LEE WILL BE URGED TO VETO FIREMEN'S SALARY ORDINANCE

Board of Trade, Business Men's Association and Manufacturers' Association Will Discuss Increase at Dinner, in Algonquin Club--Lee Consults City Attorney and Learns That Veto Power is Still His--Asks For Opinion as to Successor's Power.

It is announced that some 40 well known business men, representing the Board of Trade, the Bridgeport Manufacturers' Association and the Bridgeport Business Men's Association will sit down to an informal dinner at the Algonquin Club, tonight.

Those who are scheduled to be present are: Frank Miller, Philip L. Holzer, Hobart E. Enos, Frank D. Bell, D. Fairchild Wheeler, R. T. Whiting, E. L. Graves, F. W. Boland, George M. Eames, T. H. Macdonald, Jerome Orcutt, E. E. Bullard, R. E. Brewster, W. E. Sanford, Hamilton S. Shelton, Jesse G. Cornwall, A. H. Mackenzie and others.

Mayor Lee did not sign the report of the ordinance committee, raising the salary of the firemen, when the matter came before him today. He sent for City Attorney Cullinan and learned from him that he had a right to veto the measure and return it to the next Common Council, although that body will be a different organization than that which passed upon it.

The city attorney took it under consideration. He will probably give an opinion on the matter tomorrow. The question now in the minds of many is, "If the mayor finds that his successor has the same right to veto the measure that he has, will he side-step and pass it on?"

WOMAN DRINKS ACID AND DIES

(Special from United Press.) Manchester, Conn., Nov. 5.—Leaving a note in which she said she was tired of enduring the hardships of life and that she would be better off dead than alive, Mrs. Mary McCarthy Dwyer, 23 years old, drank carbolic acid in her home, 33 Wells street, early this morning, dying soon after.

Mrs. Dwyer, who was the wife of Thomas Dwyer, separated from her husband several months ago. This is believed to have been the real cause of her suicide. She leaves an infant, sixteen months old.

BLEW THE SAFE TO SMITHEREENS

Burglar Jimmied into Westport Hardware Store and Got Counterfeit Coins.

GOOD MONEY IN THE BANK (Special from United Press.) Westport, Nov. 5.—Was it just plain revenge or mere accident that a burglar who jimmied his way into a store and blew the safe to smithereens with nitro-glycerine should retire into the murky darkness with nothing but a few counterfeit coins in his ragged pockets? F. Guyer of this city refuses to say.

Guyers hardware store was broken into early to-day and the safe blown. It was the fifth time the store has been burglarized in a dozen years. For reasons best known to himself Guyer had saved all the counterfeit coins he could get within a few moments after the store was broken into. Several weeks ago he placed them in his safe. His good money he placed in the bank vaults.

When he reached his store this morning he found the safe in fifty pieces. Guyer grinned from ear to ear. He pulled his bank book from his vest pocket and counted a thousand dollars were in the credit column.

"Stung!" cried Guyer as he saw the pieces of his safe swept into the back yard. No doubt Guyer meant the burglar.

RUMOR ROOSEVELT KILLED IS DENIED

(Special from United Press.) New York, Nov. 5.—Wall street is believed to have been responsible for a rumor to-day which got on the commercial telegraph wires and spread all over the country to the effect that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt had been killed while hunting in Africa. As an instance of the widespread interest in the movements in every quarter of the strenuous ex-President, the United States Press is flooded with reports of the spread of the rumor in receipt of demands from every section of the country for further details or denials of the report.

While it was impossible to trace exactly the source of the rumor there is reason to believe that it originated in the office of one of the big Wall street houses which has offices in Africa and which operates an extensive system of wires throughout the United States. While the United Press is unable to get in immediate touch with its correspondent with the Roosevelt party which is now on an inland hunting expedition inquirers at Nairobi brought the reply that there was no truth in the story.

W. H. LATTIN HAS NARROW ESCAPE

William H. Lattin, Jr., secretary and treasurer of the Lattin Trucking Co., and a workman with him were thrown out of a light one-seated carriage at the office of one of the big Wall street houses which has offices in Africa and which operates an extensive system of wires throughout the United States. While the United Press is unable to get in immediate touch with its correspondent with the Roosevelt party which is now on an inland hunting expedition inquirers at Nairobi brought the reply that there was no truth in the story.

The carriage was overturned by the automobile of Charity Commissioner James T. Bourke. The auto was driven by Mr. Bourke's nephew, Armand Bourke. Mr. Lattin escaped with a bad shaking up and a slight abrasion over one eye. The workman received a cut on his forehead. The wagon was smashed and the lights on the automobile were smashed and bent. The horse was not hurt, although it was thrown to the ground with the wagon. One of the traces also broke. The carriage could still be used and Mr. Lattin drove away in it.

The automobile struck the wagon broadside. Young Bourke was driving down the incline from the depot and Mr. Lattin was driving north on Water street. As the automobile turned into Gold street the smash came. Spectators said that the automobile was going down the hill at a fast rate of speed. Bourke said he was not going fast and that he blew his horn. He said he put on his brakes and did all he could to prevent the collision. Mr. Lattin refused to say anything about the accident except, "There is no question about his hitting me." He took the names of several witnesses.

MURDER MOTIVE REVEALED IN FAMOUS TRIAL

Before Madame Steinhell is Excused She Admits Reviving Her Love Affair With M. Borderel After Her Husband's Death.

(Special from United Press.) Paris, Nov. 5.—With a tearful appealing smile at the jury that is trying her for life, Madame Marguerite Steinhell staggered from the witness stand to-day in her trial for the murder of her husband and mother, at the end of three days of battling against continuous brutal brow-beating and bullying by president of the court, Judge Valles, the prosecutor general and other members of the court.

The wan, haggard almost feeble figure that stumbled from before the tribunal to-day was a wraith of the brilliant woman whose beauty captivated French Presidents and politicians and whose influence swayed French politics. To the end of the trial, however, Madame Steinhell preserved her dramatic emotional attitude. As Dr. Valles, almost exhausted himself by the terrific deluge of questions and accusations that he poured at the woman, he motioned her away, indicating that her examination was over, she grasped the hand of the prosecutor general and other members of the court. Her leaned heavily on the gen darmes who stood beside her, when with a sudden straightening of her slight bowed graceful control of herself, she stumbled to a chair beside her counsel.

At no point in her three days' ordeal did Madame Steinhell make an admission damaging her case. She held steadfastly to her story that her husband and mother were murdered by three men and a woman, the former clothed in long robes and the latter a red haired female. Clever sarcastic cross examination and brutal denunciation alike failed to shake her.

The trend of the government's proof in establishing a motive for the murder was revealed shortly before Madame Steinhell was excused when Dr. Valles questioned her at length on her relations with M. Borderel, who she admits was her lover and to marry him the state contends she murdered her husband.

"Why did you return to Borderel after your husband was dead?" asked Dr. Valles. This gave Madame Steinhell opportunity for another emotional display.

"I whole world was against me," she sobbed, stretching her arms toward the jury. "I had no one to turn to. Everyone believed I had committed the crime. I loved him and I mean to lean on I revived my love affair with M. Borderel."

Here she gave way entirely to her emotion and a recess was taken to allow her time to recover. Upon the resumption of court, Madame Steinhell explained her relations with Remy Couillard, whom she charged with the murder, claiming to have found a pearl in his possession which she had stolen from the jewelry store. She said that she was driven to accuse Couillard by newspapermen, anonymous letters and several of her friends who were sure the servant was guilty.

After bullying, denouncing and sneering at the quivering woman with questions she was most brutal and cruel, nearly two hours Prosecutor De Valles prepared for a coup. Madame Steinhell was trembling violently and appeared most exhausted by the end of the inquisition. Dr. Valles turned to the jury:

"Gentlemen," he said, "you will please consider the prisoner carefully and closely. I am about to ask a most important question which will affect her greatly. She will probably faint. I will ask the question when she is sitting, waiting for the blow to fall. A murmur swept the courtroom as the intention of the judge to un-nerve the woman became apparent to the jury. Madame Steinhell's counsel was on his feet in a moment.

"The attorney, Monsieur President General and other members of the court, have bullied, denounced and verbally lashed this woman for nearly two hours. She is now in a state of collapse. Now it is time to call a halt."

A buzz of approval sounded through the court room and Dr. Valles sought to put the momentous question. Jean Lefebvre, who confessed to the crime in court and later admitted that his confession was false, is still held a prisoner, pending an examination. His real name is given as Rene Colard.

Primrose May Get East Side Support Solid Against Gould

A pretty contest is looked for in the election of a Republican leader, who will conduct the party's campaign for the Aldermanic caucus for president of the board. In the last caucus three ballots were taken before Clifford B. Bourke was elected. He was elected by each received six votes until one of Hartley's supporters left him on the fourth ballot. This year the candidates are H. W. Gould and W. H. Primrose. Like Mr. Hartley, Mr. Primrose comes from the Ninth district in East Bridgeport, and has been in the council longer than his opponent. Mr. Primrose will probably go into the fight with five votes from East Bridgeport behind him. Mr. Gould will have to hold the other seven in order to win. Mr. Gould has been identified with the young Republicans during his political career. Mr. Primrose has always been loyal to the party machine, so there is a party question in the contest that does not show itself on the surface.

Health Board Visitation Of City Bakeries

Dr. A. C. Knapp, D. V. S., milk and meat inspector of the Board of Health and Sanitary David W. Lynch, made a tour of inspection covering the bakeries yesterday. They will report to the Board of Health at its next meeting, Nov. 9.

CHARITIES BOARD MEETING

A meeting of the Board of Charities was held, last night. The only matter of interest discussed was the way in which the outside doctors do not present their reports. In a joking way Judge Patrick Kage suggested that the board should elect a committee of President James J. Stone thought they might be asked to resign. He smiled when he said that, and Clerk Nevins did not record it.

Hartmann Comes Into Hogan & Kaiser, and the New Firm Moves Across the Street—Other Business Changes.

There is going to be moving in Wall street soon. Fritz Hartmann, unable to secure a license for the old Amazon John street, has purchased the interest of George W. Kaiser in the firm of Hogan & Kaiser, which has a cafe on the south side of Wall street. The firm of Hogan & Kaiser have secured a ten year lease of the stores in the Judson building on the north side of the street, which was formerly the firm of Hogan & Kaiser's barber shop and Shallet's jewelry store. They will remodel the stores and move in early next spring.

Where Thierfelder and Shallet will go has not been announced as yet. On the south side of the street the Jewellers Corporation owns the building in which Gimand's cutlery shop and Jacob Huber's barbershop, with ice cream and candy establishment is located. The corporation wants the entire building for some alterations that it intends to make.

Mr. Huber prepared for this change by securing a lease of the four story building occupied on the ground floor by Hogan & Kaiser, and subject to a lease held by Jacob Huber until March, 1916. The deed was filed in the office of the town clerk this morning. It is understood that Mr. Flynn has purchased the building at his present location, but that he had a chance to purchase the building as an investment and did so. The sale was made to the firm of Flynn & Co. and the price was in the neighborhood of $25,000. The property had been in the Fox family for 50 years and is the site of central realty owned by the estate.

The reason that Mr. Hartmann was unable to move a license to the old location was because of the fact that 200 feet of the Public Library, Hogan & Hartmann intend to have one of the finest cafes in the city.

Thomas F. Flynn, proprietor of the Connecticut Cafe, has purchased from the Charles Fox estate the building on the south side of the street, now occupied by Hogan & Kaiser, and subject to a lease held by Jacob Huber until March, 1916. The deed was filed in the office of the town clerk this morning. It is understood that Mr. Flynn has purchased the building at his present location, but that he had a chance to purchase the building as an investment and did so. The sale was made to the firm of Flynn & Co. and the price was in the neighborhood of $25,000. The property had been in the Fox family for 50 years and is the site of central realty owned by the estate.

ANCIENT FIGHT FOR LICENSE TRANSFER ON

John E. Foster and Thomas Arnold, Sr. Favor McGuire's Application.

A contest which has been annually renewed for sixteen years, was on this morning, before the County Commissioners, when the transfer of the license to the new proprietor, sought to have a license, which is owned by Eckart Brothers, on Green street transferred to him, to use in a saloon at the corner of Park and McGuire streets.

The manufacturing interests in this locality, which are the Malleable Iron Co., the Crane Valve Co. and the Crane Valve Co. are strongly opposed to the transfer. There were 50 witnesses, most of whom favored the transfer. McGuire, in his application, said he was the owner of the license. The manufacturing interests in this locality, which are the Malleable Iron Co., the Crane Valve Co. and the Crane Valve Co. are strongly opposed to the transfer.

The counsel for the reorganizers, Canfield, Judson and Putnam, asked to have the case thrown out, on the grounds that McGuire had perjured himself when he stated that he was the owner of the license. The manufacturing interests in this locality, which are the Malleable Iron Co., the Crane Valve Co. and the Crane Valve Co. are strongly opposed to the transfer.

St. Patrick's Fair Will Open Tomorrow

The young ladies and young men of St. Patrick's parish have taken considerable interest in the fair which opens tomorrow evening at Eagles' hall. The proceeds of the fair will go to the fund for the new church. Elaborate and expensive plans have been advanced to make the fair a success. It will continue until Nov. 27. For many years the fair has been held at work and when the doors open the church organizations will have expended large sums toward the fair and their one of the most entertaining public events of the season.

CITY COURT CASES

In the City Court this morning, William Higgins, who stole a bicycle lamp, last week from E. F. White of 1251 State street, was fined $7 and costs. He went to jail. Joe Lancia, of 4 Lexington avenue, was sent to the Reform school for truancy and incorrigibility. He is 13 years of age. Michael Polkosnie, who was arrested for keeping a wheel which had been loaned to him by Edmund Meredith, of 145 Merriam street, was discharged. Tony Screwinski was fined $10 and costs for assaulting a former sweet-heart, Sophie Barano, of 553 Broad St. Monday. Miss Barano did not know that Tony was married while he was courting her, but when Mrs. Schreiner landed recently and claimed her husband Miss Barano gave him the cold shoulder. Because she would have nothing more to do with him, Schreiner lost his temper. He paid his fine.

NAPOLEONIC TRIAL OF THIS WOMAN STIRS WHOLE WORLD

Few persons in this country can read of the proceedings at the trial of Mme. Marguerite Steinhell in Paris without a feeling of pity for the woman. She is charged with having murdered her husband and his mother, and the trial is the most sensational that has been held in Paris since the Dreyfus affair. Under the Napoleonic code the court and lawyers may badge a prisoner at the bar almost at will, making statements and admissions concerning any episode in the accused one's past life, and they have not failed to do this in Mme. Steinhell's case. The examination of the woman on the first day of the hearing was inquisitorial in the extreme.

CLERKS' CASE UP TO MELLE NOW

(Special from United Press.) New Haven, Nov. 5.—The clerks in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad today are still at their desks and the walkout which has been expected any moment since morning has not yet been ordered. Predictions are almost as plentiful today as actual further statements of facts are scarce. The clerks may be ordered to stay at their desks, may grant the demands, avoiding a strike, the clerks' leaders may decide on the grounds that the company would be unable to procure abundant substitutes for the clerks' clerks' committee proposition of altogether. However, verification for all these reports said to be in circulation, the railroad must times during the morning, could not be found. One thing, however, was definitely settled today. Negotiations for the railroad have been taken over by the hands of General Manager Higgins and General Superintendent Pollock. President Mellen hereafter will be sole agent for the clerks' committee, and it is announced that a conference between the committee and President Mellen will probably be held late this afternoon. What the result of the conference will be is admitted by all to be problematical.

RADEL NOT "OYSTER KING" NOR FORMING OYSTER TRUST

Bridgeport Grower Says His Transaction in Great South Bay Bottom is Merely Land Purchase.

A movement is reported to have been executed recently by means of which the oyster business in the territory bordering Great South Bay, Long Island, will be consolidated, in which Andrew Radel of Bridgeport, who is already a large planter, is said to be the prime mover.

Mr. Radel has been instrumental in development work in this neighborhood for some time. Recently it was reported that he had acquired a large tract of beach near Fire Island, and intended putting through an electric line across the island through sayville to Port Jefferson, where he already is extensively interested in oyster properties and owns and operates a shipyard.

The oyster trade in Great South Bay is at present in the hands of numerous small planters, to whom the announcement of the consolidation of the industry is regarded with dismay for they fear it will be the end of their heretofore profitable little business.

Deekers, a well known shipper of Sayville, is quoted as declaring: "The situation is extremely serious for the oystermen of Great South Bay. Radel, who is already a large planter on Long Island, has had his eyes on the territory for a long time, and if he once does get control of it, it will be all up with us."

Controlling possession of the beds has been apparently obtained by a syndicate of which Mr. Radel is the head, by the purchase of some 14,000 acres of land, most of it under water and comprising the beds of the choice blue point oyster on the south shore of Long Island, from the opening of the Ocean Shore Road, near Sayville, to the north shore of the same island. About 6,000 acres of the land is now thus occupied, but the leases will expire on March 31 next. The owner, ship, having passed to a syndicate desiring themselves to operate directly, the present leases are in line for eviction of independent planters.

Mr. Radel was at his office today. He said that he and some other gentlemen had bought the property in question as an investment and had not decided what they would do with it, as it would be a year and a half before 90 per cent. of the leases on all the oyster beds had expired. He said that he and his friends might plant the land. As for being an oyster king he declared that he was not looking for any titles that he had purchased land before and made money and he had purchased other land and lost money, and therefore it was simply a business deal.

The property was owned by the Smith heirs, who have held it under a deed dating back to 1776, by directors of the Ocean Shore Realty Company, which William H. Moffitt is president. The tract extends from a short distance west of Patchogue seven miles to the north shore of Great South Bay, the line then crossing to a point near Point of Woods; thence along the northern shore of Fire Island and across the bay again to the point near Patchogue. Piers and buildings along the water front are leased and land is rented to oyster fishermen. From these sources the Smith heirs have been getting a large revenue and efforts to buy small parcels of the property have failed.

With Mr. Radel as purchaser were Mr. Moffitt, Selah T. Clock of Bay Shore, and Edward Thompson of Northport. All these men are interested in the oyster industry.
