PIONEER LODGE PLANS SERIES OF LECTURES

First Will be by Harry Bennett on "Electricity"—Other Members to Speak.

Pioneer lodge, Sons of St. George, has made arrangements for what is perhaps a new method of entertaining members of a Fraternal Organization. This lodge has among its members many expert workers in the various industries carried on in Bridgeport. A committee has drawn up a winter's programme, which gives the members the interesting information that at each of their meetings, after the regular business of the lodge is transacted a short talk or lecture will be given on the particular subject with which the designated member is familiar, and upon which he is a recognized authority.

Locked in Buck's Horns Writer Kills Animal

Saranne Lake, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Locked for half an hour in the horns of a slightly wounded and dangerous buck, Stephen Chalmers, an author and magazine contributor, had a most unusual experience on the last day of the hunting season. Finally grasping with one hand his shotgun, the stock of which had been broken by a blow at the deer's head, Mr. Chalmers discharged the load into the buck's breast. The hunter had first wounded the deer, slightly stunning it. He had dropped his gun and reached for his knife. The knife was missing, and before he could recover the shotgun the buck rose to its feet and charged him. Mr. Chalmers' hands were badly lacerated by the antlers of the deer, but otherwise he is none the worse for his exhausting struggle. He returned here yesterday in company with Dr. Charles Oskey, bringing the buck as a trophy. The adventure occurred at twilight on Burnt Hill, eighteen miles from here.

COURT UPHOLDS JERSEY AUTO LAW

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 19.—An opinion has been filed by Justice Alfred Reed, in the Supreme Court, holding constitutional all of the points on which the Frelinghuysen automobile law was attacked by the White Steamer Company, of New York, in its famous test case last year. One of the most important questions brought up was the right of the State to pass a law compelling a license for an auto carrying inter-State commerce goods. The right of the State to license automobiles not according to true value, but according to horse power, was also questioned. The White Steamer Company also contended that the law imposed a double tax, as the first tax was levied by the assessors of taxes. Justice Reed in his opinion sets forth that the automobile is a dangerous machine. He urges that under the police powers of the State one of its first duties is to protect the public from danger to life and limb. He says in the syllabus to the opinion that the so-called taxing of autos is really licensing, as properly called in the Frelinghuysen law, and therefore not unconstitutional. Continuing, he says: "These provisions (license fees) are legitimate exercises of the police power of the State that requires all fees, fines and penalties arising under the act to be paid to the State Treasurer, and to be apportioned by the State Road Commissioners for the repair of improved roads. If it was necessary to regard these provisions as an intentional legislative imposition of a tax for revenue, they yet would not be unconstitutional. The provisions requiring each non-resident owner of an automobile to designate an agent in the State upon whom process may be served in any action against the owner growing out of the operation of his registered machine in this State is not unconstitutional. The court goes on to say that there is no inherent right in any one to use the roads for automobile traveling, and that the license is a privilege, under restrictions. Continuing, the court says: In view of the present need of a vigorous enforcement of these laws for the protection of all users of the highways, I am of the opinion that the condition imposed that a man who proposes to use our highways for motoring shall agree to submit himself to the courts of the State into which he comes is legal. The court brushes aside the Federal question raised, saying that there being no inherent right to use the highway, those questions do not lie.

NEWTOWN

Another program is being prepared in connection with St. Rose's fair at St. Mary's hall, Sandy Hook, for Thanksgiving eve. The following cast of characters for the farce entitled "Billy's Mishap," will no doubt attract and please as in the past successful little evenings which have been sufficient to speak for themselves. The cast is as follows: Dr. Phil Galling, Wm. Hayes; Mrs. Smithfield, Myra Rosch; Mrs. Gaddy, Marguerite Kilbride; Miss Dorothy Dosen, Esther Kilbride; Billy, Leo Kirby. Mrs. A. E. Brinton and Miss Adeline Hurd Brinton spent Wednesday in New Milford. Miss Josephine Sharkey, teacher of the Dodgingtown school passed Sunday at her home in Ansonia. Miss Nora Blake visited friends in New Haven recently.

Miss May Wooley of Seabright, who has been the guest of Mrs. W. J. Driscoll has returned to her home. Michael Lynch of Zour has been among those on the sick list. Miss B. C. Keane passed Saturday with Danbury friends. John P. Keane, of Bridgeport, has been the guest of his parents Mr. and Mrs. John J. Keane, of Gas street. "The District School at Buelberry Corner," a three act comedy, is to be presented by young people of Sandy Hook on the evening of Dec. 2 for the benefit of the Sandy Hook Library. Mrs. P. Callahan will entertain a party of her teachers from New York, also Mr. James R. Kiernan during the Thanksgiving vacation.

RAILROAD CLERKS WILL HEAR OF AGREEMENT.

There will be a general committee hearing before the 21 districts of the newly-organized railroad clerks of the New Haven system, held in New Haven on Sunday, when the details of the recent agreement with the road will be gone over. The body will be addressed by Deputy President J. J. Forrester of the national organization.

NAUGATUCK NOT ALARMED OVER COPPER COMBINE.

Waterbury, Nov. 19.—The proposed combination of all the copper producers of the world into one gigantic combination, is destined to end in a smoke talk, according to local manufacturers. That the combination ever had a standing or that the question of the pooling of interests was ever considered outside of the office of some person interested in the booming of certain copper stocks is also doubted. Anyway, the brass manufacturers of the Naugatuck valley, the largest consumers of copper in the world, are not alarmed that there will be an advance in the price of copper for many months, if at all.
