SPLIT IN TIGERS, ORDER OF CIRCUS MEN, MEANS SUIT

Independent Order of Tigers is Established Following Factional Quarrel

Order Was Established by Circus Men Under Barnum When the Great Shows Were on European Trip

The Benevolent Order of American Tigers, an organization of circus men formed during the memorable European trip of the Barnum & Bailey circus, and continued with a large membership of former and present day circus performers and employes, has been split up by the organization of the Independent Order of Tigers.

The establishment of the new organization was effected less than a fortnight ago, when a stormy meeting of the old organization resulted in the marching out of half the membership with the records of the organization in their possession. The break was precipitated by the annual election in which the new faction brought the charge that a clique of the old membership was striving to engineer the votes to their own ends by bringing in members who had long since become disqualified by failing to keep up their dues.

The Independent Order of Tigers, according to some of the members, has a following of 85 circus men, including many of the old guard. At a meeting held Sunday afternoon with Freeman Larnard, the new president, in the chair, it was decided to secure a new meeting hall, and to hold a whist on Thursday evening of this week, providing in connection with the whist a program of entertainment and refreshments.

The officers of the I. O. T. include: President, Freeman Larnard; vice president, Herman G. ...

The Tigers were organized to care for the sick and bury the dead in all walks of circus life. All men connected with any department of the show were eligible. During the winter season, with the return to the home town of the Barnum & Bailey circus, it has been the custom of the showmen to hold many delightful socials and an annual ball. The treasury at one time contained nearly $4,000, but that has gradually dwindled until now there is said to be less than $200 to the credit of the organization.

The new membership of Tigers plans to rehabilitate the finances of the organization. But there is said to be determined opposition on the part of the remaining members of the B. O. A. T. to the new organization, the latter having secured control of the finances of the organization, and there were rumors today that the courts might be invoked before the dispute is settled.

SPORTS OF A DAY

BOXING

(Special from United Press.)

New York, Nov. 30.—One of the best fights New York has seen in many months, is expected at the Fairmount Athletic club, tonight, when the lightweight champion Abe Attell hooks up with Pal Moore, of Philadelphia, in a 10 round bout. Moore is now a lightweight and if he gets an even break with Attell he will go right after Moran. Attell, however, counts on defeating Moore through his speed. He frankly admits that he will not try to trade punches on the Philadelphia.

San Francisco, Nov. 30.—Owen Moran will soon begin pulling in the "easy money" from his victory over Battling Nelson last Saturday. The English fighter, today, is en route to New York, where he has a week's theatrical engagement. Following this Moran will sail for England, where he will appear in the London music halls. Manager Harvey is insisting that Moran decline all offers to fight again, until Ad Wolgast is drawn into a fight. He believes, however, that the champion will be willing to wait until May, is far-fetched, and will endeavor to arrange for an earlier date.

Nelson will leave here the last of the week, for his ranch, in New Mexico.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Jack Johnson is not taking any chances of getting fat and slow and, from now until he resumes his theatrical tour, after the holidays, will spend about an hour each day at the gymnasium, working with Walter W. Monahan, a young heavyweight, as a sparring partner, here, and will box a few rounds after his training stunts.

Yesterday, the champion ran about five miles over the boulevard, near his home and boxed four rounds with Monahan. He repeated the same stunt today. Johnson has taken on considerable weight and was slow and short winded, yesterday, but said he expected to get in fair shape in short order. Johnson is said to sail for Paris in March, and when he reaches Paris, may meet either McVey or Jeannette, provided the promoters offer enough money.

At St. Joseph's hall the Ramblers took a decidedly fast game from the St. Joseph's 18-14 doing the trick in the last few minutes of play. At no stage of the game did either team have the advantage, but one being in the lead and then the other. The outcome was in suspense until the last few minutes of play when with the St. Joseph's leading 14-12, the Ramblers dropped three goals in quick succession bringing their total up to 18.

The Ramblers climbed into second place on a par with the Berkshires by taking a 23-13 game from the Berkshires. Both teams had been strengthened and put up a lightning game. Dancing followed both contests until midnight.

AMERICANS WIN MARATHON RACE

(Special from United Press.)

New York, Nov. 30.—The Marathon racing game, revived a few weeks ago and dropped last game from the St. Joseph's 18-14 doing the trick in the last few minutes of play. At no stage of the game did either team have the advantage, but one being in the lead and then the other. The outcome was in suspense until the last few minutes of play when with the St. Joseph's leading 14-12, the Ramblers dropped three goals in quick succession bringing their total up to 18.

The failure of Alfred Shrubbs, the speedy Englishman, to run to form gave the race a bad color. He and his partner, Wood, were the favorites. Shrubbs appeared in a broken down condition and ran a miserable race, finally being forced to quit. Shrubbs' performance was hardly in keeping, according to the sports, with his recent race in Boston, when he went 15 miles alone in a fast time.

St. Yves and Svanberg finished second, last night, and the finish team, Kholmalm and Nieminen, third.

LOCAL FOOTBALL

These are busy days for the Sporting Editor attempting to make an interpretation of the many communications sent to him from the junior football players about the city relative to their ratings and the petty scraps among themselves which should be settled on the football field and not in the news columns. A few weeks back it was the 110 pound teams fighting it out. The communications began showing them up with the result that all of a sudden the club jumped to 125 and 125 pounds. Starting this week the scrap is on between the Tigers and Seaside over an alleged arranged game for last Sunday.

The Seaside football team is rather sore over the knock put in the Farmer by the Lumber Club. The game was arranged with their manager. At the last moment they called it off being unwilling to play at the Lumber Lot. The members of the team then consented to play at the Circus grounds, but the Tigers put up the excuse that they were broken up and would not play. The Seaside manager then arranged a game with the Edgewood Jrs. and played them Sunday. It does appear that the Tigers want no part of the real champions.

The Tigers must be admired for their nerve in roasting us as they do. The stories emanating from the Tiger camp are so many and so untrue that an ex-member of our team from the youth who made himself manager of the Tigers, the boy who was a member of the Seaside team, himself. The Seaside admit that in losing Player Boyne, they parted with a star and a gentleman, but they did not lose the other. This other is a very mouthy but otherwise harmless player.

Do the Tigers forget that they were beaten by the Columbia Stars 11-0 in 33 minutes of play, yet say they have not lost a game this season. The Seaside have lost but one game, have won five and tied one. We changed every team of our weight and played them as they came."

THE SEASIDE FOOTBALL TEAM

Bridgeporters who attended the Annex-Thunderbolt game Sunday are not the only ones of the belief that the referee's decision was brought about by the unfair decisions of the referee and head linesman. There is at least one New Havener who thinks in the same way. His communication to the Farmer, though brief, clearly states his position. He may be a disgusted one, perhaps a member of the Washington Glee team who rooted for the Seaside in the fray. Here goes anyway—"I am a New Havener and wish to state that the Thunderbolt team was robbed out of a victory Sunday by the Seaside. The Seaside they show cold feet in a very advanced stage, the championship really belonging to the Bridgeport team. The Seaside men were played off their feet every time. It seems too bad to see a visiting team get such a raw deal through the fault of the referee and linesman."

FROM A NEW HAVEN MAN.

The Young Maplewoods would like to play in Glenwood at the Acid Works Sunday afternoon. Answer through this paper.

RANKING OF THE FOOTBALL ELEVENS.

"Herbert" in the New York Tribune says: In cases where the lines are far separated and where two elevens did not meet more than a single opponent in common, it is even harder to give a conclusive Pennsylvania defeated Brown 20 to 0, and Brown defeated Yale 21 to 0, and yet Yale must be ranked above Pennsylvania, for the reason that, in my opinion, Yale played better football against Princeton and Harvard than Pennsylvania did in defeating Cornell on Thursday by a score of 12 to 6. The whole question, therefore, simmers down to the judgment and somewhat arbitrary opinions of individuals, and in my judgment and in my opinion the leading teams should be placed as follows:

Table with columns: Rank, Team
1 Harvard. 10 Lafayette.
2 Brown. 11 Carlisle.
3 Yale. 12 Syracuse.
4 Pennsylvania. 13 Trinity.
5 Annapolis. 14 Amherst.

COUNTERFEIT AUTO MARKERS WERE USED BY LOCAL GARAGE AS TEMPORARY CONVENIENCE

State Markers Mislead—Substitute Ones Were Not Used on Any Car For More Than 24 Hours.

Before Secretary of State Matthew H. Rogers in Hartford yesterday, the officers of the Fairfield Auto Company defended themselves on the charge of having made and used counterfeit State auto markers.

Those present at the hearing were Harry D. Gates of Bridgeport, president and sales manager; Edward R. Hampton of Meriden, secretary and company and manager of the garage; Frank Vorell, in the employ of the State police; and Clifford B. Wilson of Bridgeport, their lawyer.

Frank Vorell testified that his attention had been called on October 1 to the marker on a car of the Fairfield Auto company which had stopped at a corner. It gave every appearance of being handmade and bore the Connecticut registration 132D. Two weeks later he saw another handmade marker bearing the same number. He visited the office of the company and the officers informed him, he said, that he had found one marker out of the handmade markers on their cars. He saw more of these markers later bearing the same number. He again visited the garage and saw that the markers were on cars that were being brought to the garage from the freight station.

The officers of the company admitted to him that they had painted of their marker with 75 denominations, the marker being of regular size but not of the color legally required.

He stated further that the regulation marker was used on the front of all the company's cars, that 132D was the dealer's number of that company, that he had found one marker out of the six necessary to make up the three sets for three cars, to be missing; that he had seen several bad markers; that he had seen the handmade marker on the autos but could not tell whether the handmade markers had been on more than twenty-four hours. This is the limit of time prescribed by law in which a sign other than that issued by the State office can be used.

Arthur Pfoot, employed in the automobile department of the State Secretary's office, testified that six markers had been sent with the certificate of registration in 1909, that three additional sets had been ordered by the company November 30, 1909, and had been sent December 13. The company had got six sets in 1910. This evidence was asked for to show that the company had need of more than three sets of markers.

Mr. Hampton testified that he had received the six markers for 1909 and 1910. He said that he never needed or used more than six sets of markers. During the first ten months of the year two sets were made, one piece out the number and to operate all of the six cars it had been necessary to duplicate some of the markers. This had been the case in bringing cars up from the freight station. He testified that the markers had never remained on the cars over night, therefore not over twenty-four hours, and that he had never let anybody else use them. He said he had ordered the men to take the markers off the cars when Vorell had told them to. He said that the number of markers painted with red figures was four or five. When they had enough of the legal markers to make six full sets he said

HATTIE LE BLANC IS HELPED BY JUDGE'S RULING

(Special from United Press.)

Cambridge, Nov. 30.—When District Attorney Higgins, who is conducting the prosecution against Hattie Le Blanc, the 17 year old French Canadian girl charged with the murder of Clarence F. Glover, on trial in the Superior court, yesterday, Judge Bond, came to court, today, it was with the realization that he has lost the most vital point of his argument before the jury, which was scheduled for this morning, and faced losing the most vital point of his evidence.

It was with the ruling by Judge Bond, when court closed, last night, that Higgins should not use Glover's alleged dying statement, in his opening address on the grounds, as successfully contended by Hattie's aggressive young chief counsel Melvin M. Johnson, that when Glover said: "Hattie Le Blanc shot me," he was not in the presence of death. In making this ruling, Judge Bond said that he was of the mind to bar the words of Glover from the evidence, as against the contention of what has been offered, to consider this point at length and reserved decision until today.

It was with bated breath, then, that the officers of the State, who were interested parties, awaited the entrance of the venerable senior judge of the Massachusetts Superior bench.

After the ruling, Judge Bond was examined by the government, with a view of proving that Glover thought he would die, and lengthy argument by counsel, yesterday, Judge Bond said: "There are confusing features. Some doubt exists as to whether a dying statement was procured. It may be that the officers arrived too late. On the strength of what has been offered, I feel that, if I were to pass judgment, now, I would exclude all of Glover's statements. I shall, however, at this time, exclude only all references to his utterances in the opening and in the morning will determine whether I shall permit his statements to be put in evidence."

District Attorney Higgins bitterly opposed the ruling, declaring that, if Glover's alleged words, while dying, were stricken out, it would leave but little other evidence. He stated that Miss Gallant, the interpreter, who was present at the all-night police inquiry of Hattie, after her capture, had gone to Nova Scotia and refused to return to the jurisdiction of Massachusetts to tell what she knew.

The crowd, today, was even greater than yesterday, with a clearing sky, women predominating in the courtroom. Every seat was filled and the courtroom halls were jammed.
