM AT WILTON

Honors Paid to Physician Who Ministered to Sufferers of Town for Thirty Years.

The funeral of the late Dr. Andrew Bennett Gorham which took place at his home in Wilton yesterday was largely attended. Friends of the deceased physician came from miles in every direction to pay their last tribute to one who had not only won a widespread reputation for his ability but had also gained the affection of the community by his self sacrificing efforts to relieve suffering. The deceased was a member of Ark Lodge, F. & A. M., of Georgetown, and the full Masonic ritual was carried out at the grave. The funeral service at the house was jointly conducted by Rev. A. A. Marks of St. Matthew church of Wilton, and Rev. William D. East of the Congregational church. The combined chimes of the two churches sang the hymns of which two, "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me" were the favorites of the dead physician. The pall bearers were Sir Knights Milton Edwards, Edward Gorham, Nicholas Martin, Thaddeus Betts, Louis Miller and A. J. Keeler of Clinton Commandery, No. 3, of Norwalk. A long line of carriages followed the casket over the hills to the old cemetery in Redding where generations of the family of the Gorhams have been buried since the first settlement of the region by the English, long before the Revolution. The funeral was witnessed by mourners and the overflow took refuge on the porches and lawn of the residence. The remains lay in state during the entire morning and were viewed by hundreds of friends and acquaintances gained in the thirty years of faithful service for the community. The room was filled with flowers and the pieces were banked about the casket in tiers. Besides the visiting Masons and Shriners there were delegations from the Fairfield County Medical Society and other associations with which the deceased was connected.

TESTING OUT THE SCOUT CRUISERS

(Special from United Press.) Newport, R. I., April 2.—The scout cruisers Salem, Birmingham and Chester sailed at 9 o'clock this morning on their third coal run for the economy test. This run will be of 2,000 miles at 20 knots speed, occupying four days and four hours. When the 2,000 mile run is completed the cruisers will coal again and have a full speed run of 24 hours which will complete the series of tests. Later the three scouts will go in the New York Navy Yard where they will receive new propellers especially designed by the Navy department. After these are installed they will go to the government speed course of Rockland, Me., for trials with the new propellers.
