

FAIRFIELD

S. J. Gorman and family, of Greenfield Hill, have left for a winter in Washington, D. C.

The School Board with all the members present, held its regular monthly meeting a few days ago, and passed the following resolutions: Resolved that the recesses at the morning and afternoon sessions be given over entirely to the children irrespective of the children's proficiency, and that scholars be not kept in more than one half hour only after the afternoon session. Also, Resolved, That teachers are to call school promptly at 9 a. m. and at 1:35 p. m., and dismiss promptly at 3:30. It has been noticed that in some instances there was a growing laxity in these particulars.

Miss Dorothy Smith has been on the sick list for a few days.

Mrs. Negy, who is under indictment for assault upon Mrs. Allen, has been released from the asylum where she was sent after the exhibition she made in the Bridgeport court.

Miss Grace Bulkeley had a little Halloween party on Monday evening, at her mother's in Southport.

The King's daughters met Tuesday with Mrs. F. M. Roscoe.

Mrs. Dunnington has returned to her home in New York.

Mrs. Henry Bradley has gone on a visit to Mt. Clair, N. J.

Miss Fannie Wade of Greenfield Hill, invited a lot of her little friends to help her celebrate Monday evening.

Gilbert Hill, a part of the estate of Charles Bradley, has been sold to a gentleman from New York.

A valuable magazine for all those who wish to obtain information about business matters, has been added to the library list and has the title—"System." It tells how certain things ought to be done.

Mr. John Henry Sherwood, of Southport, the venerable father of Mr. Nelson Sherwood, has recently returned from a visit to New Haven.

A new attendance report has been prepared by Supt. Wheatley, to be used in all the schools. It is in the shape of a card, and shows at a glance the tardy marks, half-day absences, perfect sessions, pupils having perfect attendance, registration during the month, and percent of attendance.

The schools where the percent of attendance has been over 90 are Southport, Middle District, Mill Plains, Greenfield Hill, Jennings Woods, Banks North, Nichols Terrace and Post Office Building. The total registration during the month was 938.

The purchase of a lot of land on Fairfield avenue, between the residence of Judge Banks and Mr. Brewer, is quite a notable event and gives promise of another county seat on the beautiful section of the street.

Mr. John F. King of Bridgeport is the fortunate owner.

A few of those who attended the Audobon meeting were Supt. and Mrs. William A. Wheatley, Rev. and Mrs. Allen Beeman, Mrs. Frank S. Child, Miss Hurd, Mrs. Leacy of Bridgeport, Mrs. K. M. Spaulding, Mrs. Rush, Miss Hincley, Mrs. Samuel Wheeler, the Glover, Mrs. Harry S. Glover, Mrs. Sturges, Rev. Dr. Guilber, Mrs. Sturges, Game Warden Wilbur F. Smith, and Mr. John Henry Sherwood of Southport.

It is said that fault with the side seats of cars which are now used on the trolley line between here and the city, they keep very quiet about it. One hears no complaints, no whistles, no threats to mob the conductor. After all they are quite comfortable cars. Those who get free rides should be the last to find fault.

Speaking of how to keep the roads of this town in good condition Mr. Frederick Sturges, a day or two ago, said, in reference to the roads about his place, which are always in excellent condition, that he keeps on hand a couple of barrels of oil, and a quantity of fine crushed stones and a large crusher. He causes the road to be repaired as soon as it is worn and needs it. He does not wait until big holes come. If there is a rut to be filled he treats the coarse stone with oil, then puts on the fine stone or dust, and subjects the whole to a 16-ton roller. This method keeps the stone in place. He would have the roads kept systematically and honestly in order. If this can be done, every day, the expense will be but little. And when the roads are so kept he would be glad to see some tax laid on automobiles, to help pay for keeping them in repair.

Miss Farrell, who died on Saturday in the Lyceum Building, was some 75 years of age. She had been an invalid for a long time. She is survived by two sons and two daughters, John Farrell, a carpenter who works for Eugene Hurd and James, in the Rubber Shop, who was one of the registrars of voters.

It is rumored that the market once run by F. Diabrow will be fitted up as a school room.

NEWEST NOTES OF SCIENCE

Benign insanity sometimes is caused by defective eyesight, but the disease may be cured by corrective glasses.

The largest mine fan in the world, 35 feet in diameter, is to be used to ventilate three Pennsylvania coal mines.

New York has followed the example of Philadelphia and established a free permanent exhibition of building materials.

By the use of liquid air, two British scientists claim to have liquefied and then solidified the emanations from radium.

California recently harvested its first cotton crop, 1,500 acres of the Imperial Valley having been planted as an experiment.

In the Danish mercantile marine there are in active service ten ships a century or more old, the oldest having been built in 1725.

The Sacramento Valley reclamation project is the largest of them all. Sixty thousand acres of arid land will be made useful by it.

Near Hamburg, Germany, a patch of dwarf birch trees is closely guarded at government expense as a rare survivor of post-glacial flora.

Without interfering with a single train, a big railroad bridge at Milwaukee was raised seven feet, eleven inches, in less than a week.

A recent British invention of interest to photographers is a lens by which a picture may be taken on all sides of its user at once.

FADS AND FASHIONS

Some of the motor bonnets trimmed with chiffon have the chiffon strings so arranged that they may be used as veils when occasion demands.

A new evening slipper is of Russian net over colored satin lining. The heels are colored to match. There is a dainty jeweled buckle at the toe.

Spillo-overs in white as well as in colors may be found ready to wear, in the shops. These little accessories give a dainty touch to a costume.

Bands of the same material as the gown, finished with a simple row of stitching, are used as trimming on many of the smartest fall costumes.

Cloths of gold slippers are in fashion for all gowns trimmed with gold lace, and some bronze slippers embroidered with beads cost as much as the gowns.

Alertness and pluck for the costume are disappearing to give place to the less dignified flower and vine, or tinsel and gold and silver leaf tissue.

ALFRED I. DUPONT, POWDER KING, AND WIFE, IN WHOSE DEFENSE HE SUES A RELATIVE

One of the most sensational suits ever brought in the court of Delaware is that of Alfred I. Du Pont, vice president and the recognized head of the $50,000,000 Du Pont Powder company, against Mrs. Elizabeth Bradford Du Pont, widow of Dr. Alexis Du Pont, for alleged slander. The specific charge is that the defendant, who is the mother-in-law of Thomas F. Bayard, the Democratic state chairman, is alleged to have circulated "untrue and vulgar statements" in an attempt to "share the reputation of Mr. Du Pont's

Another feature (patented) is the wonderful Single Damper. It prevents mistakes in regulating fire and oven as one motion does both. No other range has it. Booklet Free.

He Was Out.
Short—If long calls with that little bill tell him I'm out. Mrs. Short—But that would be telling a falsehood! Short—Nothing of the kind. I'm out of cash.

Great men are they who see that spirit is stronger than any material force.—Emerson.

Persian Cities.
Teheran, Persia's capital, is one of the least interesting cities of that ancient land. The houses are mean, the streets narrow and dirty, and even the palace of the shah is far from being a thing of beauty. It has no history worth mentioning and is only redeemed by the birth of Haroun-al-Raschid in a neighboring village. Its importance comes from the presence of the court, but it undergoes a sad decadence in summer, when the unhealthy climate drives the greater part of the population to more sanitary places.

Isfahan, the former capital of Persia, is far different. That city was once girdled by a wall of twenty-four miles, and Shah Abbas in the sixteenth century loaded it with magnificence. It contains splendid mosques and ancient palaces which appeal to the imagination. But Isfahan, too, has fallen upon evil days.

"Houses, bazaars, mosques, palaces, whole streets," writes a traveler of a few years ago, "are to be seen in total abandonment, and one may ride for miles without meeting with a single living creature except perhaps a solitary jackal looking over a wall or a fox running to his hole."

The Smithy Settled It.
One of the candidates at an English election was announced to address a meeting in a Yorkshire village well known to horse dealers and breeders as the center of a district noted for its hackneys and roadsters. The candidate was an eloquent speaker, but for some reason or other he failed to make on the horse loving farmers. However, the local blacksmith came to the rescue by summing up the respective merits of the rival candidates in the following laconic little speech:

"Friends, this feller"—the candidate—"rides a 'oss. T'other feller rides a mortycar. You breeds 'osses, an' I shoes 'em, so wot is ther to argy about?"

In such a district and before such an audience the brief, businesslike speech of the blacksmith was not without effect, for it touched the pockets as well as the hearts of those present.—London Mall.

The Separation.
"I understand that she is separated from her husband."
"Yes."
"Oh, tell me all about it. What did she do?"
"Nothing. He died."

It Was Hard.
Hamfatter Hamlet (the actor)—That hard boiled egg gave me a headache. His Friend—You shouldn't eat hard boiled eggs. Hamfatter—I didn't eat it. A fellow hit me with it behind the ear.

Coaxing.
Mrs. Brown—I'm afraid to let you have a bicycle. Little Johnny—Don't feel that way, ma. Even if it did kill me, remember that it would be the last thing I ever asked you for.
