THE FIRST-BRIDGEPORT NATIONAL BANK

CHARLES G. SANFORD, Pres. F. N. BENHAM, Vice President O. H. BROTHWELL, Cashier

OUR SERVICE

The service rendered by this bank is unequalled by reason of the fact that the officers and employees of both the Bridgeport National Bank and the First National Bank have been combined, thereby making a strong banking force, capable of handling a large volume of business with accuracy and dispatch.

OBJECT TO SUGAR TRUST SETTLEMENT

Philadelphia, July 30.—Bondholders of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company, the concern promoted by Adolph Segal, but which never turned a wheel in the production of sugar protested vigorously before Judges Wilson and Carr, in Common Pleas Court yesterday against the sanctioning of the receiver's proposed settlement of his suit against the American Sugar Company.

Attorney General M. Hampton Todd and Julian P. Davies of New York, representing all the bondholders of bondholders of the refining company, maintained that the Pennsylvania Company's claim against the American Company would result in the recovery of a much larger sum if the case went to trial. The bondholders also wanted the court to appoint a master to take a complete report could be made on the proposed adjustment.

Messrs. Todd and Davies, in denying the adequacy of the settlement, said that the sum would be made less by payment of $105,000 to Gustav A. Kissel. While expressing every confidence in Mr. Earle, the opposing counsel said they doubted that he, while being President of the Real Estate Trust Company which was so vitally interested in the settlement, would conserve all interests faithful, especially as some were antagonistic to the company of which he is the head.

They declared that under the terms of the settlement the bondholders would not receive all they were entitled to and special objection was made against the surrendering of securities against which there are disputed claims.

Cadets Only Snobs, Says Prof. Zueblin

Chautauque, N. Y., July 30.—From West Point and Annapolis the United States gets a goodly number of snobs each year, says Prof. Zueblin, the former University of Chicago man, who spoke to the Chautauque assembly yesterday on American culture. Prof. Zueblin believes that the money spent in turning out Tyro warriors, who consider themselves better than their fellows, could be better spent in educating them technically for some useful occupation.

"We are turning out of West Point an Annapolis a generation of snobs," said Dr. Zueblin emphatically. "These young soldiers are brought up to think themselves better than their fellows. Simply because they wear the garb of the soldier or sailor they consider themselves on a different plane from their fellow-Americans."

POLI MAY HAVE STAMFORD HOUSE

Sylvester Z. Poli went to Stamford Wednesday for the purpose of looking over the ground with a view to putting up a theatre after the general plans which he has carried out so successfully in nine other cities.

Mr. Poli made a statement to the Stamford Advocate which fully explains his position. He said: "Four or five years ago, when your theatre burned, I thought your town was a little too small and a little too near New York. I don't think so now. You certainly have grown in the past five years and your growth will continue. I don't need any figures. I can see your growth. I can tell what sort of a place a town is by looking it over, and observing its property. It is safe to say there is not a city this size in the country which hasn't a theatre, I mean a theatre—not a makeshift, no chicken-coop, but a building imposing enough to add to the dignity of your streets and large enough for the future."

"Now, then, I am prepared to come to Stamford and give the service I am giving in 12 theatres in nine other cities. I shall be glad to entertain any proposition that anybody has to submit and my terms will be most liberal. I shall make a lease for 20 years, guarantee four per cent, and I give you my honest opinion that the investment will be paying, large dividends in two or three years. Further, more I shall contribute liberally toward the capital myself. Let me tell you what I did in Meriden. The theatre there was burned a few years ago as yours was. Some public-spirited citizens subscribed capital for a new one, and entered into negotiations with me. I contributed $2,000 of the capital, then later I gave $5,000 more, making a total contribution myself of $10,000, aside from guaranteeing four per cent, and making a long lease. Do you think Meriden would part with its theatre now? You could not get it at any price."

"Charley" Wheeler Is Rusticating

Officer Charles A. Wheeler, the guiding influence of the joy chariot which conveys prisoners to police headquarters is off duty for the next four days and Officer George E. North will be the pilot of the good ship "Black Maria" during the period of Officer Wheeler's absence. The latter officer will spend his four days in peaceful idleness on the beach at Little Bridgeport, whither his family betook themselves some time ago. He has a speedy launch which he operates with the same skill that he has shown in handling the conveyance labelled "Charities Department." His three-year-old son, Charles A., the third, who possesses a precocious knowledge of engines, has full charge of the motive power of the launch and concedes to no one the right to interfere with the engine once it has been cranked. There are a couple of rocks off shore in front of the Wheeler cottage which the officer has named "Fairfield," and which are in plain street, and it is his great delight to keep in practice by grazing these rocks with his launch every day.

Prevented Train Wreck. Tom Coyote is the tower man at Darien. The tower is some distance east of the station, and abreast of it, a long stretch of perfectly straight track, broken by a sharp curve. Tom's trick kept him in the tower Friday afternoon. About 3 p. m. a train came along from the west, the Boston express. Everything was clear for the train and the tower man had thrown the white signal, which shows below the station. Tom Coyote saw something. He saw it under the mall car, and like a flash he sprang for his lever. White signal went down and in its place sprang out the red bar. The tale on the forward truck of the mall car was split fairly in two, and the only thing that kept the car on the track was the high speed, and the fact that the roadbed was perfectly straight. All agreed that, with the axle gone, the mall car could not have withstood the slightest curve at the rate of speed this train was going, if that mall car had jumped the track, probably every other car would have been piled on top of it.
