SENATOR BURTON MAY ORATE INTO NIGHT SESSION

Ohioan Has in Mind Long Speech to Kill the Bill That Would Create Mountain Forest Reserves

(Special from United Press.) Washington, June 23.—When Senator Burton of Ohio arose in the Senate today to make a few "remarks" on the bill to create mountain forest reserves he had in mind a speech of the last few days. The only question is whether his prowess would be equal to the strain or whether the Senate might decide upon a night session. In the latter contingency it would be one very long speech instead of two speeches covering as many sessions.

The Senator's oratorical operations gave full notice that he did not like the bill; also that he hoped the threatened contingency of so much time in this heated spell, when all Congressmen are panting to go home, would induce them to lay the bill over until he had written.

On the other hand, Representative Weeks of Massachusetts has issued a challenge to the Senator to call an adjournment until it has passed the bill. So with Weeks filibustering to force Congress to pass his bill and Burton filibustering to prevent it, the statesmen faced a peculiar problem.

The bill proposes that the government co-operate with states and private land owners in maintaining forest reserves at the headwaters of the rivers in the southern Appalachian region. The bill appropriates $200,000 to enable the department of agriculture to co-operate with states or private owners of forested watersheds and protect the watersheds. It also may enter into agreements to administer private forest lands.

The bill proposes that there shall be appropriated $1,000,000 next year and $2,000,000 annually until 1916 for the purchase by the government of the lands to be reserved. It also provides for the construction of a committee of two Senators and two Representatives. The secretary of agriculture is given authority to divide the lands into national forests.

HOW ONE MAN SUCCEEDED IN HIS BUSINESS

Some Facts About the Library Corner Pharmacy in Fairfield and its Enterprising Proprietor.

The visitor to Fairfield is, likely enough, drawn to the Library Corner Pharmacy by the liberal display of advertising, its wide open portals and its well dressed windows. One step inside is at once a surprise and a revelation. That any store outside of the largest city in the country should attempt to sell the grades and varieties of wares that are on exhibition at Boyle's is the cause of the surprise, and the revelation is to watch the steady stream of customers that, through the broad aisles and call for delicacies of the choicest order.

An introduction to the proprietor, Mr. John E. Boyle, Fairfield's youngest and most progressive merchant, will throw some light on the mystery. Here you have the type of man that makes success of himself and for the town in which he is located a wide awake and courteous. With a genial smile and cordial greeting he conducts you to a seat, where you want are immediately his sole care, and you get what you are seeking for if it is anything outside of the millinery line. For he it is known that this is almost the only class of goods in which Mr. Boyle has felt that his knowledge was inadequate to give the highest satisfaction to his customers.

The history of the Boyle pharmacy which began six years ago, is known to every inhabitant of the town, who in turn is proud of the success achieved by the popular young man who dared to enter the field a total stranger, and who has been able to count progress of the maximum degree to each year of his existence.

When Mr. Boyle started in business he did not have the commodious quarters he now enjoys. He started, too, with a limited capital—just $30 and the good will of the citizens. While the increase in the capital cash account has been great, still greater has been the increase in the friendship of the people of the town. In his relations with them and with all who are brought in touch with him, he has won esteem and admiration.

Each year's business has increased 100 per cent and each year has seen enlargements made in the store space, the storage room for stock, and the addition of new lines. Last year the additions in trade lines were chiefly in automobile goods and sporting appliances, a full line of these goods being required to supply the great demand by the automobilists who make this a sort of headquarters at all times, and by the students and young men who have found that Mr. Boyle's personal supervision over their outfitting was a guarantee of complete satisfaction.

Mr. Boyle has a large interest socially, is in touch with the leaders in society and numbers among his patrons the wealthiest people in this section. He is a member of the Greenfield Country club, and takes an active interest in the work of the grange which provides entertainment for the young people. He is also a member of the Bridgeport Automobile club and the Royal Arcanum, and a prominent figure in the State Pharmacists association, having been frequently urged to stand for nomination to the highest offices.

Mr. Boyle drives his own car, a Premier coupe, and during the recent session of the druggists' association at New Haven, had the distinction of being the only druggist who had an automobile of his own, in attendance.

Mr. Boyle, who fully appreciates the value of advertising, is planning even better things in the future, and his stock which now includes the best smokers supplies, sporting goods, automobile, photographic, confectionery, stationery, drugs, etc. may yet be augmented by a line of aeroplanes or dirigible balloons.

HEAT LAYS LOW FIRST VICTIM

Laborer Unaccustomed to Temperature of Steel Mills Dies on Second Day

John Clappep, aged 21, of 214 Willard street, is the first victim of the heat wave. Unaccustomed to the intense heat of the Farist Steel Mills at the foot of East Main street, he was overcome yesterday afternoon at 2:30 the second day of his employment there, and after treatment at the emergency hospital and the Bridgeport hospital died at 7:45. Surviving him are a brother and a sister. He was a native of Hungary, three years in this city.

Other heat victims, Jeremiah Kane at St. Vincent's hospital and Harry Kane, removed yesterday from Lakeview Home to Bridgeport are recovering. Both were stricken Tuesday afternoon.

THE HORSE

His Appeal to His Master For Humane Treatment.

To thee, my master, I offer my prayer. Feed me and take care of me. Be kind to me. Do not jerk the reins. Do not whip me when going uphill. Never strike, beat or kick me when I fail to understand what you want of me, but give me a chance to understand you. Watch me, and if I refuse to do your bidding see if there is not something wrong with my harness.

Do not give me too heavy loads. Never hitch me where water will drip on me. Keep me well shod. Examine my teeth when I fail to eat. I may have an ulcerated tooth. That, you know, is very painful. I am unable to tell you in words when I am sick, so watch me, and I will try to tell you by signs.

Pet me sometimes. I enjoy it, and I will learn to love you. Protect me in summer from the hot sun. Keep a blanket on me in winter weather, and never put a frosty bit in my mouth, but hold it in your hands a moment first.

I carry you, pull you, wait patiently for you long hours, day or night. I cannot tell you when I am thirsty; give me clean, cool water often in hot weather. Finally, when my strength is gone, instead of turning me over to a human brute to be tortured and starved, take my life in the easiest, quickest way, and your God will reward you in this life and in heaven. Amen.—From the Swedish in "Our Dumb Animals."

Birds' Eggs

Ostriches lay the largest eggs of all birds now extant, according to a writer in the Scientific American, but the ostrich's egg would have appeared small beside that of the extinct Madagascarian bird, the eppornis, which measured more than thirty inches in its smallest circumference. The smallest birds' eggs are those of the minute species of humming birds, which are smaller than the eggs of certain kinds of tropical beetles. But the cuckoo lays the relatively smallest egg—that is to say, while the jackdaw and the cuckoo are about equal in size, the former's egg is five or six times larger than the latter's. The fact that the cuckoo is wont to deposit its eggs in the nests of birds which are usually much smaller than itself doubtless accounts for this. The relatively largest egg is laid by the kiwi, a strange, wingless New Zealand bird. The egg is no less than five inches long, although the extreme length of the bird itself is only twenty-seven inches.

Tommy and the Worm.

There were only two pieces of cake and three hungry boys upstairs throwing their clothes on in the race to get down first. Tommy won out and rushed into the dining room breathlessly. "That's a good boy, Tommy. The early bird gets the worm. Take a piece of cake," said his mother. Tommy looked at the cake quizzically, inspecting it from all sides. "What's the matter, Tommy?" asked his mother. "What are you trying to do?" "Say, ma, which piece has the worm in it?" he inquired soberly.—National Monthly.

A cough, just a little cough. It may not amount to much. Or, it may amount to everything! Some keep coughing until the lungs are seriously injured. Others stop their cough with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. If he says "I don't take it," then take it. It's the best cough medicine ever sold for seventy years. How long have you known it?

HOW THE RESCUE MISSION RECLAIMS DOWN AND OUTS

Man Who Planned to Break Into House Gives up Jimmy

Converted Violin Player Won't Fiddle For Saloons Anymore

Rev. John Callahan, superintendent of the well known Hadley Rescue Mission in New York city, will be the speaker at the annual meeting of the Bridgeport Christian Union which is to be held in the First Methodist church on Tuesday evening, June 23, at 7:45, and which will be open to the public.

Of fully as much, or more interest, to the people of this city who believe in extending a helping hand to the men who are down and almost out, will be the annual report of Rev. Chas. W. Simpson, the superintendent of the union who has been doing some remarkable rescue work among the men of the red light district during the past few months.

Mr. Simpson will tell about the man who had planned to break into a house in this city, but who changed his mind after attending a meeting at the mission and voluntarily gave up the "filthy" money he had accumulated to make his entrance. Also about the converted violin player who refused attractive offers from saloon keepers and preferred to play in the mission, and about a large number of other cases which warm one's heart to hear about.

The Bridgeport Christian Union was organized by a committee appointed by the Bridgeport Pastors' Association to establish an interdenominational organization to do rescue and relief work on behalf of the churches as a whole. An important part of the work was to be the establishing of a well organized rescue mission, the finances and direction of which are to be in the hands of responsible men. The Christian Union which was organized as a result of this plan, has a board of 26 directors who are responsible business and professional men of the city.

They have rented the old Belmont Hotel building in Bank street at $900 a year, repaired and furnished it at an expense of about $1,500, engaged a capable superintendent, and are now trying to raise $5,000 from churches and individuals to cover the expenses of the first year.

They take the man who is up against it hard and wants to brace up, into their building, give him a bath, a clean night shirt to wear, his clothes are being fumigated, and a clean bed in their "First Aid Dormitory" for which he is expected to pay 15 cents in money or work. In the morning he is given a meal ticket and encouraged to work out his obligation in the wood yard. If he makes good there, they help him to get a better job and eventually a permanent position. In the interval he is promoted to one of the rooms on the "Convalescent Ward" on the second floor of the building, where he stays until they feel he will be all right outside. There is a helpful religious meeting every night and twice on Sunday, and other lines of service are to be added as rapidly as possible.

The people of this city who believe in this kind of work are urged to show their interest by attending this meeting and giving the directors a testimonial of the assurance of their cordial approval.

TWO HOURS OF TALK ON GARBAGE DISPOSAL

Two hours were devoted to the discussion of the various methods of Garbage disposal at a meeting of the board of health and the advisory committee in the office of Mayor Buckingham at the City Hall late yesterday.

The discussion led to nothing definite. The commissioners were not anxious to settle the matter finally yesterday, because of the absence of Dr. George F. Ober, the president of the board of health. The next meeting will be held at the office of the mayor on Tuesday when it is likely that definite action will be taken.

BAND CONCERT ATTRACTS THOUSANDS TO SEASIDE.

Greatly pleased was the large crowd at Seaside park last night with the excellent music furnished by the Coast Artillery Corps band at their second public band concert of the season. The instruments were received here just the same as those given last week at Washington park, but as the police maintained better order last night keeping the noisy element in control the music was much more enjoyed. A new feature last night made a decided hit, it being the singing of a number of popular songs by a quartet composed of Messrs. T. J. Penfold, Gustave Wickie, Ira Rauth and S. MacCollom. The selections they sang were "Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon," "Oh, What I'd Do For a Girl Like You," and "Ogallala." Leader Paul Goulding is receiving many warm words of praise for the high standing to which he has brought this band. The bandsters wear new uniforms last night for the first time in public.
